Johnson Asks Hearing in Service Row

U. S. Plans First Effort To End Steel Deadlock

Pittsburgh, Oct. 10 (AP).—The Government is going to try to break up the steel strike deadlock.

United States Conciliation Director Cyrus Ching said today he and his top assistant, William N. Margolis, are arranging informal meetings with leading steel companies and the striking CIO United Steelworkers. The first of the meetings is expected to be held this week.

It is the first peace move since the Nation-wide steel shutdown 10 days ago in a war over free pensions. The Government made three futile efforts to settle the dispute before the walkout.

Ching already has moved into the four-week coal strike. He got United Mine Workers Chief John L. Lewis and mine operators to agree on talking contract again this week.

The steel action had been expected as strike effects spread.

But industry leader United States Steel Corp., spearheading the labor fight with steelworker President Philip Murray, said it had not yet been notified of the Government move. Comment was declined.

No Union Reaction

There also was no immediate reaction from union sources.

Both sides have held doggedly to their prestrike positions—the union for free insurance and pensions recommended by a presidential board; the industry for welfare benefits with workers helping to foot the bill.

Ching's brief statement in Washington said he is arranging a schedule of "separate and informal conferences with representatives of some of the leading steel companies and with representatives of the United Steelworkers of America."

Ching added:

"The purpose of these meetings will be to consider the impediments which exist to a prompt settlement of the steel industry dispute and to ascertain in what ways the service might best contribute to settlement.

"The conferences will be held at mutually convenient dates and places, which will be announced to the press from time to time.

"In the interim, it should be understood that the service has been and will continue to be in frequent contact with the parties on both sides."

Jobs Endangered

The big steel and coal strikes have endangered hundreds of thousands of jobs.

Breadwinners in scores of industries are working on borrowed time—with unemployment a sure thing if the walkouts last another week or 10 days.

So far, only about 50,000 have

Endurance Fliers Forced Down After 46 Days

Yuma, Ariz., Oct. 10 (AP).—Pilots Woody Jongeward and Bob Woodhouse brought their faltering City of Yuma in to a perfect landing today after setting a new world endurance mark of 46 days, 20 hours and 18 minutes.

Sheriff's deputies estimated the crowd which greeted the fliers at more than 15,000. The Arizona National Guard furnished an honor guard and eight Navy Hellcats from Los Alamedas, Calif., supplied an aerial blanket.

Among the first to greet the new champions were Dick Riedel and Bill Barris of Fullerton, Calif., the former titleholders. Their record of 1008 hours in the air, set last spring, was passed by the Yuma businessmen-aviators last Wednesday.

A burned-out magneto brought the decision to land.

15 Killed as Wild Gales Rip Through Midwest and Plains

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

TRAPPED IN STORM DEBRIS—Miss Gayle Keen, 20, of Frostproof, Fla., her face contorted with pain, awaits rescue after winds toppled Sheridan Hotel's 60-foot chimney in Minneapolis yesterday. The masonry crashed through the roof of the three-story west wing, where the girl had a room. She was enrolled in a school for airline hostesses. Her injuries were not immediately determined

By The Associated Press

Winds howling across the Midwest at speeds up to 120 miles an hour spread heavy damage yesterday and boosted weather deaths to at least 15. Damage in harvest fields was widespread.

In the east, however, the risk was heat prostration as October 10 mercury records fell like tenpins. Newark, N. J., had a sizzling 92.

The northeastern states were expected to get a somewhat weakened taste of the windy weather Tuesday.

The cause of the heavy winds was development of an intense low pressure area over northern Minnesota. It was a complex result of temperature extremes which gave the midwest summery weather, while the upper Plains and northwest had chill and snow. The warm air on the edge of the Plains cold front shot upward and dissipated in high altitude storms, forming something similar to a giant, inverted whirlpool hundreds of miles in diameter.

In Minnesota, near the low pressure center, the winds were strongest. Speeds at Minneapolis were a sustained 70 miles an hour during the afternoon, with gusts up to 95 miles an hour measured at Wold-Chamberlain airport which was closed down for 2½ hours.

A 60-foot chimney was blown down on a wing of the Sheridan Hotel in Minneapolis, injuring four women, three of them seriously. Listed in poor condition were Janice Langlie, 22, Norwalk, Conn.; Patricia Ann Sauter, 20, East Chicago, Ind., and Gayle Keen, 20, Frostproof, Fla. They were attending an airline hostess school. Mrs. F. W. Gordon, a permanent resident of the hotel, was less seriously hurt.

In South Dakota, where high winds began Sunday, two men were killed by flying beams. A 77-year-old watchman died at Sioux Falls Monday and an 18-year-old youth at Lead Sunday.

Stands of corn awaiting harvest were flattened in southern Minnesota and Iowa, where winds ranged up to 80 miles an hour.

The gale later reached a velocity of 91 miles an hour in parts of Iowa. Many persons were injured but none was reported killed. The injuries ranged from cuts from flying glass to broken bones. Damage to crops, airplane hangars, farm buildings and com-

Handyman Questioned in Boy's Slaying

Special squads of detectives and uniformed policemen worked round the clock with little success yesterday to find the savage sex slayer of 8-year-old Harrison McKinley Walker.

The lad's nude body was found about 2 p. m. Sunday, stabbed 17 times, with four skull fractures, in Rock Creek near the Pennsylvania ave. bridge and 27th st. nw.

Police held at No. 3 precinct a 53-year-old handyman, who lives nearby and frequents the area where the boy's body was found. The man has been unable, officers said, to give a clear account of his movements Saturday night when Harrison was slain.

They also questioned at the same precinct for several hours two other men picked up in the locality. They were not booked and officers declined to reveal nature of the questioning or the reasons for it.

Other developments in the case were:

1. Investigators established that Harrison and a companion, about his own age attended a movie late Saturday afternoon and separated about dusk.

2. Harrison asked the other boy to go wading with him in Rock Creek, but the boy declined. Harrison then told the boy he intended to sleep in the weeds in a vacant lot that night and asked the boy to wake him Sunday morning. Harrison had been missing since he left the Briggs-Montgomery School at recess-time, Friday morning.

3. A man's shirt found yesterday near the scene of the murder bearing heavy stains was sent to the FBI laboratory to deter-

Only Trying to Please Wife And Truman, Vaughan Says

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, White House military aide and a key figure in the recent congressional 5-percenter inquiry, yesterday delivered his answer to his critics:

"I'm considered in very many circles unethical, I'm sure. I'll continue to be unethical. There are only two people I have to please—Mr. Truman and Mrs. Vaughan. As long as I please them, I've made various suggestions as to what the other people can do."

The general's remarks were made at an enthusiastic testimonial luncheon tendered him at the 400 Restaurant by leaders of all major veterans' organizations.

Reporters were told that the luncheon had been planned a long time because of "all the favors the general has done for veterans."

But, following on the heels of the 5-percenter investigation, it appeared also to be the veterans' organizations' way of publicly giving a ranks-closed "vote of confidence" to the controversial military aide.

It was "the first time in the history of Washington" such an assemblage of veterans' leaders had gathered to pay tribute to a man—a man "who so richly deserves such an honor . . . a great man." So spoke Harold Keats, past national commander of the American Veterans of World War II and toastmaster for the occasion.

Responding, the general let go with his satiric "unethical" remark and told his motive in activities which some have charged were favors for friends. A famed storyteller, he illustrated with an anec-

Farm Bill Agreement Is Sought

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Senate will renew its debate on the Anderson Farm Plan today, with party lines completely disrupted over the bill which would call for lower price supports in 1951.

Reports from the White House indicated that the Administration was quietly opposing the measure—a compromise prepared by the former Secretary of Agriculture, Senator Clinton P. Anderson (D., N. Mex.).

A last-minute effort to reach a party agreement is scheduled at a White House conference of farm Democrats with President Truman this morning.

Brannan Returns to Scene

Representative Cecil F. White (D., Calif.), an Administration farm leader, told newsmen President Truman strongly favors supports at 90 percent of parity. White made his statement after a White House visit. White is one of the country's big cotton growers.

(Anderson succeeded after hectic politicking last week in killing such a proposal, advanced by a two-party combination, Senators Milton R. Young (R., N. Dak.) and Richard R. Russell (D., Ga.). It had earlier passed, when Vice President Alben W. Barkley voted for it in order to break a tie of 37 to 37.)

Taking part in the maneuvering over the weekend was Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan. Brannan left a two-week vacation to return for the fight. He plans to go back to his Denver home tonight, but aides admitted such action depended on whether the Senate votes in time.

Today's conference may determine whether the Brannan Plan, authored by the Secretary, will be tossed into the legislative mill today. Brannan would permit each farmer to sell his crop for the best price he could get. If that was below the price-support level, Brannan would have the Government pay the farmer the difference. At present the Government buys commodities to keep prices up to support levels.

Would Be Fourth Bill

If Brannan's plan is offered today it will be the fourth farm bill before Congress. The others are (1) the Aiken law, calling for price supports ranging from 72 to 90 percent of parity, which will go into effect January 1 unless Congress acts, (2) the Anderson bill, a rewrite of the Aiken law, but postponing the lower price supports for a year, retaining 90 percent supports until January 1, 1951, and (3) the Gore bill, already passed by the House, which would keep the present 90 percent supports for another year.

Further confusing the situation is the attitude of the Administration's floor leader, Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) and its Agriculture Committee chairman, Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.).

Lucas favors the bill, and is joining with Anderson in carrying the fight. Thomas opposes Anderson's measure, and yesterday again threatened to introduce the Brannan Plan as a substitute.

On the other hand, the Republican floor leader, Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (Neb.), is supporting the Young-Russell amendment for 90 percent supports, and opposing the senior minority member of the Agriculture Committee, Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.).

President and Cabinet to Welcome Nehru, Arriving Here Today for First U. S. Visit

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, Prime Minister of India and hero of his country's fight for freedom, is expected in Washington today at the start of his first visit to the United States.

President Truman, the Cabinet, and congressional leaders plan to welcome him at the National Airport with full official and military honors. The President's plane, the Independence, which is bringing Nehru from London, is scheduled to land at 4:30 this afternoon.

With Nehru will be his daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi (not related to Mahatma Gandhi), and Sir Girja Shankar Bajpai, secretary general of the Ministry of External Affairs, and formerly India's High Commissioner in Washington.

Nehru will be the President's guest at dinner this evening, and will stay at Blair House for his first night on American soil.

From the President down, officials here are eager to show him every sign of respect as leader of the most populous non-Communist nation, and as a spokesman for all the newly independent millions of Asia.

There will be many subjects for official discussion if Nehru chooses to raise them. Among them are India's need of economic development and technical assistance, and the struggle to keep southeast Asia from communism.

Nehru has kept aloof from the cold war with Soviet Russia; he has regarded it, until recently, as an old-fashioned power struggle of no direct concern to India.

He also has tended to distrust the United States as the home of color discrimination and greedy capitalism. Officials hope that when Nehru flies back to India early in November he will have a new respect for the United States and a truer understanding of its policies and its people.

His four weeks' schedule will take him from coast to coast, but it is jammed with official ceremonies.

Wednesday he will visit Mount Vernon and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, receive Indian residents and students at the Indian Chancery on Massachusetts ave., then attend an official dinner

Price-Fixing Indictments On Milk Stand

The Justice Department won an important round yesterday in its fight against what it alleges is a milk marketing conspiracy in Washington.

The Supreme Court refused pleas to throw out indictments against the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association. As a result the association is expected to stand trial here on price-fixing and competition-eliminating charges.

The indictment, returned by a special grand jury in March, 1948, was thrown out by District Court. But the Court of Appeals sided with the Government and the milk association took the case to the Supreme Court.

The association had sought to have the indictment thrown out on the grounds it was immune from prosecution under the anti-trust laws because of a provision in farm legislation granting cooperatives certain rights to enter agreements, even if some restraint of trade results.

Named in the indictment along with the cooperative was its secretary-treasurer, Bruce B. Derrick; and Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase, Thompson's, Richfield, Alexandria, Wakefield and Harvey Dairies, and Safeway Stores' Lucerne Milk Co.

The indictment charged that a conspiracy has existed here since 1930 to fix prices and restrain trade in the multi-million-dollar milk industry. The Government charged the milk firms named agreed to purchase all their milk from the producers' association which has some 1500 farmer-members.

Driving Tips Offered

Rush-Hour Traffic Reveals 'Bugs' in Whitehurst Freeway

Driver familiarity with the new Whitehurst Freeway will iron out some of the wrinkles that developed yesterday, the first full working day since it was opened, Traffic Director George E. Keneipp said last night.

After surveying morning and evening rush-hour traffic over the Freeway and at the District side of Key Bridge, Keneipp and Deputy Traffic Director Wallace L. Braun made suggestions for motorists and planned a few modifications to speed the flow.

One problem Keneipp found was the steady stream of traffic down 34th st., heading for Key Bridge.

Keneipp expressed hope motorists would soon realize "what a good approach they now have to Key Bridge from Canal rd., which has been widened into a dual lane road, from Foxhall rd. to 36th st., and get off 34th."

This 34th st. stream conflicted with and jammed the left-turn lane coming into the District off the bridge. Keneipp ordered police to turn off the traffic signals at the District end of the bridge. He and Braun determined they would experiment today with increasing the green light time for this lane from 22 seconds green, 68 red, to about 40 seconds green. This will require synchronization of signals at 34th and 36th sts.

Keneipp stressed that trucks can use the Freeway, though not Rock Creek-Potomac pkwy.

Another problem was a slowdown along Virginia ave. from 27th to E sts. and 21st st. nw. As a result, Keneipp advised motorists:

"When driving downtown in the morning rush, if you use the Rock Creek-Potomac pkwy., and do not want to go as far south as Virginia ave., do this:

"Take the new loop road under the Pennsylvania ave. bridge. This road, swerving right, will let you out on Pennsylvania ave., just east of 28th st.

"Failure of many to take this loop caused much of the congestion on Virginia ave.

Keneipp offered the following advice for afternoon autoists on Virginia ave. who want to get to the Freeway:

"Go under the K st. bridge over the parkway and turn right on the loop road onto the Freeway."

Since trucks may not use the Parkway, they will have to go north on 26th st., turning left to the Freeway at the new traffic light at 26th and K sts. nw.

Parkway traffic is southbound during rush morning hours and northbound in rush evening hours, Keneipp noted.

An immediately apparent result of the Freeway was a marked decrease in M st. traffic as anticipated. It always was backed up to at least Wisconsin ave., sometimes to 29th or farther downtown, in rush hours. Yesterday, from 5 to 6 p. m., it never backed up beyond 29th.

Senate Lags Behind House In Stretch Race

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The House yesterday set a fast pace for a Saturday adjournment of Congress but new hurdles slowed the speed of the trailing Senate.

Congressional leaders told the President they hoped to leave town this weekend provided the Senate can catch up.

But Senate leaders said that was still a mighty big "if."

It hinged on whether the Senate can dislodge the displaced persons bill from the Judiciary Committee, pass it without a filibuster, and tie up a score of conference loose ends in five days.

President Truman yesterday added a new complication in the form of an eleventh-hour request for appropriation this session of the full $1,314,000,000 previously authorized for the military assistance program.

The House Appropriations Committee scheduled hearings starting today and planned to speed the bill through the House Friday. The companion Senate group arranged to tap witnesses as soon as the House unit was through with them.

But coupled with yesterday's Senate loss of a full working day it could be the straw that breaks the adjournment drive.

The Senate had planned to speed the farm bill to conference yesterday, clearing decks for the DP showdown. In conformance with time-honored custom, however, it called off all business and recessed overnight out of respect to Senator Miller (D., Idaho), who died here Saturday.

Today it will struggle to make up the time. Actually the Senate has no deadline to meet. It could ease up the throttle and adjourn Congress comfortably sometime next mid-week. But there was a hazard even in that course. Senators were deserting Washington at such a pace that there was good reason for concern there may not be a quorum next week to do business.

The DP legislation, probably more than any other measure, was regarded as the key to the Senate dilemma. With civil rights shelved until next January it seemed the

U. S. to Slash Many Tariffs By 50 Percent

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The United States has agreed to slash its tariffs in half on a long list of European and Latin-American products, the State Department disclosed yesterday.

First details of the trade agreements, newly concluded at Annecy, France, showed that in many instances the American negotiators had gone to the full 50 percent limit allowed by law.

The present Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, recently extended by Congress for another two years, lets the President cut tariffs up to 50 percent on any article without getting the consent of Congress. An escape clause in the new agreements provides that any concession can be annulled if it is found to work serious injury upon any domestic industry.

No Domestic Injury Foreseen

An official American spokesman said yesterday, however, that this had been "taken into consideration" in agreeing to the new cuts, and that no such injury was foreseen.

The slashes in some American tariffs are so deep that they are expected to give new incentives to dollar-hungry foreign countries to sell more goods and earn more dollars in the American market.

Although the total range of the new concessions covers only about 3 percent of all American imports, the cuts suggest that the Administration is in earnest in its campaign against trade barriers throughout the world.

Practice of Our Preaching

"They show that we practice what we preach," was one official's comment yesterday. President Truman and other Administration leaders have urged foreign countries incessantly to reduce trade barriers.

Concessions made by foreign countries to the United States and to one another are equally steep, and range more widely than the American cuts. They will give little immediate effect to American exporters, however, because dollar-

Madrid Publishes Aid Remark by Richards

Madrid, Oct. 11 (AP).—The Spanish foreign office published tonight a statement by Representative Richards (D., S. C.) calling for United States economic aid to Spain and full renewal of diplomatic relations.

The statement quoted Richards as saying these steps should be taken so that Spain "can occupy her merited position in the program of economic rehabilitation of Europe."

Soap-Painting, Pane-Breaking Planned as Halloween Dream

The Greenbelt City Council is going to make the youngsters' dream of a perfect Halloween come true.

The kids will be able to smash all the glass they want and to soap up windows till they run out of artistic designs and phrases.

Not only that, but the youngsters will receive prizes for their efforts.

But all these extroverted manifestations will be carefully controlled, it was explained at the meeting of the council last night.

The window-smashing contest will be held Monday night, October 31, on the grounds of the Braden Playground near the Greenbelt swimming pool.

Framed glass panes will be set up and rocks supplied gratis. All a contestant needs is an arm and a desire to bust something.

The windows of community stores will be available for the soaping contest with a variety of prizes offered—and adult officials keeping a weather eye on the proceedings.

The idea was presented by Sam Fox, director of recreation, and approved by the council.

At the same time the council designated October 30 as "beggars' night" on the theory that it is better to dispose of all the "mendicants" at once rather than have them tapping on the doors all week.

In other business, Mayor Elizabeth S. Harrington appointed standing committees. The session was the first business meeting of the council since the recent election.

Air Strategy Fight Called Harmful to U. S. Security

Secretary Will Get To Tell His Side, Rep. Vinson Says; Navy Men Hit B-36

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson said yesterday the current air war strategy row threatened national security and asked Congress to hear his side of the story.

His demand came as the Navy continued its attack on what top admirals consider false national defense doctrines approved by Johnson and Pentagon war planners.

Naval technical experts told a House committee that the Air Force's prize B-36 bomber and the entire concept of unescorted intercontinental bombing was a dud.

A-bomb laden B-36's would destroy "harmless people" rather than military targets and most of them wouldn't get through Russian defenses to do even that, the Navy men testified.

Letter to Chairman

Johnson wrote Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee urging that he call himself, former President Hoover, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, "at once."

Vinson has criticized Johnson for trying to "make a record" for economizing by slashing the Navy disproportionately.

In the present open hearing, which Vinson's committee ordered over Johnson's opposition, the admirals have charged: (1) they haven't been able to get a fair hearing of their views before Pentagon chiefs; (2) the "Army-Air Force minded" high command doesn't understand seapower and the capabilities of carrier-based mobile air striking force; (3) the plan to emphasize B-36 intercontinental bombing in the defense program was forced on the country without adequate evaluation of either the weapon or the concept; (4) the B-36 is "unacceptably vulnerable" and the warfare theory unsound.

He'll Be Called, Says Vinson

After receiving Johnson's letter, Vinson told reporters the Secretary will be called before his committee.

"We will call anybody who will help us out," said the Georgian. "We will give them all a hearing, but not in one day. There's the Air Force, the Marine Corps, Mr. Symington (Air Force Secretary)—they'll all get their chance. The Navy is having its chance now. The hearings are proceeding on schedule."

Vinson said he was not now pre-

Mayor Wellinger Of Martinsburg Dies at His Home

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 10 (Spl).—Carl L. Wellinger, 58, serving his first term as mayor of this city, died this afternoon at his home here after a two-week illness.

He was born in Martinsburg and was a retail merchant.

Mayor Wellinger maintained an active interest in a wide variety of civic, fraternal, church and business affairs. He was a thirty-second degree Mason, Shriner, Knight Templar and member of the Loyal Order of Moose. He was widely known as a breeder of rare chickens.

A Democrat, Wellinger was named mayor in 1948 for a two-year term.

Disabled Veteran Hangs Himself; Found by Wife

A disabled, unemployed World War I veteran was found hanging from a closet transom in his home yesterday by his wife when she returned from work at 5:30 p. m.

The man, Ernest Dunford, 55, was unconscious but was pronounced dead 20 minutes later by an Emergency Hospital physician, police reported.

A penciled note on tablet paper for his wife, Ellen, a Government employe, was found nearby. It read:

"This is my own doing. This is a poor way to do it, but I'm sick and I guess this is the best way." It was signed with Dunford's name and three X's.

AFL Elects Green Leader 26th Time

St. Paul, Oct. 10 (AP).—The American Federation of Labor convention today elected 76-year-old William Green to his twenty-sixth straight term as president. All other top officers were re-elected without opposition.

The delegates gave a blanket indorsement to major proposals of the Truman Administration's Fair Deal program. They shouted support for such proposed legislation as national health insurance and expanded social security and jobless pay programs.

For Taft-Hartley Repeal

Delegates put repeal of the Taft-Hartley law down as their primary task for the future, saying in a policy statement:

"If the Eighty-first Congress persists in its refusal to act affirmatively, we are prepared again to take our appeal to the people of this country and to make Taft-Hartley repeal the paramount issue of the 1950 congressional election campaign."

The special plane carrying Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson from Washington for an address to the convention landed in a 70-mile-an-hour windstorm sweeping St. Paul.

Johnson told the delegates that for awhile "it seemed we might not get in" at the airport. The wind ripped some metal roof plates from the convention hall.

Lack of Troop Ships

Another convention speaker, Chairman Philip Fleming of the United States Maritime Commission, said this country has lagged behind others in numbers of ocean-going passenger ships, but is taking steps to build new vessels in the next few years.

But "we would be in a bad way for troop ship tonnage right now should a sudden emergency arise," Fleming said.

The convention adopted an international policy statement condemning communism, and calling on the United States Government to help form an alliance of democratic governments in the Far East and Pacific areas to oppose aggression, similar to the Atlantic Pact.

The statement especially urged "immediate and effective aid" for democratic forces in China. It asked this Government not to permit diplomatic and commercial relations between this country and the Communist-dominated Chinese regime.

Ford Fails To End Big Patent Suit

London, Oct. 10 (U.P.).—Henry Ford 2nd and the millionaire British inventor Harry Ferguson today abandoned their attempt at an out-of-court settlement of Ferguson's $251,000,000 patent infringement suit against the Ford Motor interests.

As the result, Ford and Ferguson announced in separate statements, the suit will be fought to a finish in the United States Federal courts, where it is pending.

Ferguson said the next development will be the taking of a deposition by Ford in New York city, October 24.

Ferguson, long associated with the first Henry Ford, charged the Ford interests in January, 1948, with infringing patents on farm tractors and other farm implements of his invention.

Ferguson also charged the Ford Motor Co. with conspiracy to destroy the firm of Harry Ferguson, Inc. of Detroit.

Ford Promises to Push British Cars in U. S.

London, Oct. 10 (AP).—Henry Ford 2d told workers in his British factory today his United States dealers will do everything possible to increase sales of English-made Fords in the United States.

The young automobile magnate was speaking to shop representatives at the Ford plant in nearby Dagenham. He said, in part:

"Your country must get dollars now . . . and the American Ford Co. and its dealer organization will make every effort to back you up on our side of the Atlantic."

RCA' Full Color TV Demonstrated . . .

RCA Color Television Shown Here for Officials of FCC

By Larry Christopher
Washington Editorial Staff Broadcasting-Telecasting

Another working system of full-color television was demonstrated to Government officials and industry experts yesterday as the Radio Corp. of America unveiled its tightly guarded system of all-electronic color television here. RCA officials claim the system is fully "compatible" and hence will not make obsolete existing black-and-white television.

Revealed for the first time outside the laboratory in closed sessions held at the Washington and Wardman Park Hotels, the RCA system was demonstrated as part of the technical investigation now being made by the Federal Communications Commission into all phases of the new visual medium.

Observers went to the demonstration with eyes critically sharpened by a similar display given last Thursday and Friday by Columbia Broadcasting System at the Hotel Carlton. CBS and RCA are the principal proponents for approval of their respective color systems.

The listening and viewing public, the entire radio-TV industry, business, Government and Congress all have high stakes in the FCC proceeding, too, and are carefully dissecting each new development to see if the dollar sign is for or against them.

Dr. Elmer W. Engstrom, vice president in charge of research for RCA laboratories, described the technical equipment involved and identified the battery of various television receivers. These included direct view three-color (red, green, blue) sets, three-color projection sets and standard black-and-white projection and direct view sets. Special two-color RCA sets also were shown, as well as color converters for black-and-white sets.

The demonstration hall was darkened by special curtains over all windows to simulate normal viewing conditions, RCA said.

A special half-hour entertainment-type program was telecast by RCA-NBC's WNBW using the RCA color system and was received via special antennas on the Washington Hotel roof. Air distance of the transmission was about 2¼ miles.

The program included Gladys Swarthout, who sang the "Habenera" from Carmen. She wore a yellow gown with a ruffled skirt of various hues. Some observers commented the color reproduction appeared rather artificial and varied according to the receiver being observed.

In a dance act, Fred Barry wore a dark burgundy jacket while Susan Barry wore a grey gown with green sash and other colored adornments. Some of the witnesses commented that as the dancers moved about they appeared to step into a red spotlight. Barry's jacket most of the time appeared black. The background for the scenes appeared to vary from shades of dark blue to various lights and darks of green, many noted. A frequent overall green cast, especially in highlights, also was observed.

The demonstration continued with explanation and exhibiting of certain technical principles involved in the color system and in the afternoon a tour of the WNBW studio and transmitting facilities was conducted. Various specialty acts were given there and part of the performance was intermittently transmitted over the air.

Chief criticisms of the RCA demonstration seemed to center on color fidelity and problems of image registration and focus observed at times during the session. Dr. Allen B. DuMont, television manufacturer and broadcaster, who has led the opposition to adoption of color television at this time, said following the RCA showing that he was more firmly "convinced" than ever that color TV is still years away.

Dr. DuMont observed that when black-and-white signals were transmitted by WNBW, at his request, the color receivers reproduced them in different color tints, "with the colors varying on each set." CBS stated it would offer "fundamental criticisms" of the RCA system at further hearing today before FCC.

However, when the RCA tests had ended, FCC commissioners and staff members, as well as other Government and industry observers present, apparently were convinced more firmly than ever that the decision of whether or not to authorize some form of commercial television now will be exceedingly difficult. FCC ruled in 1947 that the technical state of the art was not sufficiently advanced for color. Now they must reconsider.

This is why the problem is complicated. Technical advances of the past two years have put color TV proponents in position to claim they have practical operating systems. However, black-and-white television, already a billion-dollar baby and destined within a few years to sprout into adolescence as one of the Nation's top 10 industries, can't afford to gamble on its investment. Neither can the 2,300,000 families now owning monochrome sets.

Yet public demand for color is reported considerable and color television is likewise said to be inevitable. Thus to protect public interest, Congress and FCC both are pressing industry not to hold out if color is ready and the commission is probing diligently for the facts. FCC wants to know if color TV should be established commercially now, the same as black-and-white, and if so, what system should be made the standard.

In calling the color television portion of its investigation, FCC specified that the systems proposed must operate within 6 megacycles, the same as monochrome, and must be compatible with the present black-and-white service.

Out of Gas, Dust

Earth's Birth Explained in New Theory

Chicago, Oct. 10 (U.P.).—A famed astronomer tonight announced a new theory of the origin of the earth and planets from a sphere of gas and dust rotating around the sun like a giant pancake three billion years ago.

Gerard P. Kuiper of the University of Chicago, discoverer recently of new elements in the solar system, explained his theory to 500 scientists, students and visiting professors here.

Kuiper estimated that the formation took 1000 years and said his theory was based on the first precise linking of modern knowledge of dynamic motion with known astronomical data.

Under his theory, gas and dust formed a rotating ring around the sun and contracted to a thin pancake, much as the rings of Saturn.

The ring rotated in the plane of the present orbits of the planets. Its thickness, Kuiper calculated, was one percent of its diameter, and its mass was half as great as that of the sun.

After a period of time the density of the pancake reached a certain critical value, and broke up into a number of whirling eddies' which Kuiper called "proto-planets." These continued to shrink and condense into the present planets and their satellites.

Kuiper said the critical density of the pancake was not the same in all places, thus according for the difference in density of the various planets.

Fernandez Scores Collier on Indian Bill

Post Reporter

In a slashing attack upon John Collier, former Chief of the Indian Bureau, Representative Antonio M. Fernandez (D., N. Mex.), yesterday defended his amendment to the Navajo-Hopi rehabilitation bill now awaiting action by President Truman.

Collier, now president of the Institute of Ethnic Affairs, Inc., has called for a veto of the measure because of Section 9 (the Fernandez amendment), placing the Navajo and Hopi Indians under State laws as well as Federal and tribal courts.

Terming Collier "intellectually dishonest," Fernandez said Collier "deliberately attempts to mislead" by saying Indians might lose their water rights in the State courts.

Land Title in U. S.

Fernandez said Collier "knows full well that the title to all the reservation lands of the Navajos and Hopis (and this bill applies only to them) is in the Federal Government; that water rights which have been put to beneficial use by the Indians are appurtenant to the land; and that any water rights which may have been impliedly reserved under treaties to the Indians likewise are appendant to the reservation; and that consequently the Federal Government cannot be sued without its consent, and consequently no suit can be brought in any court against the Federal Government for the adjudication of water rights unless the Congress grants that consent.

"This bill does not do that, but Collier deliberately ignores these fundamental principles in his attempt to discredit the bill."

Meanwhile, Will Rogers, jr., former California Congressman and son of the late cowboy humorist, yesterday announced the formation of a new organization to work for "a complete solution of the Indian problem."

Rogers, part Cherokee himself, declined any comment on the pending bill, which the President is expected to approve or veto by October 17.

The new organization, American Restitution and Righting of Old Wrongs, Inc., will be known as Arrow. Its aim, Rogers said, is ultimate assimilation of the Indian, and "as soon as the people are ready" an end of Federal wardship.

Arrow was formed by the Congress of American Indians, Rogers said, and will raise funds to aid in Indian relief and transmit information about educational scholarships available to Indians, as well as distribute information to the public.

Mrs. Yeffe Kimball, an Osage Indian and vice president of Arrow, said approximately one half of all Navajo Indian babies die before reaching the age of 5.

Steel Strike End Sought

been laid off in allied industries by the 22-day-old coal walkout and the 10-day steel strike. Those work stoppages have idled nearly 850,000 workers.

Latest furloughs are reported in Texas. The Consolidated Western Steel Corp., a United States Steel subsidiary, put 500 employes at its Orange, Tex., fabricating plant on a three-day week.

The Levingston Shipbuilding Co., also of Orange, said its 500 workers will work on alternate weeks. Both firms said a lack of steel is responsible.

The big blows are yet to come.

Railroads, utilities and other industries which must have coal to keep going are operating on reserves. But coal stocks generally aren't expected to last more than a week or 10 days before the real pinch comes.

Men who work in steel fabricating plants are even worse off. If the CIO United Steelworkers Union doesn't call a strike against the factories which use raw steel to make finished products, the plants will have to close soon anyway for lack of coal.

Union contracts with fabricators begin expiring this week. The last of them will run out by mid-December. In each case, the union says, it will strike unless the company agrees to free pensions and insurance.

About 380,000 soft coal miners are idle east of the Mississippi River in support of John L. Lewis' fight for a new United Mine Worker contract. He wants higher operator payments into the UMW pension and welfare fund and more pay for a shorter working day.

Congress to Study Cotton Mill Strike

A congressional investigation has been ordered into the almost six-month-old strike at the Hart Cotton Mill of Tarboro, N. C.

A hearing on the dispute between management and the Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, has been scheduled here for October 20 before a House Labor Subcommittee.

The strike of about 500 employes started May 12 after the company was reported to have asked for basic changes in the contract. Union leaders charged the company with "union-busting movements."

Nursing School Bid By Negro Rejected

Baltimore, Oct. 10 (Spl.).—Chief Judge W. Conwell Smith in Superior Court this afternoon dismissed mandamus proceedings through which a Negro girl sought to compel the University of Maryland to admit her to its school of nursing.

Judge Smith ruled that the State of Maryland discharged its constitutional obligation to afford equal educational opportunities to its citizens by offering the young girl a nurse training course at the School of Nursing of Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tenn.

Admission to the nursing school in Baltimore was sought by Miss Esther McCready, 18, last February. In August the university advised her by letter that she would not be admitted to the Maryland school, but that she could attend Meharry at no greater expense than she would undergo at the local nursing school.

The arrangements for her to attend Meharry were made under a regional compact through which about 15 Southern States have agreed to pool their educational facilities so that training which one State is unable to provide may be had in another State offering that course of study, testimony revealed.

The last Maryland Legislature approved the compact.

Charles H. Houston of Washington, chief counsel for Miss McCready, announced that the decision will be appealed immediately.

University officials admitted that the Negro girl was refused admission to the Maryland school because of her race.

Hall Hammond, attorney general of Maryland, and Kenneth C. Proctor, assistant, argued that as long as the Tennessee school offered equal educational opportunities, there was nothing the Negro applicant could complain about. They pointed out that travel costs and other expenses incident to attending the out-of-State school would be taken care of by Maryland.

Houston argued vehemently that the Supreme Court already had decided the issue in a case where the high court disapproved of a plan whereby Missouri would have sent its Negro law students to an out-of-State school.

The judge said he distinguished between a law education and courses in nursing, dentistry or medicine, because there is a peculiar advantage to a student in law taking a course in the State where he intends to practice.

Note Puzzles

Police Seek Vanished Film Actress

JEAN ELIZABETH SPANGLER

Los Angeles, Oct. 10 (AP).—Police today broadcast a bulletin for Miss Jean Elizabeth Spangler, 27-year-old movie bit actress, missing since Friday.

Her ripped handbag and a puzzling note were found in Griffith Park yesterday. Miss Spangler left the apartment she shared with her mother and sister-in-law Friday night. She telephoned later, police said, to say that she would return home that night. She didn't.

The note said, "Can't wait any longer. Going to see Dr. ———. Will work best this way while mother is away." It was addressed to "Kirk," a name unfamiliar to her relatives.

Her mother is visiting in Lexington, Ky.

Miss Spangler, a former chorus girl and dancer, was formerly married to Dexter Benner, 29, plastics manufacturer.

The couple engaged in a bitter custody fight last year over their daughter, Christine, 5.

Pilot's Family of 4 Shot Dead, Pistol Beside Mother-in-Law

Entire family of much decorated pilot found shot to death

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 10 (AP).—The entire family of a much-decorated airlines pilot was found shot to death today. Nearby lay the body of his mother-in-law, a pistol near her hand.

The dead:

Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Finch, 33.
Penelope (Penny) Finch, 8.
Richard Allan Finch, 7.
Mrs. Edith Walker, about 60, mother of Mrs. Finch, of San Antonio.

Mrs. Finch was the estranged wife of Richard Gordon Finch, 37, American Airlines pilot who during the war was operations officer and chief pilot for the North African Division of the Air Transport Command.

Mrs. Finch filed suit for divorce September 16, charging "unkind, arbitrary and abusive treatment." Her attorney, Richard Walker, said when Mrs. Finch and her mother appeared at his office Friday the mother appeared "distraught."

Finch, on leave of absence because of ill health, was in Ann Arbor, Mich., visiting his parents.

The bodies all were clad in sleeping clothes and lay in beds at the modest residence in suburban Oak View Addition. The grandmother, Mrs. Walker, was found in an east bedroom with a .22-caliber Colt automatic pistol about three inches from her hand.

Highest Dahlia Honors Won By Hitchcocks

More than 100 dahlias of every size and color carried off top honors for their owners, Mr. and Mrs. George Hitchcock, at the twenty-third annual Dahlia and Fall Show sponsored last night by the Woodridge Garden Club.

The dahlias, raised by the Hitchcocks at their home on Route 2 in Silver Spring, Md., were placed in competition with more than 1000 other blooms exhibited by 42 gardeners at Sherwood Hall, 22nd st. and Rhode Island ave. ne.

Winning prizes with dahlias is not new with the Hitchcocks, who on September 26 won the highest award offered by the North Capitol Dahlia Society.

Other top winners in last night's show included: L. M. Clark, 2440 Monroe st. ne., whose giant 11-inch red dahlia, "Mrs. Esther Pape" won the blue ribbon for dahlias more than 8 inches in diameter, and Rixey F. Gray, 3046 Monroe st. ne., whose dahlia, the "Producer" was judged best in the 4-to-8-inch class.

A fall flower arrangement by Mrs. M. W. Cogar of 4705 Edmonston ave., Hyattsville, Md., won out over numerous other exhibits in that class but she had to share honors with F. W. Lang of 22 Everett st., Kensington, Md., who scored in the men's arrangement class.

Roses also had a shae in last nght's show and "Edito McFaland," a dusty pink variety, raised by George W. Spangler of Cabin John, Md., was judged best rose in the show. Spangler's other rose entries enabled him to score the highest number of points in the rose class.

Doctors Told Drug Doesn't Cure Leukemia

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Old Point Comfort, Va., Oct. 19. Aminopterin, a laboratory-produced drug, can add months to the lives of leukemia victims, but cannot save them, it was declared here today.

Dr. F. C. McCall of Bristol, Tenn., reported his temporary successes and ultimate failures in the use of the new synthetic drug to 500 doctors attending the 102d annual conference of the Medical Society of Virginia. His findings as to the value and limitations of aminopeterin, he said, closely paralled those of other investigators who are testing it clinically throughout the country.

Kept Alive 18 Months

Dr. McCall reported that in his own practice and in work with Dr. J. H. Scherer, hematologist at the Medical College of Virginia at Richmond, one girl victim of the deadly blood cancer was kept alive 18 months with aminoperin. Normally the disease runs its fatal course in three to six months. Six other patients under his care, he reported, were less benefitted by the drug, but did survive one to four months longer than could have been expected without the treatment.

Of the seven cases reported on, he said five of the youngsters are dead. The two still living include the 5-year-old girl who survived 18 months and a relatively new case.

How Leukemia Kills

Leukemia, believed by some investigators to be a deficiency disease rather than cancer, is an explosive overproduction of immature white blood cells. The condition chokes off normal tissue growth, which kills the victim.

Aminopterian, explained Dr. McCall, has some repressive effect on the riotous production of the cells but does not blank it out.

Dr. John T. Stevens of Richmond, in discussing Dr. McCall's report, compared leukemia to a wild fire which amniopterin can dampen temporarily but cannot extinguish. He pointed out, too, that not all leukemia victims can tolerate the drug. Its toxic effects, said Dr. Stevens, include nausea, diarrhea and internal hemorrhage.

Aminopterin, a powder in its laboratory form, is administered generally by mouth but can be put in solution and injected, Dr. McCall said. Its administration, he said, requires careful blood checking by a hematologist for optimum results.

The disease is fortunately not a common one but still rates as the greatest cancer cause of death in the young.

Dr. Rucker's address, though prepared by himself, was delivered by Dr. Charles L. Outland of Richmond, the society's vice president. The venerable president suffered a heart attack a week ago and has been unable to attend this annual meeting.

A proposal to telephone his speech from his bedside was vetoed by his physician because of the seriousness of his condition.

50 Year Doctors Honored

By a Post Reporter

Old Point Comfort, Va., Oct. 10. Dr. W. C. Welburn, Arlington county coroner, was initiated tonight with 17 other physicians into the 50-year-old Club of the Medical Society of Virginia. The organization comprises those Virginia woctors who have practiced medicine for 50 years or more.

Other physicians similarly honored included Dr. Archibald Osborne of Berryville; Dr. Howard Armstrong of Harrisonburg; Dr. Edwin Jones Nixen of Petersburg; Dr. Tremain Ernest Armstrong of Hopewell; Dr. William Thomas McLemore and Emmett F. Reese, jr., both of Curtland; Dr. George Edward Barksdale and George Washington Ga. jr., both of Richmond; Dr. J. Gates Goode of Cheriton; Dr. John Calvin Cutler and Dr. Ernest R. Martin of Newport News; Dr. Arthur Joseph Edwards of Bristol; Dr. Robert W. Holly of Appalachia; Dr. Benjamin C. Moomaw of Roanoke; Dr. John Cary Sleet of Norfolk; Dr. Belmont Woodson of Yowesville, and Dr. Chichester Tapscott Pierce of Nuttsville.

mine if the stains are blood, and if so, if the shirt can be identified as to ownership.

4. A boy described by Harrison's mother, Mrs. Marie Walker, as "Tony," with whom her dead son was friendly, could not be found. Mrs. Walker said the boys told her that "Tony" lived in Rosslyn but attended the Briggs-Montgomery School. A search there disclosed no Rosslyn students and no "Tony."

5. Scores of other children who attend Briggs-Montgomery School, as well as other children living in the general vicinity, were questioned for leads without avail.

6. Police awaited the expected return from New York of a schoolboy "pal" of Harrison's. That boy's aunt took him to New York City Friday on a short visit. Officers hope he can furnish them with leads.

7. By last night, more than 30 adults, mostly men who live in, or frequent, the general neighborhood or the park area, had been questioned.

Harrison lived with his widowed mother and seven brothers and sisters at 2454 Snow's ct. nw. This is an alley settlement, about four blocks from the scene of the killing.

From location of Harrison's clothing, and bloodstains on rocks, police believe that the actual killing took place under the Pennsylvania ave. bridge which crosses high above Rock Creek and Rock Creek pkwy. The body was found floating in the creek under a low-level bridge, about 125 yards downstream. This bridge carries the parkway across the creek.

Dr. Richard M. Rosenberg, deputy District Coroner, who performed an autopsy, said the boy had been stabbed 17 times, his skull fractured in four places, and that he had been sexually abused.

Killing of Harrison spread new alarm among residents of the area bordering lower Rock Creek Park on both sides. Within six blocks of the spot where the boy was slain, Miss Frances Erickson, a 34-year-old architect, was stabbed to death in 1944, and that murder has never been solved.

Even closer, a 24-year-old woman was raped last June 1, while her male companion lay bound and helpless nearby after being robbed by an armed man.

A month later a Park Police scout car frightened off an armed man who had forced a girl and her soldier escort from their parked auto in the vicinity.

In December, 1948, a man was arrested and identified by three women as the one who had attacked them munity business buildings were reported from all sections of the State. A 45,000-bushel grain bin was destroyed at Maquoketa, and another was damaged.

Wisconsin had 65-mile winds and power disruptions.

Debris blocked roads over a wide area, and a Papillion (Nebr.) farmer was electrocuted when his truck crashed into a downed power line just outside of Omaha.

In Illinois, winds reached 40-mile velocity at Chicago—enough to send a rotted tree crashing into a school yard where it killed a 7-year-old girl and critically hurt her playmate, 6. The Weather Bureau predicted winds on the open Lake Michigan reaches would hit 75 miles an hour.

The low-pressure area was moving northeastward, indicating it would stir fairly heavy winds in northern Ohio and Pennsylvania and western New York.

But it was heat, not wind, that plagued residents of the Great Lakes, Ohio Valley and Atlantic Coast areas.

The October heat wave hit Newark a second day with a record high mark. In addition to Monday's 92, Sunday's 84 was an all time top for the date. New York City reported a record of 88.

Other records: Rochester, N. Y., 88; Pittsburgh, 87; Cleveland, 86; Philadelphia, 84; Buffalo, N. Y., and Quincy, Mass., 85, and Portland, Me., 81.

Relief was expected by the weekend.

The midwest winds followed a series of tornadoes in the Plains Sunday night which killed one woman and injured several. Heary rain early Sunday washed out a section of rails of the Rock Island lines near Meade, Kans., derailing a train with loss of five lives and injuries to 50 persons.

A freight plane, ordered to avoid Denver because of rain and fog Sunday night crashed near Cheyenne, Wyo., killing its three crewmen.

Secretary Johnson Asks for Hearing

pared to set a date for testimony of those Johnson asked to be called. Presumably the latter expects Eisenhower and the Army and Air Force members of the joint chiefs to support his actions dealing with the Navy.

"I have been following with much interest the hearings which your committee is currently conducting," Johnson wrote Vinson. "I am sure that you share with me the conviction that this controversy could, under some circumstances, do grave damage to our national security."

At the same time, Johnson, in a speech prepared for delivery in St. Paul, Minn., repeated an earlier charge that "some partisans" in the Navy are conducting a "campaign of terror" against unification.

Taking note of recent "public discussion," he quoted from a June speech denying that he planned "either to sink the Navy's air arm or reduce the Navy to a second-class role."

The United Press reported from St. Paul that Johnson deleted some of his references to Navy partisans in the actual delivery of the speech, but said afterward it was due to lack of time and that all his remarks in the prepared draft "still stood."

House Backs Big Air Force

Meanwhile the House again voted overwhelmingly in support of a larger Air Force. By a roll call tally of 305 to 1, it refused to accept a Senate cut of 735 million dollars in the 1950 military appropriation bill, which would provide a 48 instead of 58 group Air Force.

Vinson and other members of the House Armed Services Committee, who have indicated support of the Navy in its "revolt" against Pentagon policies, backed the action. Unless the Senate accepts the House stand—which is unlikely—the money bill goes back to a conference committee.

The testimony on the vulnerability and bombing accuracy of the B-36 came from six Navy witnesses. Mostly young commanders who are expert technicians in various lines, they supported the declaration of Admiral Arthur W. Radford last week that the Air Force bomber is a "billion-dollar blunder."

Comdr. Eugene Tatom, in charge of aerial bombing problems in the Bureau of Ordnance, had committeemen leaning forward with questions ready when he finished reading a prepared statement belittling the effect of the atomic bomb.

Tatom was insisting that "precision bombing of military targets deep in enemy territory from 40,000 feet at night or in daylight is a myth."

Bomb Damage Discounted

Most people, he said, are of the opinion that the destructive effect of an A-bomb is so widespread that accurate bombing is unnecessary. This concept, Tatom added, "is completely erroneous."

"You could stand in the open at one end of the North-South runway at the Washington National Airport, with no more protection than the clothes you now have on, and have an atom bomb explode at the other end of the runway without serious injury to you."

The runway is a little over a mile and a quarter long (6855 feet).

Chairman Vinson recessed the hearing before Tatom could be questioned, as debate on the military appropriations bill was beginning on the floor. He told the officer to return this morning, saying he wanted to ask "how was it then so many people were killed at Hiroshima."

Tatom evidently was dramatizing conclusions reported by the United States Atomic Energy Commission that casualties from atomic explosions "drop off sharply" a mile and a sixth from the point of impact.

The naval officer also mentioned the question raised by Admiral Radford last week, of the prospect of killing large numbers of civilians in striking at military objects. In order to hit the latter from 40,000 feet, Tatom declared, an area would have to be "saturated" with A-bombs.

"While no one accuses our Air Force strategists of setting out deliberately again to destroy harmless people and the basis of their postwar economy," he went on, "the very nature of the problem of hitting military targets in and around cities from high altitude bombing is such that indiscriminate destruction of urban areas and population will certainly follow if this form of attack is used."

In backing its own conferees on the 1950 military appropriations bill, the House also voted 350 to 0 against Senate-proposed cuts in the stockpiling program. Majority Leader John McCormack (D., Mass.) said President Truman had written him urging that the 275-million-dollar reduction in critical materials buying be defeated.

The House also served notice it will not approve a Senate proposal to give Secretary Johnson blanket authority to trim $434 million dollars from the 1950 funds. Instead they insisted on an itemized slash of $238,584,000, previously approved by the House.

Johnson's St. Paul speech quoted from his June address to the National War College in which he spelled out his views on the roles and missions of the Navy. In it he declared the Fleet with its airpower and Marines should be maintained to control the seas, but gave no backing to Navy concepts that its carriers can provide "mobile airpower in parts of the world which cannot be reached otherwise."

Comdr. A. B. Metsger, former chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics fighter design section, told the committee the B-36 is "definitely vulnerable" to modern jet fighters even when "operating at sprint performance" with its piston and jet engines.

Russian jet craft are capable of the job, he said. Metsger said that one reason for the "excellence" of Soviet fighters is that there is an independent air defense command in the USSR. He referred to criticism of Air Force "subordination of fighters" in favor of big bombers.

Bombers, and particularly the B-36, he insisted, will suffer "disastrous losses" without escorting fighters.

Abraham Hyatt, civilian head of Navy's aviation design research branch, declared that unescorted B-36s over Russia will suffer three times the losses our escorted B-17s did over Germany after Schweinfurt showed that bombers had to have accompanying fighters on deep missions into the Reich.

He used charts and statistics to make these points: (1) that to fly a deep penetration mission of 4000 miles radius, the B-36 must fly a major portion of the way over enemy territory at the "suicidal" altitude and speed of 23,000 feet and 235 miles an hour; (2) if the B-36 is to travel 1000 miles in and out from its target at 40,000 feet and 440 miles an hour, its radius is only 2800 miles.

Commander William N. Leonard, commander of a Navy Banshee squadron, declared that his fighters have made "kill after kill" above 40,000 feet of targets faster and more difficult to intercept than the B-36—other Banshees.

Commander William I. Martin, a night and all-weather fighter plane expert, said the B-36 is the "best possible radar target" at night. Faced by modern fighters, it's "like a moving van trying to outrun a racing car."

Figl Due to Remain Austrian Chancellor

Vienna, Oct. 10 (AP).—Chancellor Leopold Figl of the Ring-Wing People's Party will remain head of the Austrian government, a spokesman of his party said tonight.

The statement was made after a meeting of leaders of the People's Party which with the Socialists elected 144 members to the 165-seat Parliament in Sunday's general voting.

Both parties have pledged to continue the coalition by which they have governed the country since 1945.

Both parties lost ground in a swing to the right which appealed to former Nazis for votes.

The final official returns (1945 figures in brackets) showed:

People's Party—1,844,850 popular votes (1,602,244); 77 Parliament seats (85).

Socialists—1,621,275 (1,434,894); 67 seats (76).

League—489,132; 16 seats.

Communists—212,651 (174,257); 5 seats (4).

Democratic Union—12,167, no seats.

Officers Jailed

Czech Purge Reaches Into Army Ranks

Prague, Oct. 10 (AP).—The long arm of Czechoslovakia's purge-busy security police has reached once more into the army, reliable informants said tonight, and has jailed numerous officers on charges of high treason.

Other informants said 40 more Roman Catholic priests and nuns had been arrested on the nation's blistering church-state front. More than 300 are now said to be in Czech jails for opposing a proposed bill placing local Communist government control over all churches.

And on the "class warfare" front the roundup of thousands of "bourgeois," made up mostly of small businessmen and professionals, was reported to be continuing, but on a diminishing scale.

(The British Foreign Office said it had reports 100 to 200 Czech government employes also had been arrested in the last nine days.)

None of these waves of arrest has been officially reported in the Czech government-controlled press. But diplomats predicted that when the purge has been completed the government will announce it has liquidated a huge underground movement.

A reliable source said a Colonel Korda, former chief of the military school at Hranice, Moravia, and a Lieutenant Hacha had been sentenced to life imprisonment for high treason and that five co-defendants received lesser terms in a recent trial.

Other sources reported that numerous army officers had been arrested at Olomouc, also in Moravia, as "political unreliables."

Czech Priests Told to Fight Church Law

Prague, Oct. 10 (U.P.).—Archbishop Josef Beran appealed today to Roman Catholic priests to oppose the Czechoslovak government's new church law and "not be bought for the silver of Judas."

The archbishop's message was made public as the controversial church bill was approved by a special committee of the National Assembly, en route to passage before November 1.

The bill would reduce priests to the status of civil servants. The Assembly will convene Friday and take it up on an "urgent basis."

Church sources said the archbishop, who has been by his own declaration "interned" in his place since June, had sent a message to the priests warning that public consent to the new law would be "treason to the teachings of Christ and the Holy Church."

The church statement containing his message said that "within the past few days" about 40 vicars and deans in Bohemia and Moravia have been arrested for opposing the bill.

Another church statement said "the number of jailed priests runs into many hundreds."

Woman Patient Hangs Self at St. Elizabeths

Mrs. Estelle Reed, 44, a patient in St. Elizabeths Hospital, early yesterday hanged herself in a ward at the institution.

She was found by an attendant at 6:30 a.m. She had fashioned a rope from gauze and strips torn from her dress. This she had fastened to the lower end of the bed looping the far end of the rope around her neck.

She then apparently flung herself to the floor. A certificate of suicide was issued by Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District Coroner.

Strong Note Sent

U. S. Protests Czech Jailing Of Student

Prague, Oct. 10 (U.P.).—The United States Embassy has demanded that the Czechoslovak government punish police officials who seized an American student and held him for five days. It was announced today.

The embassy in a strong protest note to the Czech Foreign Ministry, termed "outrageous and high-handed" police treatment of Savel Kliachko of Palo Alto, California.

It demanded "punishment for all those responsible, particularly officials responsible for endangering Kliachko's life by forcing him to ride in an automobile driven by an intoxicated chauffer."

The note said Kliachko, a student at Charles University in Prague, had been arrested without charge on September 28 and held incommunicado until October 4.

Rule of Red Army To End in Germany

Truman Approves

MacArthur Presence Here Asked

By Robert S. Allen

Army Chief of Staff J. Lawton Collins is taking an extraordinary message to General Douglas MacArthur.

It is a Truman-approved request of the Joints Chiefs of Staff that MacArthur come to Washington next month for a series of high-level conferences.

This is the first time these quarters have sent such a request to MacArthur.

It is not an order. He can decline. But this is deemed unlikely due to the fact the invitation bears the personal approval of President Truman. Informally, this amounts to a "command appearance."

In the past, proposals for MacArthur's return have emanated from partisan congressional sources. Collins' message is of an entirely different nature. Behind it, are three major problems on which State Department and Pentagon chiefs want MacArthur's views.

They are, (1) a Jap peace treaty, (2) relations with the new Chinese Communist government, (3) the over-all military situation.

General Collins is going to the Far East for a first-hand survey. His itinerary includes Korea and Hongkong. MacArthur's visit to the United States would be only of short duration. After the proposed conferences, he would return to Tokyo as occupation commander.

Berlin, Oct. 10 (AP).—Russia, on the eve of a big Communist rally for the new Soviet-sponsored East German Republic, announced formally tonight she is replacing military rule in her occupation zone with a control commission.

The announcement said "administrative functions" in her zone will be transferred to the provisional government for the East German Democratic (Communist) Republic.

The United States, Britain and France replaced their military governors with high commissioners last month. The Western occupying powers also have turned over many functions they previously performed to the new West German government at Bonn.

In a statement today, the Western high commissioners declared the new East German government was illegal and an "artificial creation" which has no right to speak for either Eastern or Western Germans. Last week the Russians charged the Western powers had broken their previous pledges to unify Germany by setting up the Bonn government.

The Russian move came as no surprise. Taegliche Rundschau, official Soviet newspaper in Berlin, had said Friday the Russian authorities would make a sweeping renunciation of occupation rights

Diplomats Desert Chiang

Paris, Oct. 10 (AP).—Chinese diplomatic staff members here deserted to the Communist regime at Peiping today and called on Chinese diplomats throughout the world to follow their example.

George Mong, embassy counselor, announced that 11 diplomats—eight from the embassy and three from the consulate general—had walked out on Chiang Kai-shek and the Kuomintang Nationalist government at Canton. He said this left only a sick ambassador, a charge d'affaires and the consul general loyal to Canton, and that the rebels were taking charge of the embassy and its archives.

Other sources differed on the number of diplomats who deserted, however.

The French Foreign Ministry said Charge d'Affaires Tuan Mao-lan had informed it only six officials had switched loyalties. Later, in a communique issued through the French news agency, Tuan said only two Chinese officials had been dismissed for insubordination and everyone else was sticking loyally to his post. He could not be reached to clear up the conflicting accounts.

Officials of the French Foreign Ministry's Asiatic Affairs Section met for several hours. Finally, a spokesman for the Ministry announced that it was backing up the Nationalists and was striking the dissident Chinese off its diplomatic list.

Aims Cut Plan in Offing

Lake Success, Oct. 10 (AP).—Russia will place some new arms reduction proposals before the Security Council Tuesday. Western delegates were not hopeful tonight that they will reflect any important shift in Soviet policy.

Western skepticism was aroused more by the general attitude of Soviet delegates in United Nations debate than by any knowledge as to the nature of the new Soviet proposals. The Russians are keeping their plans secret.

Old Policy Followed

Jacob A. Malik, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, told the 11-nation Security Council after his return from Moscow last week that Russia had some new proposals on the long-debated arms reduction question. He said he would have the proposals ready by Tuesday. Later he told reporters his new program would be consistent with previous Soviet policy.

Since then Soviet delegates in the General Assembly have continued their attacks on the United States. They have shown no indications of being any more conciliatory than in the past.

United States Accused

Today in the Assembly's special political committee, for example, Ukrainian Foreign Minister Dmitri Z. Manuilsky accused the United States and Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York of conspiring with Josef Cardinal Mindszenty in a plot to overthrow the Communist government of Hungary.

At the same time, Soviet Delegate Amazasp A. Arutiunian declared in the Economic Committee that President Truman's Point Four program to aid backward areas is a "supplement to military and strategic plans being hatched to secure world domination."

Reds Occupy Town During Canton Push

Canton, China, Oct. 10 (AP).—Private reports said tonight the Communists had occupied the railway town of Yingtak, 75 miles north of this doomed Nationalist Chinese capital. The Nationalists abandoned Yingtak several days ago.

On this gloomy thirty-eighth anniversary of the Chinese Republic, the government informed foreign diplomats that full-scale removal of personnel to Chungking would start Tuesday.

The Foreign Office chief of protocol took the diplomats aside individually at an "Independence Day" reception and told them chartered planes would be available for all who wished to accompany the government. Several of the 11 foreign missions indicated they intended to go to British Hongkong and visit Chungking later.

The Russians, notably absent since their government severed relations with the Nationalists and recognized the Red regime of Peiping, were handed their passports.

The "Double Tenth" holiday—tenth day of the tenth month, on which the revolt against the Manchu Dynasty began in 1911—was observed throughout Nationalist territory. Troops in trucks paraded through flag-decked Canton.

Premier Yen Hsi-shan and other government notables issued statements vowing to fight on until victory was won over the Reds.

About 50 Americans intend to remain in Canton after the Nationalists leave. They are mostly missionaries and educators. Not a single American businessman remains. The Standard Vacuum and Caltex Oil Companies are continuing to operate, but with exclusively Chinese staffs.

Pact High Command Holds Closed Session

By The Associated Press

The military high command for the Atlantic Defense Pact nations—officially called "the standing group"—held its first meeting yesterday to discuss problems of mutual security.

The members are Gen. Sir William Morgan of Britain, Lieut. Gen. Paul Ely of France and Gen. Omar N. Bradley of the United States.

The scene was a closely-guarded section of the Pentagon Building. Doors to corridors leading into the area are bolted and chained.

Hearings Set On State of A-Defenses

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

A congressional group decided yesterday it is high time to inquire into the state of American civilian defenses against an atomic attack.

In view of Russia's unexpectedly early achievement of an atomic explosion, the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy scheduled open hearing for next week on measures for public protection.

A commentary on the state of civilian defense activities and planning—or the lack of them—is the fact that the committee as yet has no idea of what witnesses to hail before it.

Press inquiries as to probable nature of the hearings revealed that the immediate problem facing the committee is to find where, if at all, Government planning has been done on civilian atomic defense.

Meeting With Commission

As a start, the committee will meet in closed session with the Atomic Energy Commission to get a preliminary view of the situation.

In announcing the hearings, Committee Chairman Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) said the Russian explosion "makes it imperative that we get about the business of planning and hurrying up sensible measures" of defense.

Acting on another problem before his committee yesterday, McMahon set up a subcommittee to hurry up final action on charges against the AEC last summer of "incredible mismanagement."

The subcommittee, consisting of McMahon and Representatives Durham (D., N. C.) and Hinshaw (R., Calif.), will work over a draft report originally prepared by the first two. It analyzes long hearings which were held on the charges and comes to the conclusion that the allegations were unjustified.

No Breach in GOP Ranks

Republican members of the committee take an exactly opposite view. Hinshaw's presence on the subcommittee, it was learned, does not mean that McMahon has breached the Republican ranks or won any support from them on his and Durham's point of view.

Accordingly, another party line vote is expected Wednesday, when the committee will reconvene to decide on the draft report. Although McMahon won a previous test vote on ending hearings on the charges, it is by no means certain he will win majority support for his report.

Rusk Warns Against Red 'Peace' Moves

Boston, Oct. 10 (Spl.).—A high State Department official warned the American people today not to be misled by what he called "a world-wide peace offensive by the Soviet Union."

"There has been considerable talk of the need for an 'agreement' with the Soviet Union," Dean Rusk, Deputy Secretary of State, told a businessmen's conference here.

"If by 'agreement' is meant a settlement of the particular points at issue between us at any one time, we are ready to do what we can to reach such settlements in the proper forum.

"But if it is supposed that our problem would be met by a new over-all pact with the Soviet Union, then the nature of the problem is not fully understood. Basically, what we need is not a new 'agreement' but performance on the agreements we already have.

"The main issue of peace is the issue of aggression—direct aggression by armed forces across national frontiers as well as indirect aggression by subversion, infiltration, intimidation and sabotage. This is in no sense an issue between the United States and the Soviet Union. It is an issue between the Soviet and the rest of the world."

For this reason, said Rusk, "it becomes important that the rest of the world be strong enough to leave a possible aggressor in no doubt but that aggression will result in disaster to its instigator."

Carillon Bill Moved

The House yesterday approved and sent to the Senate a bill to authorize erection of a carillon in Arlington Cemetery, to be built, operated and maintained by the Amvets.

Moch Reports Some Agreement In Try for French Coalition

Paris, Oct. 10 (AP).—Interior Minister Jules Moch reported to President Vincent Auriol tonight on the former's three-day effort to reform France's middle-of-the-road coalition government.

Informants said Moch told the President his formula for a wage program—the issue which caused the government headed by Henri Queuille to resign—had been accepted by all save right-wing Popular Republican Party of Liberal agrarians and independents.

Auriol will confer Tuesday with representatives of the three parties and then decide to ask Moch whether to try to form a government.

The coalition government broke up last week when Premier Henri Queuille resigned. It included Socialists, Left-wing Catholics, the Moderate Radical Socialists, peasants and some independents.

Delegates from this majority met at the interior ministry today and heard Moch, a Socialist, present his plan to raise "abnormally low" wages. Politicians emerging from the meeting said he had the support only of the Socialists and Catholics.

The right wing of the coalition, including former Premier Paul Reynaud, was reported to have refused him its support. Without it, Moch is expected to refuse to undertake to form a new government.

Those who attended the meeting reported Moch wanted to give a 3000-franc ($8.57) raise to all workers in private industry earning less than 13,000 francs ($42.85) a month.

Reynaud is said to have argued that this would cause 900,000 French government employes to demand increases and that the government could not afford them.

Despite Marshal Plan aid, the delegates reported him as saying France has a 250-billion-franc (714 million dollars) budget deficit this year and would have twice as big a one next year.

Labor Party Leading in Norway Vote

Oslo, Norway, Oct. 10 (U.P.).—The government Labor (Social Democratic) Party, which now holds a one-vote majority in Parliament, took an early lead tonight in returns from the country's first parliamentary election since 1945.

Unofficial totals late tonight were:

Labor, 98,300 votes; Liberals, 40,900; Christian People's Party, 34,100; Conservative Agrarians, 29,400; Agrarians, 26,100; Conservatives, 14,100; Communists, 5900 and Social Party 1529.

Come Look at All Three with Dynaflow Drive

SEE and HEAR OLSEN and JOHNSON'S FIREBALL FUN-FOR-ALL every Thursday on Television

ONLY one make of car in all the land can give you the sweet 'n' easy luxury of Dynaflow Drive†—and that's Buick.

But look how much territory that takes in—how many different-sized budgets can now afford the only drive with neither a clutch pedal nor gears that shift.

You can have Dynaflow as optional equipment on the tidy, sparkling new Buick SPECIAL, with its traffic-handy size, stepped-up roominess, and bold new front-end treatment.

You can have it, again as optional equipment, on the neat and nimble SUPER, with its sleek lines, 110 or 120 horsepower Fireball power plant, and triple Ventiports.

And of course Dynaflow is standard equipment on that best buy among fine cars, the magnificent ROADMASTER. There it combines, with matchless ride, the stirring lift of 150 Fireball horsepower and truly regal size and bearing.

So look at the SPECIAL, the SUPER and ROADMASTER, three Buicks that match almost any price range you have in mind—and remember that all of them offer the added enjoyment of Dynaflow Drive.

On every one it is the same silky, sweet-handling delight. On every one it cuts driving effort to the minimum, takes tension out of traffic, brings you to the end of day-long drives with surprising freshness and relaxation.

Sooner or later we predict that you'll join the army of car owners who wouldn't think of passing up what Dynaflow has to offer.

Why be among the late-comers? Your Buick dealer will be tickled to show you how quickly and how easily you can have Dynaflow to enjoy—right now!

†Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

BUICK alone has all these features
Silk-Smooth DYNAFLOW DRIVE* • FULL-VIEW VISION from enlarged glass area • SWING-EASY DOORS and easy access • "LIVING SPACE" INTERIORS with Deep-Cradle cushions • Buoyant-riding QUADRUFLEX COIL SPRINGING • Lively FIREBALL STRAIGHT-EIGHT POWER with SELF-SETTING VALVE LIFTERS (Dynaflow Models) plus HI-POISED ENGINE MOUNTINGS • Low-pressure tires on SAFETY-RIDE RIMS • Double-Duty VENTIPORTS • DUREX BEARINGS, main and connecting rods • BODY BY FISHER

World Fund Lets Tito Have $3 Million

The World Monetary Fund yesterday provided three million dollars in United States currency for Yugoslavia, the first aid it has given to that country.

The action follows by a few weeks a 20-million-dollar loan to that country by the United States and a United States Government clearance for shipment of a three million dollar steel mill to Yugoslavia.

Those steps were aimed at bolstering Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito in his quarrel with Russia.

The Fund's aid to Yugoslavia may be a hint of the action to be taken by the Fund's sister institution, the World Bank, on a Yugoslavian loan application.

The United States, as the biggest subscriber of capital, wields a powerful voice in the councils of both organizations.

The Fund's arrangement with Yugoslavia, for which the institution uses the technical term of a "transaction in exchange," is in effect a loan of United States dollars on the security of an equivalent amount in Yugoslavian currency (dinars) at official exchange rates.

Technically, Yugoslavia "purchased" the dollars with its own paper money. It is required to "repurchase" or pay back—the Yugoslavian money at some point, not specified, with United States dollars it acquires from other sources, including trade with this country.

Yugoslavia also will have to pay interest on the "purchased" dollars, and the interest rate will increase according to the length of time that passes before repayment.

The Fund's announcement of the transaction came in a report on its September activities.

World Bank Sending 4 on Brazil Mission

By the United Press

The International Bank announced yesterday it is sending a four-man economic mission to Brazil this week, preliminary to another possible loan.

The group will arrive in Rio de Janeiro Saturday, and remain in Brazil four to six weeks. It is headed by Richard H. Demoth, assistant to the vice president of the bank. Other members are Dr. Harold W. Larsen and Newton B. Parker, economic department, and Sidney P. Wheelock, loan department.

The bank last January granted 75 million dollars to the Brazilian Traction, Light & Power Co., Ltd. It said that since then various official and private interests have discussed the possibility of another loan for several development projects.

The mission will study "general economic and financial conditions in the country with a view to enabling the bank to form a judgment as to the amount of additional external debt Brazil can properly assume within the next few years.

U. S. to Slash Many Tariffs

short countries have put import quotas and other quantitative restrictions on the buying of American goods.

Within Europe tariffs are not and have not been an appreciable obstacle to trade. The real obstacles within Europe have been import quotas and the difficulty of making payments from one currency to another.

Here are some of the imports on which American customs duties will be cut in half:

Olive oil, an important product of Italy and Greece, of which the United States bought $15,500,000 worth last year. The rate on packages over 40 pounds is halved; on packages less than 40 pounds it is cut by about 40 percent.

Industrial molasses, of which the Dominican Republic has been the United States' second largest supplier. Cuba has long enjoyed a preferential rate on this product; the rate for the Dominican Republic and other countries is now brought almost down to the Cuban level.

Cigarette leaf tobacco, for blending in American cigarettes; also cigar leaf, for filler. On these, too, the 50 percent reduction brings the rates almost as low as the preferential rate given Cuba.

A wide range of Italian specialties, including accordions and concertinas, marble and travertine stone, cotton quilts and bedspreads, woven silk fabrics, leather book covers, and works of art.

High-grade steel products, including cutlery, chiefly from Sweden; wrapping paper from Finland and Sweden; ornamental glass, a famous Swedish product, and plywood from Sweden and Finland.

Despite the protests of American lemon growers, who brought their complaints to President Truman last month, the tariff on Italian (and other foreign) lemons is cut in half. The lemons imported at the low rate may not be more in any year than 5 percent of the American crop in the preceding year.

Foreign butter, too, will be admitted at half the former rate of duty. Denmark and New Zealand will benefit from the new rate of 7 cents a pound, but the total imports into the United States may not exceed 10 million pounds in any year.

Welcome To Nehru

The arrival of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru in the Capital today will be an event of great import in the relations between East and West. Nehru comes as Prime Minister and Minister of External Affairs of India. But these titles do less than justice to his prestige in his own country. He is a founding father, second only to Gandhi in the people's veneration. He wears a halo in his own lifetime—more or less like Mannerheim's in Finland or Masaryk's in Czechoslovakia. Neither's problems, of course, could compare with Nehru's, either in complexity or scope. Within India a sixth of the human race live, divided into innumerable classes and minorities. Nehru's task is to weld them into a single whole in a state based upon the liberal tradition. It is a mammoth undertaking—one that is complicated by the fact that India is still bedeviled by the border problems left by the partition with Pakistan, but one which has shown so much progress that that very fact has given Nehru a towering stature beyond the confines of his own country.

Few men in charge of great affairs are more gifted than Nehru. Pandit means learned one, given to all Kashmiri Brahmins, to which his family belongs; but the honorific suits the mind of Nehru as well as his pedigree. Incidentally, Nehru's lineage doubtless explains an attitude toward the allegiance of Kashmir which would otherwise be incomprehensible. Kashmir is a major issue in India-Pakistan relations, but a man of Nehru's great authority could dispose of this problem without inviting much trouble from his own constituency. There is a precedent in this respect in his adroit handling of the issue over separation from the British crown. Equipped to act according to his own lights, he severed the link, and then agreed to a new link through the Commonwealth. The solution was as brilliant as it was statesmanlike. India is as free as any country in the world, and exercised its sovereignty to become a member of a new community. Nehru by this act demonstrated not only the hold he has on the Indian people, but also the kinship he recognizes between his love of country and love of mankind.

The unique leadership exercised by Nehru is at once hierarchic and democratic. He knows the "art of being a king." At the same time he has a common touch which excites the sympathy of all kinds and conditions of India's population. He can stir millions with pen or tongue. This is the man we are now going to see. We want to know him, and we want him to know us, partly because of his own dynamic personality, partly because he has a contribution to make to world pacification. His vast country is an island in a continent of turmoil which makes the truth hard to discern. It would be the part of wisdom to listen to what he has to say on how to deal with Asia. His reading should tell him that the people of this country has its anti-Colonial past in its marrow, and his look at us—hurried and kaleidoscopic, though it is being made to be by the schedule-makers—may, let it be hoped, show him some of the folkways of America, where the good life is being lived.

Farm Stopgap

Increasingly it looks as if nothing but a stopgap agricultural law will emerge from this session of Congress. The Senate commendably has reversed its decision to cripple the flexible Anderson bill by broadening and making permanent the rigid 90 percent of parity price supports. But the Senate still has to vote on the Anderson bill as a whole, and a bevy of amendments promises a considerable display of fireworks when the vote does come. Moreover, even in unamended form the Anderson bill would continue 90 percent support for one year before instituting a sliding scale, and the House already has voted to extend 90 percent supports. Thus the best that can be hoped for is another postponement of the sliding scale which already is on the books in the Aiken law.

Nothing along the line of more reasonable price supports is likely to emerge from today's conference between President Truman and legislative leaders, for Mr. Truman has pledged himself to the Brannan Plan. Meanwhile Senator Elmer Thomas indicates that he may introduce the Brannan Plan for consideration, a move which is abetted by some Republicans who would welcome an opportunity to squelch the Administration plan by actual Senate vote.

The danger of a continuation of rigid price supports is illustrated by the Magnuson amendment to the Anderson bill. This amendment would restrict imports whenever they would interfere with the farm aid program. Such a limitation would of course fly in the face of efforts to increase imports and broaden international trade. But the fact that is has been offered highlights the inconsistency of paying out huge sums on rigid price supports which have the effect of encouraging overproduction in this country at the same time that other large sums are being spent on the revival of foreign economies which depend on trade.

Sooner or later the issue of inconsistent rational economic policies will have to be met. It is no less necessary to face the issue of discrimination among the Nation's economic groups. Legislators themselves ought to sense the growing public resentment over the outrageous inequities of the present type of class legislation. We suspect that farmers have sensed this resentment even if Congress has not, and that rigid price supports represent not so much what the farmers actually want as what the favor-curriers think they want.

"Separate But Equal"

The Supreme Court has consented to review a case that may have great historic significance—the case of Elmer W. Henderson against the United States of America, Interstate Commerce Commission and Southern Railway Co. The case will test the validity of a Southern Railway regulation, approved by the ICC and upheld by a divided three-judge Federal District Court, requiring passengers to be segregated according to their color in the railway's dining cars.

In accordance with law, the United States was named as a defendant in the suit brought by Henderson. Nevertheless, the legal representatives of the United States, the Solicitor General and other officers of the Department of Justice, filed in the Supreme Court Wednesday a powerful brief arguing that Henderson's appeal should be upheld and that the order of the ICC should be declared invalid. This support of an appellant on the part of the Department of Justice deserves the warmest commendation.

The case originated when Henderson, a Negro, traveling as a field representative for the wartime Fair Employment Practices Committee, was denied service in a Southern Railway diner, in accordance with company regulations, because the two end tables, curtained from the rest of the car and supposedly reserved for Negroes, were being used by white passengers. The Interstate Commerce Act provides that "it shall be unlawful for any common carrier . . . to subject any particular person . . . to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever." The company reconciled its regulation with the law on the ground that the furnishing of separate but proportionately equal facilities entailed no discrimination. The ICC upheld this justification.

The doctrine that segregation is not discrimination rests upon an 1896 decision of the Supreme Court in Plessy v. Ferguson—perhaps, with the single exception of the Dred Scott case, the worst decision in the Supreme Court's entire history. The court at that time dismissed the contention that "the enforced separation of the two races stamps the colored race with a badge of inferiority," and blandly observed that "if this be so, it is not by reason of anything found in the act, but solely because the colored race chooses to put that construction upon it."

The sophistry and callousness of this judgment were roundly scored by Justice Harlan in one of the court's great dissents. "Our Constitution is color blind," he said, "and neither knows nor tolerates classes among citizens . . . We boast of the freedom enjoyed by our people above all other peoples. But it is difficult to reconcile that boast with a state of the law which, practically, puts the brand of servitude and degradation upon a large class of our fellow citizens, our equals before the law. The thin disguise of 'equal' accommodations . . . will not mislead anyone, nor atone for the wrong this day done."

The "thin disguise" has been used ever since to justify segregation in public schools, State universities, public transportation and other public facilities. The whole structure of discrimination by law has been based upon it. All experience has shown not only that separate facilities are never, in fact, equal but that enforced separation is imposed deliberately to humiliate Negroes and to emphasize their inferiority. It serves that purpose well. It creates inequality by imposing a caste status upon the group at which it is aimed.

The Justice Department's brief asks the Supreme Court to invalidate the ICC ruling on the ground that the Southern Railway regulation violates the Interstate Commerce Act. It seems to us clearly to do so. "But," says the brief, "if the court should conclude that the issues here cannot be decided without reference to the 'separate but equal' doctrine, the Government submits that the legal and factual assumptions upon which Plessy v. Ferguson was decided have been demonstrated to be erroneous, and that the doctrine of that case should now be reexamined and overruled. The notion that separate but equal facilities satisfy constitutional and statutory prohibitions against discrimination is obsolete. The phrase 'equal rights' means the same rights." It is high time for the Supreme Court to say so.

More Unification

Any jury that tried to reach a verdict on the basis of the first piece of testimony from one side probably would come up with a pretty warped conclusion. Yet that is precisely what Chairman Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee seems to be doing in his proposal to amend the Unification Act—a proposal he advanced on the very same day that Admiral Radford opened the Navy's assault on the B-36 and strategic bombing. If the House committee is not exactly comparable to a jury, it at least is acting as a fact-finding board, and certainly no objective fact-finding body would attempt to draw conclusions until all the evidence was in.

However, some of his points seem to us valid, even though they are made prematurely. Assuredly, until the National Security Council determines what the country's objectives in war would be—and this means objectives beyond the military phase itself—the Joint Chiefs of Staff cannot evolve a strategy to serve the highest national interest. Integration is called for here; the Joint Chiefs should not be expected to deal with an essentially political problem. Similarly, an objective test of the B-36 is the only way to settle the dispute over the plane's capabilities, and the Joint Weapons Evaluation Group is the logical body to conduct such a test. The creation of a special board to evaluate strategic air warfare might throw some new light on the controversy, though the House committee supposedly will delve into the same subject. Certainly no one should quarrel with the requirement of joint training between the Air Force and the Navy air arm.

But why does Mr. Vinson think a change in the law necessary to effectuate these aims? Each of them could be brought about by administrative order either by the President, in respect of the National Security Council, or by the Secretary of Defense.

On the other hand, several of Mr. Vinson's points in our opinion would make hash of the unification law. For example, he would have the Secretary of Defense obtain the approval of Congress before making any administrative cutback in appropriated funds. Since the service to be cut could always muster friends in Congress, this provision would virtually insure that no cuts would be made. Likewise, if the budgetary requests of each separate service had to be submitted to Congress to be compared with the final budget asked by the Secretary of Defense, the premium would be an extravagance.

The real implication of Mr. Vinson's proposals—and the Navy's complaints—is that more, rather than less, unification is needed. By this we mean not only that must there be a continuation of the integrated budgetary process already begun, but also that thinking must center on functions rather than on services. The real concern, in other words, is not Air Force air power or naval air power, but the one indivisible entity of air power. The evolution of such a concept of unification depends more on individual personalities than on any law. Secretary Johnson himself can do a great deal to further genuine integration by making sure that his decisions reflect, not impetuousness or the arbitrary view of one school or another, but a broad consideration of the relationship of individual means to the overall defense.

Juvenile Court News

Some months ago there was a good deal of complaint that the community did not know what the Juvenile Court was doing. Most citizens who understand the youth corrections problem were content to have the names of children going before the court and the details of their offenses kept secret. But aside from this there was complaint that no basic information about the court and what it was doing was available to the public. The reply of the court was that it did not have the funds or the personnel to prepare statistics—that time given to research into trends of juvenile delinquency and the disposition of cases by the court would mean neglect of the cases urgently pressing for attention.

Now the court, under its new judge, Edith H. Cockrill, has requested $16,000 to hire five employes to collect statistics and evaluate what the court is doing. The aim is to keep the public informed and to guide the court in its own work and in its relations to other agencies. If such a service is to be inaugurated, the work must necessarily be accurately and thoroughly done. We think the money would be well spent. The time to correct this deficiency in the court's work is obviously now while next year's budget is in the making.

George B. Parker

We condole with our neighbor, the News, and the Scripps-Howard newspapers in general, on the death of George B. Parker, the Scripps-Howard editor in chief. Mr. Parker lived and worked in Washington. His editorials appeared all over the country, and were distinguished for their pith and moral purpose, as was recognized when he got the Pulitzer award in 1936 for distinguished editorial writing. He kept his sights high, and the newspaper business owes him a debt for this example. But he will be mourned as a person as well as an editor. "Deac" he was called by two generations of newspapermen, and in this diminutive it was a mark of real affection, which he won in all the circles he moved in. Mr. Parker was a kindly man, and the loss will be a real one for the Scripps-Howard newspapers.

Letters To The Editor

Communications must be addressed to the editor and must carry the complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names will be permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

Americans In China

How much longer must the United States, as a Government and a people, suffer complete loss of prestige and respect among the nations of the Far East, due to the stupid maneuvers—and seeming lack of sound judgment—on the part of officials responsible for our foreign policy.

The most recent illustration of our official ineptitude arises from the scandalous treatment being accorded the property and personal rights of Americans in China. The flagrant "incidents" attending seizure of the Isbrandtsen Line vessels near Shanghai, by elements of the so-called "Nationalist Navy," brings the entire fiasco into sharp and shameful focus.

Those of us who have lived in the Far East (as has the writer as a foreign correspondent) know the full importance and significance of "losing face" among Oriental peoples. That is exactly what has happened to the U. S. A., notwithstanding all our heroic efforts and our excessive liberality in behalf of justice, freedom and democracy. It is not a question of "official recognition" or technical procedure any longer. It is purely a matter of our demanding and insuring that our nationals be afforded the protection and security which are their just due.

It is a sad situation, indeed, when a great commonwealth such as ours can be subjected to such indignities with impunity by forces which not only flout our power and authority, but at the same time seek favors as alleged "friends" in our midst.

Farm Sense

In spite of all the arguments in Congress, no one has come up with a sensible farm plan yet. I think most everyone feels this way about it, including the farmers.

Obviously we cannot continue to pay subsides on unlimited amounts of farm products. I recall the article in The Washington Post telling about families with income of around a half million dollars on potatoes. This is not compatible with common sense. At the same time I think we should protect the small farmer. We can't allow the buying power of the farmer to go down to nothing.

We could do this very easily by paying a subsidy—in the case of potatoes on the first 1000 bushels, or some other amount. Then what others were raised could find their own price levels. If Congress continues to tax people to keep prices high, consumers are bound to revolt.

Inadequate Retirement

In his "Federal Diary" of September 22, Mr. Jerry Kluttz relates how some oldsters are working in the National Association of Retired Civil Employes. He brings out the problem which faces retired Federal employes, "how to live on their civil service annuities, which average about $1075 per year." He later goes on to say that the association has a committee looking into the "possibility of building a series of homes for retired civil service workers in different sections of the country."

The Civil Service Retirement Report shows that in 1939 the average annuity paid to retired Federal employes was $778. (It had a purchasing power of $978.) (At that time the deduction from the salaries of employes was 3½ percent for the retirement fund.)

Therefore, if in 1949 the average annuity had increased to $1075 (about 10 percent), the purchasing power of their dollars has decreased to about $625, 1948. At the present time the employes' contribution to the retirement fund has been increased about 71 percent, to 6 percent of salary.

It may seem desirable to explore the possibilities of increasing retirement benefits, even if such action results in the need for still larger contribution by employes to the retirement fund. Certainly it is no inducement to a young man of the type it is hoped to attract into the Federal service to tell him at the start of his career, "Be an efficient employe, contribute 6 percent of your salary to a retirement fund, pay another dollar a month into a building fund, at the end of 30 years of faithful service, at the age of 60, you will get an annuity too small to support you, but you will be eligible to apply for admission to a retired employes' home."

Israel's Sovereignty

In Mr. Guy Irving Burch's letter of September 7, he alluded to a report in the New York Times on September 2, and accused Congressman Celler of New York of advocating that Israel use force against the Arabs "and to defy the United Nations." With the express purpose of investigating Mr. Burch's charges, I have now succeeded in obtaining a copy of that issue of the Times.

I find that in his carefully chosen quotation from Congressman Celler's statements, Mr. Burch neglected to include any of the Congressman's explanatory remarks. Congressman Celler did not advocate that Israel resort to aggression. On the contrary, he deplore the lifting of the arms embargo to the Near and Middle East.

The paragraph that Mr. Burch chose to quote, referred (as indicated by other paragraphs which Mr. Burch did not quote), to the possibility that the Israelis might have to bear arms again against the foreign Arab invaders who defied the U. N. decision.

It was this same principle that in 1815 sparked the heroic mission of Lieut. Stephen Decatur, USN, against the Barbary pirates; it was embodied in the Monroe Doctrine, and it is still a recognized U. S. policy.

Did Mr. Burch mean to imply that Israel is wrong in adopting the American principle that a democracy must protect its sovereignty? If so, I hope that he will reconsider his charges.

The Navy's Role

The principal thesis of Admiral Radford before the House Armed Services Committee was that we must not in our defense preparations think of the next war as one in which we would shower atomic bombs on enemy cities. Such a course, he said, would be morally reprehensible, and it would defeat its own purpose for its horrible aftermath would be a kind of world in which we would not want to live. Let us plan to use the atomic bomb, he said, but only for precision attacks on military targets.

The B-36, he contended, is unsuited for precision bombing because its relatively low speed and its vulnerability in the face of fighter attack compel it to operate at extremely high altitudes. Even if it did manage to get through the enemy's defenses, the B-36 would be suited only for the indiscriminate bombing of large metropolitan centers.

Precision bombing is possible only with lower-flying, faster planes, which necessarily have a shorter range than the B-36. Since we cannot depend on the availability of suitable land bases, such planes can be brought within range of target areas in Russia only by means of aircraft carriers.

That, I think, is the heart of Admiral Radford's, and presumably the Navy's, position.

In my opinion the fallacy in the argument is that it overlooks the fact that Russia does have the atomic bomb. Knowing that, we must be prepared for the possibility that the next war will start with an unannounced atomic blitz on our cities. We cannot afford to assume less. And the only preventive, failing an effective system of international controls, is to have the machinery for instant retaliation—to have in being the means by which great numbers of atomic bombs may be suddenly dropped upon the cities of Russia or upon the cities of any other nation that may have the bomb.

The relative merits of the B-36 and of the Navy's proposed supercarriers should be weighed with that primary objective in mind.

ALFRED HILL.

Military unification has become law. Therefore all the services will now work together for the good of the Nation, it says here. When will men learn that you cannot change men by enacting a law? They were unable to work together before, so what kind of naivete is it that supposes a few words on paper are capable of making disunity and self-seeking a thing of the past? About the only thing that unifies the armed forces even halfway is a war.

JOHN HAINES.
Washington.

It is now fashionable to give our Navy a kick, or as our British cousins would say, "boot the bounder," and your general editorial policy, particularly your "Fuming Navy" editorial of October 6, is along these lines.

Unification has provided a fine catch word; some think that "hocus pocus" cures all ills. Admittedly, there are some ills. Actually, unification provides three services instead of two. The tendency in business has been to break down large organizations into smaller ones in order that administration be kept within reason. Linkages continue to exist, of course, but in most cases the connection is loose. In those instances where business organizations have become too big and persisted in their bigness, the Department of Justice has come out on the picket line.

Some grudgingly concede that maybe the Navy has something, but that they have dragged it out the back door. Now, how could it have been done otherwise with the voting 2 to 1 against the Navy; the effect paralleling the Russian veto?

A salute to Captain Crommelin.

Washington Calling

Tobey's Fight

ALTHOUGH this is a year with no congressional election, the race for 1950 has begun so early that in many States it is already past the warm-up stage. The candidates are out peddling their political wares with a fervor rarely seen even in congressional election years.

This means, of course, that those Senators who come up in 1950 and all the members of the House are more and more uneasy as the session of Congress drags on. If they permit themselves to be tied down here, the opposition back home can get the upper hand.

One of the most interesting situations is in New Hampshire, where the redoubtable Senator Charles W. Tobey is up for reelection. By his forthrightness and his insistence in digging into messy situations Tobey has offended powerful interests.

The mildest epithet they apply to him is "psalm-singing old so-and-so," a tribute to Tobey's wide knowledge of the Bible. Rural audiences in New Hampshire delight in the way in which he can produce an apt Biblical quotation for almost any occasion.

One of the powerful interests Tobey seems to have offended is his own New Hampshire colleague, Senator Styles Bridges. Thus far the only suggested opposition to Tobey in the Republican primary is Wesley Powell, Bridges' administrative assistant. Asked about his intentions, Powell replies with: "No comment."

BRIDGES suspects Tobey of being responsible for the line of inquiry in a Senate investigation which brought to light the fact Bridges is being paid $35,000 a year to serve as trustee for the United Mine Workers pension fund. As a matter of fact, Tobey had nothing to do with it.

The busy Bridges, who has more irons in more fires than almost any other Senator, is reported to be preparing a speech in which he will defend not only his own position but the way in which the John L. Lewis trust fund has been administered. Although the fund has now dipped heavily into the red, the cozy rules of that comfortable club, the Senate, are such that none of Bridges' colleagues is likely to challenge him.

One thing Tobey has hammered away on during the past two years is the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. He has brought to light some unsavory deals showing that political influence seems to be increasingly a factor in the RFC's loan policy.

This has begun to worry influential and alert members of the Administration who are aware of how timid and weak is RFC's board of directors. The pattern set before the war in the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad loan has too often been followed.

That is for a group inside the RFC to push through the approval of the loan application and then, once it is approved, to turn up on the company's payroll at salaries three and four times what they had been paid by RFC.

THE B. & O. case was the most extraordinary thus far, with a number of RFC insiders scrambling into B. & O. executive positions. At recent Senate hearings into the RFC, a witness testified that B. & O. bonds held by the Government agency could not be sold "except at a loss of from $12,000,000 to $35,000,000."

But there have been similar instances on a smaller scale. One is the Lustron Corporation, which up to last June had received $32,000,000 from the RFC. Merl Young, an RFC employe with an inside track to the Democratic National Committee, was given an $18,000-a-year job with Lustron.

Since last reported on in this space, Lustron received another $1,000,000 in June, $2,000,000 in July, and $2,000,000 in August. The company, which has a lease on a war surplus plant in Columbus, Ohio, for manufacturing prefabricated houses, is seeking an additional loan of $14,000,000.

Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas introduced a bill to forbid RFC employes from taking positions with any company for two years after the company had received a loan. The Senate passed it, but for some curious reason it has been held in a House committee. Fulbright has opposed a measure to double the RFC's lending power so that it would be five billion dollars instead of two and one-half billion dollars.

The cynical, the "realists" find Tobey intensely annoying. You have to, they say, allow a little latitude to a man on a Government salary. But if there weren't a few Tobeys, I think we might wake up here one morning and find the dome of the Capitol missing.

'Prolegomenon'

The erudition displayed in your October 5 editorial, "Prolegomenon," is sufficiently impressive. The touch is light, in an elephantine way. Too bad the writer had to go to a nursery tale to find reference to a "caucus-race." The description of such a race, in "Alice in Wonderland is preceded by a delightful speech:

"Speak English!" said the Eaglet. "I don't know the meaning of half those long words, and, what's more . . ."

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Key To The Door

PARIS.—Before leaving Washington at the end of September, I looked into a number of things it seemed useful to make inquiries about in Europe. One of them was the complicated subject of the third appropriation of the Marshall Plan. Though Congress will not begin to consider it until early winter, the Administration will be making decisions of policy and formulating its plans this autumn. It is evident that the third year will be difficult. For it took Congress from February to September to agree to the second year of Marshall aid, and all observers I have talked with feel that opinion in Congress and in the country is less confident now about the future of the undertaking than it was before the sterling crisis developed.

Lippmann

Indeed, a high American official who has had a leading part from the beginning of the whole experiment told me that he did not think the Administration could obtain a full third appropriation in 1950 unless before the votes were taken in Congress there had been some kind of impressive and substantial progress in Europe toward that mutual aid which has always been promised but had never been realized. He felt, no doubt rightly, that the prospect of voting money for 16 separate subsidies for 16 separate countries would not satisfy Congress when it meets next year.

HERE in Paris I have found, after talking with a few Europeans who have lived with the problem and understand it, that there is no belief among the people generally and little even among responsible officials that the United States is very serious about mutual aid in Europe. The working assumption is that America's relationship to Europe will be one of two very simple alternatives: Either we shall subsidize indefinitely and unconditionally any government that is anti-Communist, or we shall withdraw from Europe into isolationism. The idea that the American Government and people have more than a platonic interest in the reorganization and reconstruction of Europe has not yet been taken seriously. It is an idea that every one feels he must make phrases and gestures about. But it is not an idea that shapes the policies of governments or determines their decisions.

And so, though in one sense American power in Europe is enormously great, indeed unpleasantly great, American influence for constructive European action is remarkably small. The conviction has formed that while Europe cannot live without American subsidies, the United States, because of the Communist danger, could not withdraw subsidies. Thus, Marshall aid, which was to provide the inducement and the means to closer European collaboration, exerts little effective pressure to bring about European collaboration.

RECENT events in Washington during the Anglo-American talks have accentuated the feeling that we do not have clear or firm views on the need for European mutual aid. In fact, the views first publicly attributed to Mr. Kennan by the Alsop brothers and supported by confidential reports, that the United States has agreed to some sort of British separation from the Continent, are now, perhaps mistakenly, regarded as real American policy—confirmed by the action of Bevin and Cripps. If this impression is not corrected, the idea of European mutual aid and unification will have been fatally injured.

For the French, and I have no doubt the European view is that without an intimate Anglo-French understanding as its foundation, nothing can be done toward the solution of any great European problem. The Germans are recovering their power at a prodigious rate, and a satisfactory equilibrium in Europe is impossible unless the British and the French are able to work jointly toward an understanding with Germany. Separately, France and Great Britain will not be strong enough to deal with the coming Germany as equals. Unless they can unite with confidence and in intimacy, their separate relations with Germany will be competitive and disruptive.

BUT BRITAIN and France are not likely to work out a partnership unless the United States encourages, induces it and presses for it. This is in fact the key to the door of that mutual aid which is, with self-help, the object of the Marshall Plan. We have come very near to throwing away the key during the critical weeks of the month of September.

Named Seal Chairman

High Court Refuses Appeal By May, Garsson Brothers

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Andrew Jackson May, former chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, yesterday was refused an appeal to the Supreme Court from his conspiracy and bribery conviction.

Also refused review of their cases were Henry M. and Murray W. Garsson. All three are under sentence of from eight months to two years in jail and it appeared last night they soon will begin serving their terms.

All have been free on $2000 bond since their 1947 conviction in District Court here of conspiracy to obtain Government contracts for munitions firms the Garssons controlled. The 74-year-old May served 16 years in the House before he was defeated for reelection in 1946. He was convicted of accepting $53,634 in bribes to help the Garssons.

May's attorney, Warren Magee, said last night he would ask for a reconsideration but they are seldom granted, especially when the court is unanimous as it was yesterday. May, at his Prestonburg, Ky., home had no comment on the court's action.

In other orders yesterday the Supreme Court:

1. Refused pleas by Texas and Louisiana for dismissal of the Government's suit to obtain control over their oil-rich tidelands, similar to the case it won against California. Justices Jackson and Clark took no part in the ruling.

2. Refused to consider action of a California judge who permitted one radio station to broadcast a murder trial from his courtroom but refused permission to another. Station KFI had attacked Judge Kenneth E. Morrison of Orange County Superior Court for permitting Station KVOE to broadcast. The judge and KVOE contended KFI only asked permission toward the end of the trial while KVOE had been on hand from the beginning.

3. Refused to consider a plea by a New York City Socialist Labor Party 1948 campaign speaker against his arrest for making a speech in a public parkway without a permit. Justices Black and Douglas dissented from the ruling.

4. Agreed to consider a San Francisco case involving the shipment across State lines of phonograph records containing obscene matter. The question is whether obscenity statutes cover records.

5. Refused to consider a Michigan State College student's dismissal for violation of school discipline. The student contended he was thrown out because of his association with the American Youth for Democracy and his attendance at a meeting addressed by a Communist.

Hear Discrimination Case

The court, with only seven justices present, heard arguments over the right of a group of Negro railroad firemen to bring a suit in the District against several Southern railroads and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen to prevent alleged discrimination. The issue turns chiefly on the word "found"—whether the union is "found" in Washington because it has two locals and a legislative office here. The union says it was not properly served with legal papers in the case because its main offices are elsewhere.

Justice Douglas was absent from this argument because of his recent horseback accident and Justice Minton will not take his seat until after his swearing-in on Wednesday.

Red Oath Case Heard

Justice Clark left the bench when arguments began on the non-Communist affidavit issue, presented in two cases. The American Communications Association, CIO, yesterday presented part of its case against the National Labor Relations Board and the United Steel Workers of America, CIO, will continue the attack on the oath's constitutionality, so far upheld in the lower courts.

Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman, taking the NLRB's side as a friend of the court, declared Congress not only has power to require the oaths of unions making use of NLRB facilities but of all the members of such unions, if it so desires.

Many Lawyers Mix Lobbying With Practice of Profession

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

(Third Article in a Series)

Many lobbyists are, of course, lawyers.

The experts, whose business it is to interpret congressional law, frankly admit that short of keeping a minute-by-minute time schedule no lawyer on earth could precisely determine how much of his retainer is for lobbying.

Suppose a lawyer turns for a moment from preparing a legal case to telephone a congressman and ask for his interpretation of a point of law. Is that lobbying?

And, incidentally, what about labor unions, both AFL and CIO, who admittedly spent huge sums in an unsuccessful attempt to defeat the Taft-Hartley law and who spent other tremendous sums in an unsuccessful (so far) attempt to have it repealed.

There are few, if any, really high-salaried registered lobbyists for labor unions, but many labor leaders, speaking frankly off-the-record, admit the lobbying law is honored more in the breach than the observance.

They frankly take the position that they cannot register as lobbyists just because they chin with a congressman or so every time they visit Washington or wander up to Capitol Hill. That really is not their main job, they claim in all fairness, and any citizen has a right to talk with his congressman. Baffled congressmen take much the same position themselves.

To continue with the list of high-priced lobbyists: Kenneth E. Stockton is registered for the American Cable & Radio Corp. and the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. at an annual salary of $45,000. His registration states that no part of his salary is "specifically for the purpose of influencing legislation."

Other top-notchers are Gerard D. Reilly, General Motors Corp., $36,000; Joseph Borkin, National Independent Carriers, $31,200; Dewitt C. Ramsey, Aircraft Industries Association of America, Inc., $30,000; Stephen M. Walter, National Association of Electric Companies, $26,500; Jack Bryson, Motion Picture Association of America, $25,123.16; Walter Chamblin, jr., National Association of Manufacturers, $25,000; William J. Goodwin, Government of the Republic of China, $25,000; Hewes & Awalt, National Association of Electric Companies, $25,000; Robert L. Hogg, American Life Convention, $25,000; A. D. Willard, jr., National Association of Broadcasters, $25,000; James Kennedy, American Cable & Radio Corp., $22,500, and Clovis, Edwards & Reed, Inc., Foremen's League for Education and Association, $18,000.

It must be noted that Dewitt Ramsey's registration says no part of his salary is paid for activities covered by the lobbying law, and that the registrations of Bryson, Chamblin, Hogg, Willard and Kennedy specifically say their salaries are for all.

Goodwin has a newly registered assistant, Dale Miller, who states his salary is $400 a month. Miller, however, is also registered for the States Rights Association at a $5000 annual salary, and for the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, the Intra-Canal Association of Louisiana and Texas and the Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. at $6000 annual salary each, so he is well within the high paid bracket himself.

The number of former Senators and Representatives registered as lobbyists has frequently occasioned comment. The most recent addition to the ranks is former Senator Joseph H. Ball, Minnesota Republican, who is registered with the Association of American Ship Owners.

It is by no means, as even these few examples indicate, an easy task which will confront Representative Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.), and his group of House investigators when they attempt to sift through the maze of lobbying information. Splitting hairs is a task of utmost simplicity compared to it.

(Tomorrow's article deals with the provisions of the lobby-registration law.)

only bill that might run into a filibuster.

Stalemated for months in the Judiciary Committee, the bill can reach the Senate floor by one of two routes: (1) A vote by the Judiciary Committee itself or (2) a pending Senate discharge petition.

Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) yesterday asked the committee to discharge its own subcommittee and report the bill. The committee recessed, in tribute to Senator Miller, before his motion was voted on but Ferguson will renew it today.

Senator Forrest Donnell (R., Mo.) at the same time may renew a substitute motion to hold up the vote until Senator James O. Eastland (D., Miss.) can be present. Eastland has been leading the fight on the House-passed DP bill in the absence of Judiciary Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), but was called out of town yesterday by a death in his family.

If the committee today adopts the Ferguson motion, speeding the bill to the Senate floor, leaders said the Senate should be able to finish its work by Saturday.

But if the committee again holds up the bill, forcing leaders to call up their discharge petition, the Senate may get tangled in another talkathon.

Before postponing the DP showdown overnight, the committee approved President Truman's three appointments to the Displaced Persons Commission.

The nominations, pending for more than a year, were Ugo Carusi, chairman, and Edward M. O'Connor and Harry N. Rosenfield, members. All three have been serving on recess appointments since Mr. Truman named them last August. No floor fight on them was threatened.

But a floor scrap on the nomination of Leland Olds to a third term on the Federal Power Commission will enliven the Senate's closing days. A Senate committee disapproved Olds' nomination 10 to 2, and the Senate is expected to side with the committee.

President Truman checked adjournment prospects with his leaders at yesterday's weekly legislative conference. Sitting in were Speaker Rayburn, Vice President Barkley, House Majority Leader McCormack (Mass.) and Senate Majority Whip Myers.

Rayburn said he could guarantee the House would be ready to adjourn by Saturday. Myers said only that he thought there was a "chance" for the Senate to adjourn this weekend.

In what may be his last formal communication to the dying session, President Truman later forwarded his request for $814,010,000 cash and $500,000,000 contract authority to arm friendly nations against communism.

The White House said it was sent to the Capitol "with the intention that Congress will proceed immediately to act upon it."

Although the President requested the full amount, he pointed out that only 100 million dollars can be spent for Atlantic Pact arms until he has approved recommendations by the North Atlantic Council and its defense committee for an integrated defense of the area.

White House Calls Record Of 81st Congress Remarkable

By The Associated Press

President Truman, who fought so bitterly with a Republican 80th Congress, gave the often-rebellious Democratic 81st a kindly pat on the head yesterday.

The White House made public a 13-page mimeographed summary of what has happened to President Truman's requests for legislation.

As he handed it to newsmen, Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross said they would find it "a rather remarkable record of achievement." The summary pointed a proud finger at enactment of much of the foreign affairs program the Administration asked for, as well as for such things as a new rent control law to reorganize the government.

But after a lot of the requests was the notation: "Pending."

"Not in Accord"

Perhaps the harshest words were under the heading, "Repeal Taft-Hartley Act." There the White House summary said: "Passed Senate . . . in a form not in accord with the President's recommendations—pending in House Education and Labor Committee."

That has been perhaps Mr. Truman's biggest rebuff in this Congress.

The summary was neatly classified under 15 lettered headings ranging from "A-National Defense" to "O-Government Corporations." Ross said it was prepared for "background purposes" and to show "how the Administration has fared with this Congress."

The summary acknowledged that on those requests which have been approved, the President did not always get just what he wanted. More than 100 of the President's requests were listed. Among the more important ones, these appeared on the credit side of the ledger:

1. Revision of the Armed Forces Unification Act.
2. Extension of the European Recovery Program for another year.
3. Extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act without restrictions which the Eightieth Congress had attached.
4. Ratification of the North Atlantic Treaty.
5. Ratification of the International Wheat Agreement.

Slum Clearance Backed

6. Approval of the Military Assistance Program to help non-Communist nations build up their arms.
7. Approval of slum clearance and low-cost housing programs.
8. Extension of Federal Rent Controls.
9. Revision of the Commodity Credit Corp.'s charter to allow it to provide storage space for crops held under price-support loans.
10. Grant to Mr. Truman of authority to reshuffle the executive branch of the Government.

A number of these measures, such as housing, Government reorganization and the foreign affairs legislation, were advocated by Republicans as well as Democrats.

The poorest showing for Mr. Truman's program was in the civil rights section. There it was noted that the House has passed an anti-poll-tax bill. All other major points in the section were followed by "pending" or "committee has held hearings."

Controversy Dismissed Briefly

The long and heated controversy over new farm price support legislation was also dismissed briefly. Without specifically mentioning the Brannan Plan which Mr. Truman has been plugging, so far without success, the summary simply noted that debate on the issue is "now in progress" in the Senate.

Among the other key requests on which there has been no positive action by Congress were these:

1. Universal military training.
2. A national health program supported by payroll taxes. The summary noted that a House group has concluded hearings and that a Senate subcommittee held one closed session.
3. The St. Lawrence seaway and power project.
4. Establishment of a Columbia Valley Administration.
5. Extension of authority to control bank and consumer credit.
6. Proposed creation of a department of welfare, which the Senate vetoed.
7. Major tax revision proposals, including a hike in estate and gift taxes and repeal of levies on the transportation of goods.

Still other controversial requests, such as Federal aid to schools, repeal of the oleomargarine taxes and broadening of the Social Security laws were noted as having passed one branch of Congress.

Veterans Laud Gen. Vaughan

dote about an Army mess sergeant.

The mess sergeant wanted to get rid of ants infesting the kitchen, so he put in a requisition for insecticide.

Back came the query: Are the ants inside or outside the building? If they were inside, the sergeant was told, that would make them quartermaster ants and he would have to get his ant-killer from that department. But if they were outside, that made them engineer ants and he would have to see the engineers about it.

This, said the general, typified the kind of "Government red tape" he had been trying to eliminate. "All the sergeant was interested in," he said, "was getting rid of the ants."

Vaughan admitted he had run into "lots of difficulty" in his mission of cutting through the governmental red-tape swath. But, he said:

"I've encountered it not with the head of a Government department or the No. 2 or 3 man—but with the fellow down below who resents what he calls 'outside interference.'"

Department commanders of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Veterans of World War II, Disabled American Veterans, Marine Corps League, Jewish War Veterans and Catholic War Veterans were but a few of the 100 prominent veterans-leaders who gave the testimonial luncheon. They also chipped in to buy Vaughan a fitted toilet-article case and Mrs. Vaughan—who also attended—some American Beauty roses.

—With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, OCT. 10.—Some World Series marginal notes that were stranded on base:

POVICH

Lindell—Now what was it that Johnny Lindell said at the end of the first two games? Now, I remember. Sure enough everybody was talking about those 1-to-0 masterpieces by Allie Reynolds and Preacher Roe. Such pitching. The World Series had seen nothing like it in history. At that point, the tightest, tensest World Series ever played.

But Lindell, that second night, was unimpressed. His was strictly the hitters' viewpoint. "Those pitchers," he said, "they're lousing it up."

DIMAGGIO—Easy on DiMag. Don't forget the poor fellow should have been in a hospital. Fifteen pounds under weight, and the lightest bat he could find was feeling heavy to him. Sad to see DiMag popping up and striking out on pitches they wouldn't dare to throw him if he were a well man. And he was stumbling in the field, too.

Even the steely-hearted wretches in the press box could jump and cheer when DiMag finally got that fifth-game homer, his second hit of the series. And even Brooklyn fans could find it in their hearts to cheer this one Yankee, with the most forgiveable .111 batting average in World Series annals.

SHOTTON—The bungler. He did, too. Got his pitchers all snarled up and was left with Rex Barney as his last-game starter. Left Barney in there when the guy didn't have a prayer. Refused to bench his hitting flop, Duke Snider. You wondered how Shotton got the Dodgers home in front in the National League.

And what Arch Murray, season-long correspondent with the Dodgers, wrote in the New York Post: "Shotton's management was the worst in World Series history . . . His blunders will be the talk in Flatbush long after snow has blanketed Ebbets Field . . . The Dodgers were far and away the best team in the league, and they should have romped in . . . It's time for Shotton to retire to the peace of Bartow, Fla. On the bench he is jittery, panicky and indecisive, and his patience is thin . . . It's time for him to step down . . ."

STENGEL—About that report that now he had taken the Yanks to the pennant and won a World Series, he'd retire because of ill health. "Go way," he said, "there's nothing to it. I'm the only guy on the club who hasnt had a doctor all year, and right now I'm healthier than ever." And now they say his new contract as Yankee manager will call for $80,000 flat.

Bad Break—For the front offices of both the Yankees and the Dodgers. In the World Series, I mean. Their tough luck was that the series commenced in Yankee Stadium, not Brooklyn. Not until the fifth game, do the club owners come in for any heavy cut. Starting with the fifth the receipts are virtually all theirs.

And so they played the fifth game in Brooklyn and the series ended there with the day's receipts of $167,000. Had that fifth game been played in Yankee Stadium, the two clubs would have cut up twice as much. The honesty of baseball was proven once again, but at such cost.

BROWN—Bobby Brown. What a series finish he made, after breaking into that second game as a complete flop. Here was a guy who was going to be remembered as the fellow sent up to sacrifice with the Yankees trailing, 1-0, and didn't get his bat off his shoulder. Three straight strikes he took from Preacher Roe.

Bobby bounced back from that awful mess and landed on his feet. Led all the hitters in the series when it finished up, with those six blows in 12 appearances for a .300 average. It stacks up nicely alongside his 1.000 average on three pinch-hitting appearances against the Dodgers in the 1947 series. Page, Reynolds and Brown—the Yankee hero trio.

ROE—Ugh. You had to have an ugly thought about him, on that last day. Where was he? The only guy who had licked the Yankees, who had pitched the best game of the series in that 1-0 second-game affair, "wasn't available."

Sure, he had a broken finger, but it wasn't on his pitching hand. On his gloved hand, that's what. Jeez, DiMaggio was a hospital case, yet he played. Carl Furillo's leg pained him and every step, but he played. Bucky Harris concealed two broken fingers on his gloved hand when he broke in with Washington. I'd like to hear that Roe did volunteer, and was turned down by Shotton. I hope that's what happened. If so, my apologies.

Chance to Win One

George Washington Or Virginia Tech?

GEORGE WASHINGTON vs. Virginia Tech. Neither team has scored a victory this season.

Pick the winner of that one and you may be well on your way to winning The Washington Post's football contest this week.

Each week the winner of the contest will receive two tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, November 26, and an all-expenses-paid trip to this game for two persons.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week also will receive four tickets to a major college or professional game in this area. The Washington Post will select this game.

The contest each week will include 21 major colleges games. Each contestant will select the winner (or tie) of 20 of these games. On the 21st game, each contestant will give the "Probable Score."

Notre Dame Rated Nation's Top Team

OLD BOY CAN STEP—A happy Casey Stengel, manager of the World Champion New York Yankees, steps out with Mrs. Stengel at a dinner to celebrate his team's triumph over Brooklyn

Irish Edge Army by 30 Votes

New York, Oct. 10 (AP).—Notre Dame is the top college football team, the experts decided today in the second Associated Press Nation-wide poll of the season.

But the Fighting Irish landed the No. 1 spot by only a slim margin of 30 points over Army, which polished off last week's leader—Michigan—in a 21-7 upset Saturday at Ann Arbor.

Michigan, which received 34 first place votes a week ago, didn't get a single one this time, but the sports editors and sportscasters still thought enough of the Wolverines to give them enough other ballots to land them in the top 10—in seventh place to be exact.

Notre Dame, which brushed aside Purdue Saturday, 35-12, to remain among the undefeated and untied, collared 67 first-place votes and a total of 1489 points.

Army, which was seventh in the first poll, was right behind with 1459 points. The Cadets got 58 first-place ballots, as 172 sports writers and broadcasters took part in the poll.

The third, fourth, fifth and sixth teams last week—Oklahoma, Tulane, Minnesota and North Carolina, remained right in that order again.

Kentucky Joins First Ten

A newcomer to the top 10 is Kensucky, which jumped from fifteenth place to eighth after handing Georgia a 25-0 shellacking Saturday. California moved up from tenth to ninth, trading places with Southern Methodist, which was idle last week.

One team was bounced from the leading 10—Southern California. The Trojans, who tied Ohio State, 13-13, fell from eighth to twelfth.

1. Notre Dame (67)	1489
2. Army (58)	1459
3. Oklahoma (28)	1205
4. Tulane (1)	1052
5. Minnesota (6)	900
6. North Carolina (3)	594
7. Michigan	476
8. Kentucky (8)	436
9. California	358
10. Southern Methodist (1)	341

The second ten—11, Ohio State, 206; 12, Southern California, 181; 13, UCLA, 125; 14, Cornell, 98; 15, Pittsburgh, 65; 16, Texas, 63; 17, Villanova, 43; 18, Navy, 36; 19, Michigan State, 30, and 20, Baylor, 25.

Others receiving one or more votes—Louisiana State, 10; Pennsylvania, 9; Missouri, 8; Vanderbilt, 6; Rice, 4; Tennessee, 3; Georgia Tech, Virginia, and Dartmouth, 2 each; Yale and Duke, 1 each.

Coaches of the Week

Margarita, Tatum, Sauer Share Honors

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

HATS OFF TO George Sauer, Jim Tatum and Bob Margarita.

They're The Washington Post's selections as the area coaches of the week.

Normally, only one coach is chosen, but Sauer, Tatum and Margarita did such excellent jobs with their football teams last Saturday that the selection of all three was practically mandatory.

Sauer and Margarita scored upset victories with their Navy and Georgetown teams over Duke and Wake Forest, respectively. But Tatum's Marylanders lost no lustre in their 14-7 defeat at the hands of a powerful Michigan State squad.

This is the second time Sauer and Margarita have been tapped as coaches of the week. Sauer made it last week when his Middies defeated Princeton to snap a long losing streak. Margarita was chosen after Georgetown trimmed Holy Cross September 24.

THE VICTORIES of Navy and Georgetown Saturday were inspired by Sauer and Margarita. Battlers themselves, they have succeeded in investing in their players the spirit that a team that won't be beaten can't be beaten.

Navy was a 7-point underdog against the Duke team, which only a week before had knocked off a supposedly superior Tennessee team. That didn't bother Sauer and his Middies, however.

With their great determination, Bob Zastrow's passing and Frankie Hauff's running, the Sailors came from behind twice to set the Blue Devils back on their heels.

Margarita was counting on Wake Forest to take the Hoyas lightly since the Deacons played North Carolina the following Saturday. He preached this to his squad and he turned out to be eminently correct. Bouncing back from the 33-7 lacing by the Terrapins, the Hoyas played like maniacs when their goal was threatened and turned back every Wake Forest thrust but one.

MARYLAND'S TATUM didn't have to bother about getting his squad in a spirited frame of mind for the Spartans of Michigan State. His principal job was to set up a defense to halt the blasting thrusts of the powerful Spartan backs.

Scouts Bill Meek and Max Reed had done a superb job of scouting the Spartans and Tatum, along with Meek, Reed and Jack Hennemier, then set about to perfect the proper defensive alignments. Their strategy was to play a defensive game basically because they felt the Spartans, who were favored from 21 to 33 points, would out-offense the Terps in a wide-open game.

The plan was an old Wallace Wade plan—play cautious and wait for the break. The break came early, in the first 50 seconds of play when Jake Rowden recovered a fumble on the State 18-yard line and the Terps soon scored and held a 7-0 lead until midway in the third quarter.

Stengel Says He Will Be Back in 1950

By Milton Richman

New York, Oct. 10 (U.P.).—Removing all doubt about his future with the champion New York Yankees, Manager Casey Stengel exuberantly exclaimed today, "Sure I'll be back next year, but if we lost I would have been gone."

Stengel, still overjoyed by his club's victory in the World Series indicated he would remain here for a week or 10 days before starting for his home on the West Coast.

"I'd be foolish to quit now," he beamed. "Why, I'm sitting on the top of the world!"

However, reports that Stengel would receive a pay boost because of his World Series victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers were more or less squelched by the Yankee front office today.

"Stengel's two-year contract has another year to run," said a Yankee spokesman. "The Yankees have made no move to revise that contract nor is any such move contemplated."

Stengel's frank admission of his intention to quit, "if we lost," hit strongest at two other managers who have the same decision to make today—Burt Shotton of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Joe McCarthy of the Boston Red Sox.

Rickey Gives Shotton Vote of Confidence

Brooklyn, Oct. 10 (AP).—Branch Rickey, president of the Brooklyn Dogers, gave Manager Burt Shotton a vote of confidence today and said the Doger "bench" would be strengthened for 1950.

"My manager didn't lose the World Series," Rickey told newsmen at an informal conference in his office.

"I consider Shotton a sound manager, just as Casey Stengle and Leo Durocher are sound managers. I will always go along with a sound manager in his front guess."

'A Great Idea'

Whelchel Praises Plans For 'Skins Clinic Wednesday

Coach Billick Whelchel, who has been a football fan for 40 years, is "high" on the Redskin Football Clinic which will open Wednesday at Griffith Stadium under the sporsorshop of The Washington Post.

"A great idea," Whelchel said yesterday. "It's greatest value is the fact it will put the mind of Washington's youth on a healthy subject—sports. We'll be more than glad if we also can get a few youngsters started in the right direction as far as football is concerned."

The big grid show, expected to attract more than 20,000 to the stadium, will start at 7 p. m. Wednesday. A second and final session is slated for seven nights later, October 19. In the event of rain at either session it will be held the following night.

For Whelchel and his Redskins, the affair is just another workout—but with a lot of extras added. On the same program the 'Skins work out their own kinks, and have every move explained by Harry Wismer, the voice of the Redskins, the Redskin band will march and play, six beauty contest winners will be introduced and things will be wound up with football clashes of 90- and 105-pound teams.

The instructional angle will be stressed so that spectators, whether young or old, well-versed in football or rank novices, will be able to learn something from the kind of stars who play the game best—the pros.

That the Redskin Clinic will be a highly popular feature is indicated by the flood of demands for tickets . . . Bob McChesney, former Redskin end, will bring a group of 12 Arlington youngsters to the affair . . . Some 500 players of the Metro Football League have been asked by President Bill Strickler to meet under the big tree at the ball park at 6:45 and enter the stands in a body . . . Out at Chamberlain, Coach Frosty Powars says that he'll not only have his team on hand Wednesday, but he's invited any of his players' fathers who wish to come along . . . A note of thanks to The Washington Post for sponsoring the clinic has been received from Charles Hudson, coach of the newly-formed Maryland Park High eleven . . . With his request for 30 tickets, he includes the thought that the clinic "will be especially helpful to teams like mine."

FIVE THOUSAND copies of "The 1949 Redskins" (see cover above) will be given away at the Redskin clinic Wednesday night. This is the official press, radio and television guide of the 'Skins. These copies will be gifts of the American Oil Co. (Amoco), radio sponsor of Redskin games.

Every Fight At Turner's Ends in Kayo

Every fight ended in a knockout at Turner's Arena last night.

In the feature, "Sonny Boy" Bunn, 151, of Washington stopped Carey Mace, 151½, of Hartford, Conn., in 1:10 of the fifth of a scheduled eight.

Dimines in Hospital After Being Kayoed

Walter DeMond, 19-year-old Baltimore welterweight who fights under the name of Joe Dimines, was admitted to Freedmen's Hospital last night with head injuries suffered when he was knocked out by Del Flanagan at Turner's Area.

He was conscious and "doing all right" according to a hospital doctor. DeMond remained overnight in the hospital for observation.

Del Flanagan, Minnesota freshman, made his debut with a walloping fifth-round knockout over Joe Dimines, Baltimore welterweight. Flanagan chilled the Baltimorean with a right to the jaw in 2:52.

Garland Edwards, Washington, scored a TKO over Scott Richardson, Washington, in 1:44 of the second round in a scheduled five. Pat Thomas, Washington, rang up his sixth straight pro victory—his fifth kayo, by flattening Buster Thomas, Baltimore, in 2:02 of the first round.

It took Walter Hamm 1:51 to finish off Chicken Woodson in the third round, while Warren Hudson scored a TKO in 2:12 of the second over Frank Ball. Hamm, Woodson, Hudson and Ball are all from Washington.

Touchdowners Hear Noppinger Lauded by Coach

Bob Noppinger, Georgetown University end, was called "All-America material" yesterday as he was introduced by his coach at the Touchdown Club.

It was the big wingman's inspirational play, said Coach Bob Margarita, which contributed most to the Hoyas' 12-6 upset of Wake Forest over the weekend. Also introduced was Georgetown's great halfback, Billy Conn.

Saluted by Touchdowners as the outstanding schoolboy of the week was Ed "Bama" Burt, Anacostia High's defensive end and offensive fullback.

Favored Sonofun Rallies to Capture Laurel Feature

Bill Bennings . . .

AT LAUREL.

DEAR FOLKS:

The race for riding honors at this meeting is developing into a "red-hot" affair. With 13 days of the session completed and 12 to go, R. J. Martin still is in front of the jockeys, showing 13 winners to his credit, but three rivals are close enough to constitute real threats. They are Ira Hanford, Bobbie Strange and Richard Stark, each of whom has scored 10 times. Hanford found the winner's circle three times last Saturday to gather in the honors for that particular program. There is a four-way tie for first position among the conditioners in action here. W. J. (Buddy) Hirsch, Jimmy McGee, Royal Roberts and Jim Arthur all have saddled five winners each.—BILL.

Lucky Ned Is Unlucky, Finishes 2d

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Oct. 10.—Cedar Farm's Sonofun, almost earned a less appropriate name here today. However, the son of Grand Time and Trace O'Fun rallied just in time to save oodles of money for the favorite players in a crowd of 8000.

Sonofun lost the lead at the eighth pole to Mrs. W. W. Vaughan's Lucky Ned, but Jockey Ira Hanford kept booting and was rewarded with a neck decision via the camera. Third money in the field of eight contesting in the Wise Counsellor went to R. A. Johnson's Black and Blue, only a half length behind the fight for first money.

The odds-on choice at a $3.40 mutuel, Sonofun was clocked in 1:12 1/5 for 6 furlongs over a fast track and under summer-like skies.

Sonofun Takes Early Lead

Sonofun went to the front early followed by Lucky Ned and Arthur Pilate with Black and Blue fourth and on the outside. Entering the stretch, Lucky Ned and Black and Blue closed in on the leader.

Lucky Ned, hard urged, took a brief lead in midstretch but Hanford would not let Sonofun stop. He went to work like a little Trojan on the black 3-year-old and he responded nobly. He bounded forward in the final jump to take the verdict.

The victory was the fourth for Sonofun in his 12 starts this year, and he made it two in a row over this track. Worth $2275 to the winner, the race brought the Cedar Farm sprinter's earnings to $10,275 for the year.

Fritz Maisel Wins

Fritz Maisel, named for the old-time major league star, and owned and trained by Alan Clarke, former pitcher, got up in the final jump to win the Petee Wrack, the day's secondary feature. The 4-year-old son of Little Beans came from behind to collar S. W. Labrot, jr.'s Dutel going into the wire. Third money went to R. L. Hall, jr.'s, Tacaro Briar.

Fritz Maisel returned a $7.60 mutuel and was stepped the 6 furlongs by Jockey Bobby Mitchell in a creditable 1:12 3/5 over a fast track.

Marshall Wants Better Paid, Younger Grid Officials

Cole's 69 Wins Medal in Baltimore Open Golf

Baltimore, Oct. 10 (AP).—Bill Cole, local amateur, shot a three-under-par 69 today to win the qualifying medal for the 15th annual Baltimore match play open golf tourney at Green Spring Valley Club.

Cole was out in 32 and back in 37 to beat out Walter Romans, Baltimore Country Club pro, and Charlie Bassler, Rolling Road professional, by one stroke.

Roland MacKenzie, host club amateur and former Walker Cup golfer, carded a 34-37—71 for the only other sub-par round.

A score of 79 was needed to land a contestant in the flight of 32 amateurs and pros who will begin match play tomorrow for the title now held by Andy Gibson, Country Club of Maryland pro. Gibson shot a 37-36—73.

'Skins Boss Still Irked By Defeat

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

George Preston Marshall was a little cooler yesterday, in spite of the heat, and took time out to propose a method of eliminating the "incompetent" officiating that figured in the Washington Redskins' 45-35 beating Sunday by the New York Giants.

"The National Football League must pay its officials more," Marshall said at the weekly Touchdown Club luncheon. "It must pay them enough so they will make a full-time job of officiating—instead of trying to handle a game after working at some other job all week."

The Redskin president's remarks followed a Sunday blast at Back Judge Claude Grigsby, a Chicago insurance man who called two crucial pass-interference penalties against the 'Skins. Marshall had protested Grigsby's further use here to N. F. L. Commissioner Bert Bell, who countered with the obvious ruling that an official's judgment cannot be protested.

"Need Younger Officials"

"We need younger officials, too," Marshall said, again aiming at the 40-year-old Grigsby, former Georgetown captain. "There are better young men calling plays around the local high schools than we have in our league, but every time I bring up one of their names I look like I'm trying for hometown officiating."

Marshall emphatically denied a report that it was he, and not Coach Billick Whelchel, who insisted that Rookie Harry Gilmer run the Redskins during their disastrous second half.

Whelchel later defended the use of the Alabama youngster, at a time when Slingin' Sammy Baugh was enjoying a great day, with the surprising statement that Baugh himself sent his understudy into action.

"The substitution had my approval, of course," said Whelchel. "Gilmer needs experience badly and we'll have to gamble with him a little. We didn't win with him—but you can hardly say we threw the game by using him. We needed his long passes pretty badly when we were 24 points behind."

Kentucky No. 1

Williamson Called Turn On Army Win

By Paul B. Williamson

In the No. 1 game last week, the Williamson System was absolutely alone among nationally distributed predictors and "lines" in prize-picking Army over Michigan.

After a 25-game winning streak, the mighty Wolverines bowed to the powerful Kaydets, 7 to 21.

Among other prize Williamson picks last week were: Hawaii U 27, Denver 14; Temple 27, Syracuse 14; Amherst 14, Bowdoin 7; Clemson 7, Mississippi State 7 (ratings called for a possible tie); Illinois 20, Iowa U 14; Kentucky 25, Georgia 0 (the System was almost alone on this one); Xavier 27, Miami 19; Sewanee 21, Millsaps 12; Hardin 20, North Texas State 17; U.C.L.A. 14, Stanford 7; Vanderbilt 28, Ole Miss 27 (rated for close score)

Krouse Played With Broken Hand

Ray Krouse, Maryland tackle who gained All-America stature with his phenomenal defensive game against Michigan State Saturday, played the last half with a broken hand.

X-rays yesterday revealed he broke a small bone in his right hand. It was placed in a cast and Krouse will not be permitted to practice this week.

The Terps are idle Saturday, but swing back into action the following week against North Carolina State.

Interhigh Double Bill Set Saturday

Four solid hours of Interhigh football entertainment is set for Saturday afternoon at Central High Stadium. It's the first grid-iron doubleheader in local schoolboy history.

In the 1 p. m. curtain raiser, Coolidge, only one game out of first place in Group II, faces Roosevelt. In the nightcap, Anacostia, first in Group I, tackles second place Eastern.

Besides being important, the games bring together two pairs of natural rivals. The highly attractive program is expected to fill Central's 8500 capacity stadium.

After whipping Wilson, 6-0, in its opener, Coolidge ran into a surprisingly powerful McKinley Tech club last week, and lost, 26-0. That's not as bad as it sounds. Tech is showing its best ground offense since Andy Davis and Bugs Thompson were carrying the load for the Trainers five years ago.

Anacostia and Eastern are pointing with pride at ties they hold against the clubs which are currently rated the strongest. Three weeks ago, Eastern tied Tech, 6-6, and last week Anacostia held defending champion Central to 13-13.

Eastern will be strengthened greatly by the return of its No. 1 running back of last year, Ritchie Hite, who was hurt early in the training season. He and Passer Danny Cookman give the Ramblers a formidable offense.

Anacostia, principally a running team, looks to Ed (Bama) Burt, Billy Butler and Bob Chatlin to hold down its lead in Group I.

as guest of Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

Thursday he plans to go to Capitol Hill for brief separate appearances before the House and Senate. He will fly to New York Saturday for a crowded week of public and private receptions.

Nehru Said to Favor Red China Recognition

London, Oct. 10 (NYHT).—Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, Prime Minister of India, who is here en route to Washington, was reported tonight to be in favor of early recognition of the new Communist regime of General Hao Tse-tung, in China.

The Indian Premier, who flies to Washington on President Truman's personal plane, was said to have pressed his ideas about China with Prime Minister Clement Attlee at a luncheon meeting today, and to be planning to urge them on President Truman.

British policy toward China is extremely hesitant at present. While Britain's large economic interests in China create pressure for early recognition of the new regime, the Labor government is believed to be withholding action pending consultation with the United States.

Loneliness Limited

New York, Oct. 10 (AP).—Greta Garbo returned from Europe today wanting just as much as ever to be alone.

"I definitely want to leave without seeing anyone," she yelled from behind her locked cabin door when newsmen sought to interview her.

What Nehru Has Said of Us

You Americans looked upon India as an appendage of Britain, and Asia as dependents of Europe and America. Some of you thought in terms of benevolence toward those countries, but always with a taint of superiority. You considered yourselves, with your inventions of the machine age, to be infinitely better than us and that we are benighted and backward people. But the people of Asia do not propose to be treated in that manner any longer. (1942)

The United States of America solves its minority problems more or less, by trying to make every citizen a 100 percent American. They make everyone conform to a certain type.

All the evils of a purely political democracy are evident in the United States; the evils of the lack of political democracy are present in the United States of Soviet Russia. And yet they have much in common—a dynamic outlook and vast resources, a social fluidity, an absence of a medieval background, a faith in science and its applications, and widespread education and opportunities for the people.

It is said that America has ceased to be isolationist. Inevitably so, for she must now depend to a great extent on her exports abroad. . . . Such is the curious nature of present-day economy in these days of mass production that the United States of America, the wealthiest and most powerful country in the world, becomes dependent on other countries absorbing its surplus production.

Americans, in spite of having their roots in the Old World, are a new people, uninhibited and without the burdens and complexes of old races, and it is easy to understand their abounding vitality.

Both Americans and Russians . . . do not carry that heavy burden of the past which oppressed Asia and Europe . . . As a result of this they can approach other peoples without that background of mutual distrust which always accompanies the contacts of well-established imperialist nations with others.

Agreements Due By Noon Today on Pay Raise Bills

Conferences will be held today on both the classified and top-flight pay raise bills. Barring an unforseen hitch, agreements on both measures will be reached by noon today. Yesterday's conferences were cancelled due to the death of Senator Miller (D., Idaho).

A proposed compromise on the classified bill to be presented to the conferees will provide: an average increase of about $130-a-year for the 885,000 classified employes; a $14,000 ceiling compared with $10,330 at present; an 18-grade schedule instead of 13 as proposed by the Senate, and House conferees are opposed to the Senate provisions on hazardous pay and revamping of the efficiency rating system.

LAY-OFF: Another big lay-off in the War Assets Administration that would affect all General Services Administration agencies is in the works. WAA requested 25 million dollars for this fiscal year; it received less than half of that amount, after the fiscal year is nearly a third past.

CANDIDATE? Wesley Powell, administrative assistant to Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) may enter the Senate race against Senator Tobey (R., N. H.).

STORY: The typical auditor or accountant, Elbert Hubbard is credited with writing, "is a man past middle-age, spare, wrinkled, intelligent, cold, passive, noncommittal, with eyes like a codfish, polite in contact, but at the same time unresponsive, cool, calm, and as damnably composed as a concrete post or a plaster of Paris cast; a human petrification with a heart of feldspar, and without charm or the friendly germ, minus passions and a sense of humor. Happily, though, they seldom reproduce—and all of them finally go to hell."

A provoked Federal worker sent me the quotation with the following P.S.: "I didn't realize how true it was until I tangled with the accountants in our office over my travel allowance."

VA: Its 17,000 doctors, dentists and nurses are becoming a bit concerned over the delay by the President in signing the bill to raise their salaries. Wednesday is the deadline for White House action on it. The bill is a good bet to be signed. Its approval has been recommended both by the Budget Bureau and the Civil Service Commission. The President has postponed action in hopes Congress will act speedily on the other pay bills before it.

SEC: Those 50 employes laid off here by the Securities and Exchange Commission won't be restored to their jobs in a body. At the last moment, conferees on the supplemental appropriation bill struck out funds to pay their salaries . . . EXEMPT: Jobs dealing exclusively with communications intelligence activities in the Defense Department have been exempt from Civil Service . . . UNIFORMS: Alfred B. Beiter, president of the National Customs Service Association, has urged conferees on the postal pay bill to require Uncle Sam to supply uniforms for all Federal people who are required to wear them. Customs and immigration inspectors are among those who must buy their own uniforms.

JOBS: Civil Service today is accepting applications for junior professional assistant, junior agricultural assistant, and junior management assistant. The three tests are designed to attract bright young people to the Federal Service. Applications will be taken from college seniors. The jobs pay $2974 to start . . . To be announced soon is an exam for patent adviser, $3727 to $6235 . . . Census has given lay-off notices to some of its war service and temporary grade 2 and 3 clerks. It will be hiring many of them next spring.

SLUMP: Federal hiring during the month of August was the smallest since before the war. The job freezes, delayed appropriations, and general uncertainty were the reasons for it.

In this Capital City, 5828 Federal workers were separated and 3296 were hired during the month, the lowest volume of personnel transactions in more than two years. Employment in the executive branch here on September 1 fell to 214,500 compared with 208,200 a year ago.

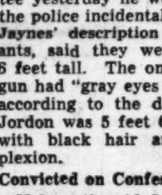
Senate Group Intervenes in Jordon Case

If New Evidence Warrants, Will Ask Retrial of Garden T Shoppe Murder

Congress intervened yesterday for the second time in the 18-year-old Garden T Shoppe murder case, for which Thomas Jordon is serving a life sentence at the Lorton, Va., penitentiary.



Jordon

A subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, headed by Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.), launched an investigation of the case yesterday after hearing testimony of John M. Holzworth, formerly Jordon's attorney.

It acted on a resolution introduced in Congress last week by Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), asking that the study be made to permit Jordon to move for a new trial if it appears that new evidence is sufficient to warrant it.

Jordan, now 43, was sentenced in 1937 to death in the electric chair in the slaying of Mrs. Lizzie T. Jaynes, cashier at the Garden T Shoppe, 1835 Columbia rd. nw., on Good Friday, April 3, 1931.

Holzworth, former assistant District Attorney of Westchester County, N. Y., and now a lawyer in Fairbanks, Alaska, met Jordon for the first time after sentence was pronounced.

When attempts to appeal failed, Holzworth persuaded the Congressional Committee on Crime of the House District Committee to review the conviction. He charged evidence had been suppressed and witnesses who could have cleared Jordan were not called.

As a result, President Franklin D. Roosevelt commuted the sentence to life imprisonment on June 11, 1937.

Jordon has since suffered a paralytic stroke at the penitentiary, where he has been a "model prisoner," Holzworth said.

The lawyer told the subcommittee yesterday he would show that the police incidental, carrying Mrs. Jaynes' description of her assailants, said they were both about 6 feet tall. The one carrying the gun had "gray eyes and fair hair," according to the description, but Jordon was 5 feet 6½ inches tall, with black hair and dark complexion.

Convicted on Confession

Holzworth said Jordon was convicted "solely on his own confession, although he never was connected to the crime by any evidence." He later repudiated the confession, which was never corroborated by testimony, Holzworth said.

He said he is prepared to produce at least four witnesses who will testify that they saw the holdup and shooting done by two men, neither of them Jordon.

Another possible witness is Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett, who was suspended from the police force on conviction of assaulting George M. Baber, a suspect in the murder. Barrett, then a detective sergeant in charge of the Homicide Squad, was later cleared of the charge and reinstated.

Congressional action is necessary to reopen the Jordon case because the statute of limitations sets a two-year limit after conviction for arguing a motion for a new trial based on new evidence. The limit was six months at the time of the Jordon case.

District Nurse Dies in Crash In Maryland

A Providence Hospital anesthetist was killed early yesterday, and her roommate was injured, when their car failed to make a curve on Route 29 near Clarksville, Md., and overturned four times.

Miss Elizabeth Mary Osborne, 26, 2400 S st. se., died instantly in the crash, according to Maryland State Police.

Her roommate, also an anesthetist at Providence, Mrs. Evelyn N. Brightwell, 38, was taken to Montgomery County General Hospital in Ashton, Md. She was reported in good condition.

Both women graduated two years ago from Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore and had served as Army nurses. Miss Osborne was a native of Tucson, Ariz.

Notre Dame Alumni To Hold Book Seminar

A seminar covering eight great books and documents will be held by a group of about 30 persons here from now until next May, under the sponsorship of the local Alumni Association of the University of Notre Dame.

The sessions will be held the second Thursday of each month, beginning this Thursday, at the Carlton Hotel. The Socratic question and answer method of discussion will be used, according to the announcement.

By Gov. Lane

D. C. Dunned For Old Debt To Maryland

Gov. L. Preston Lane of Maryland last night dunned the Federal Government for a 150-year-old debt of $72,000, plus interest.

But he appeared pessimistic about chances of collecting it.

Efforts through the years "have met with frustration," he smilingly told the Washington Board of Trade at its annual fall meeting at the Mayflower Hotel.

The Free State gave the District of Columbia 60 square miles of her "valuable and unblemished soil" in 1791, Lane recalled. Plus the sum of $72,000.

Later Loan Repaid

"There must have been some haphazard management in your early beginning," he said, "because it became necessary for General Washington to personally appeal to Governor Stone in 1796 for the advance of additional money."

In eight years, 'we let you have another $250,000." But that was "slowly paid back."

Lane said the $72,000 is still owed, although a number of bills for its repayment have been introduced in Congress to no avail. No interest or dates of payment were specified in the Maryland act, so Congress apparently considers it a donation, Lane added.

He suggested that some of the banker members of the Board of Trade determine how much is due, at "a fair rate of interest compounded for 150 years."

In a more serious vein, Lane said that "those who believe in the fundamental principles of States' rights" may just as well "concede frankly that much of the alarming progress of Federal encroachment upon the original domain of the States has come about because State governments failed to meet the challenge of the new day."

Recently, he continued, there has been "an awakening social consciousness in practically all of the States, with a resulting quickening interest in State government."

But he complained that the debt owed Maryland "is all the more vexing to me because we are constantly being requested to provide more and more governmental service for the people of the District and its suburbs." He cited new roads and larger schools.

Another feature of the meeting was presentation of a testimonial scroll to Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle by the Board of Trade. It was in recognition of her service for 20 years on the Board of Education before her resignation as president in March.

James A. Cassidy told of plans to mark the sixtieth anniversary of the board on November 27, and Ernest F. Henry outlined activities of the board's Metropolitan Development Committee.

Moore Boy Says Mother Cursed Father

Eleven-year-old John A. Moore, jr., testified yesterday that his mother opce cursed his father and stepmother.

Johnnie was on the witness stand in District Court for four hours yesterday in a proceeding before Judge F. Dickinson Letts to determine who should have custoday of John and his 7-year-old brother, James.

John told the court that after spending the last three days with his father, a 44-year-old farmer at Mount Airy, Md., he still wishes to live with his mother, Mrs. Rose B. Moore, 40, of 766 Princeton pl. nw.

The parents were divorced several years ago, and on a number of occasions, Mrs. Moore has pleaded that the court give her permanent custody of the boys. This is the latest of her attempts, the others having failed.

Virginia Court Backs Conviction For Seduction

Conviction of Guy H. Fuller, now 20 years old, of 66 New York ave. ne., on a charge of seducing an Arlington girl on a promise of marriage which he did not fulfill, was upheld yesterday by the Virginia Supreme Court. A child was born to the girl.

Fuller originally was sentenced to two years in prison after conviction in Arlington County Circuit Court last May. He subsequently was placed on probation. He was a student at Bell Vocational School here.

Despite the probation, he appealed to the Virginia Supreme Court on alleged errors in the trial, but the high tribunal decided the appeal was without sufficient merit to justify reversal.

Woman Held U. S. Citizen, Wins $112,391

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

A New York woman yesterday found herself $112,391 richer by virtue of an opinion by the United States Court of Appeals that she had not lost her American citizenship even though she had married a German and lived in Berlin throughout the war.

The court found the woman, Mrs. Jane Henley Zander, had been forced to remain in Germany by the exigencies of war; that she had defeated efforts by the Nazis to draft her for war service; that she had fled Germany as soon as feasible and that she had "rejected all theories of German citizenship . . ."

The decision involved a $112,391 inheritance seized and vested in the Alien Property Custodian during the war under authority of the Trading With the Enemy Act. The money had been left to Mrs. Zander by a grandfather.

The ruling, which agreed that Mrs. Zander was entitled to have the money returned to her, upheld a District Court decision handed down by Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff last October. Judge Holtzoff's ruling was appealed by the Government.

Mrs. Zander, then Jane Henley, residing in New Orleans, went to Germany for a visit in June, 1939, with return passage booked for September 9, 1939.

Hitler's invasion of Poland delayed and finally prevented her return.

Meanwhile she married Dieter Zander, a German citizen. Zander later was drafted into the German army and the Nazis sought to force Mrs. Zander to enter a labor corps.

When the Yanks smashed into Germany, Mrs. Zander, posing as a refugee, found space on a train leaving Berlin, and made her way, partly on foot, to the American Army, some 200 miles away.

In May, 1946, she returned to the United States. By strange coincidence, Zander had been captured while serving with the German army in Africa and sent to the United States as a war prisoner.

He proved valuable in indoctrinating fellow prisoners with democratic principles at behest of American authorities, was released from prison in 1947, sent to Germany, and then allowed to reenter the United States on an immigration visa. He and his wife then settled in New York, where he is now connected with a brokerage house.

Goldberg Opens Tour With Eclat

By Paul Hume

A great violinist opened his first American tour last night in the initial program of Alexandria's Community Concerts Series.

Playing in the auditorium of George Washington High School, Szymon Goldberg gave his first recital since leaving South America where he has been busy all summer.

Last night's playing was of unusual interest for several reasons. First of all, Goldberg is a great musician-violinist. He is one of the few string players today who has thoroughly mastered the art of playing Eighteenth century music. Bach, Mozart, and Handel came from his fingers with unaccustomed clarity, phrasing, and vitality.

The greatest nonmusical element of the evening was the mystery surrounding the artist's program. For Goldberg discarded the rather pedestrian program first announced and played a much finer list. He will no doubt hear from his managing office because he did not play the program they approved, one chosen for the hinter provinces.

He played sonatas by Handel, Bach, and Brahms, with two short pieces by Mozart for superb fillers. What a relief from the Mendelssohn concerto announced earlier, and the usual silly group of miscellaneous pieces generally found at the close of such programs.

For Goldberg is an unusual artist. His Mozart was the best we have heard since Szigeti, his Handel an almost new thing of beauty, we hear its kind so seldom. The Bach sonata was in D minor, with the chaconne at the conclusion. Here the evening's high humidity seemed to trouble the intonation at times but not enough to cause serious disturbance.

Of the entire program, only the Brahms A Major sonata failed to catch fire either with Goldberg or the audience. Carl Mosbacher was discreet in his accompaniments where discretion was a virtue, as in the Handel. In Brahms, he asserted his right to attention with happy results.

We think Szymon Goldberg will find a large audience in America as he is heard across our country. We hope he will never feel the urge to change his natural, sweet tone or fine style for anything erroneously thought to be more sensational. The sensation of hearing great classic music played by Goldberg is enough.

'Equitable' Fire Tax Plan To Be Sought

A "more equitable" plan for paying for Prince Georges County fire protection will be sought by a committee named last night by the Prince Georges Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber met in the County Service Building in Hyattsville.

Appointment of the committee, with Hanson D. Powers as chairman, followed an airing of fire tax difficulties in which Nicholas Orem, jr., chamber president, said Hyattsville is paying more than a fair share for protection.

Orem said there is a "$43,000 fire tax kitty" collected yearly by general county taxation. From this kitty, he said, $1500 is given yearly to each fire department which, agrees to assist anywhere the fire board sends it.

Orem said Hyattsville pay $4300 into the kitty and gets back only $1500 which necessitates an additional tax on real estate in the community to maintain an adequate firefighting force.

This burden he contrasted with residents in areas which are fire-tax free but which get aid from the Hyattsville and other companies by virtue of contributions to the general fund only.

A part of the meeting was devoted to plans for the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of the chamber to be held at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club October 24.

Halt to Apartment Construction Urged

The Montgomery County Civic Federation, beset by the growing pains of a rapidly expanding community, last night urged the Montgomery County Council to suspend all permits for apartment house construction until the county has adequate schools, roads and public utility facilities.

In a resolution, the federation argued that more apartments will bring more residents to the community, further increasing the load on public facilities.

The issue was debated for more than an hour after an amendment to table the resolution for further study was defeated 49 to 15.

The federation, in other action, asked that further public hearings on rezoning acreage in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area for apartments be postponed until a committee can determine housing needs in that community.

More than 100 person attended the meeting held in the Bethesda Elementary School.

House to Renew Fight on Funds For Sesqui Fete

Savings Seen

Approval Due For Capitol Utility Work

Quick approval was forecast yesterday for legislation to authorize a 16-million-dollar modernization for the heating, air conditioning and electric power systems serving the Capitol and nearby buildings.

The House Public Works Committee, after hearing testimony on the program yesterday, scheduled an executive session for 10 a. m. today to act on the bill.

Chairman William M. Whittington (D., Miss.) and Representative George A. Dondero (R., Mich.), ranking minority member, voiced support for immediate favorable action on the bill.

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) member of the committee, and also of the House Office Building Commission which supervised drafting the program, launched the hearing with an appeal for favorable action on the bill. Among other witnesses who had taken part in drafting the plan were George A. Weschler and C. W. Bogan, Washington consulting engineers; R. E. Cummings of the New York Engineering firm of Burns & Roe; Capitol Architect David Lynn, George A. Henlock, Lynn's administrative officer; Robert L. Harrison, chief engineer, and J. M. Cowell, assistant engineer for the Capitol power plant.

Main features are (1) conversion of the electrical system from 25 cycle alternating current, with power to be brought from the Potomac Electric Power Co., instead of being made at the Capitol power plant, (2) replacing of 16 old boilers with two modern new ones to take over the heating of the Capitol Hill buildings, (3) enlarging of the air-conditioning plant, and (4) construction of a new tunnel to carry steam and chilled water lines.

Lynn, estimated that close to $700,000 a year would be saved if the remodeling is carried through.

4th-Round Tussle For $3,000,000 Viewed Hopefully By Pro Forces

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

A three-million-dollar fund for launching the National Capital Sesquicentennial next year is slated for a fourth-round House fight today.

The House has voted against it three times, but members of both parties predicted last night that this time it will be approved, after a fight.

Speaker Rayburn (D., Tex.) pointed out that throwing out the Sesquicentennial funds means throwing the whole supplemental appropriation bill back to conferance. Conference reports have to be accepted or rejected as a whole.

Comment Withdrawn

On this basis, he withdrew a comment he had made earlier in the day that the Sesqui money would touch off a "ruction" in the House. He said he had been thinking that the issue was to come up in a bill, rather than a conference report.

Prediction that there will be a sharp flurry over the fund was made clear by Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.), ranking Republican member of the House Appropriations Committee.

Taber told a reporter that "you can quote me on this—the Sesquicentennial is the worst lobby proposition that I have known in 27 years in the House, and there will be a lot of hot charges on it."

Representative Karl Stefan (R., Nebr.), another Republican member of the Appropriations Committee, however, predicted approval for the Sesquicentennial fund.

Representative Percy Priest (D. Tenn.), majority whip, also predicted the fund would be approved.

Riders Listed

Riding with the supplemental appropriation bill are the funds for paying the retroactive municipal employe salary boosts and for continuing the District child day care center program this year.

Also slated for House action today is the resolution to launch a special House District subcommittee into a sweeping probe of Washington crime and the effectiveness of law enforcement agencies.

The House agreed yesterday to postpone other District bills until Thursday, including the one to increase from 10 to 13 the number of Municipal Court judges.

Catholics Open Schools To Negroes

Doors of Catholic grammar and high schools in the new Archdiocese of Washington have been opened to Negro students without discrimination. Four Negro students are enrolled in two high schools, and a fifth at an elementary school.

Disclosure of the new policy came yesterday after the Rev. Joseph F. Cantillon, S.J., assistant dean of St. Peter's College, Jersey City, N. J., spoke at an open forum at Catholic University against racial discrimination. The forum was held Sunday night.

Father Cantillon said he was informed by Catholic University officials that at the instigation of the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, the schools were ordered open to Negro students without bias at the beginning of the present term. Father Cantillon praised the action.

At the archdiocesan office of education yesterday, the Very Rev. John S. Spence, director of education, released a short statement that opened to question Father Cantillon's authority to speak on the subject.

"When a statement of policy regarding this issue is issued," Monsignor Spence said, "it will be issued by authorities of this archdiocese and by a priest of this archdiocese."

He declined further comment.

However, it was learned that this year, two Negro students have been enrolled and are attending classes at Gonzaga High School, 27 I st. nw.; two at St. Paul's Academy, 1421 V st. nw., and one at St. Aloysiuus Parochial School, which is in the same parish as Gonzaga High.

Father Cantillon is a member of a "flying trio," which includes a Negro engineer, who is a Catholic convert, and a white businessman who furnishes a plane for their trips.

The trio tours the country to lecture against discrimination. The others are Archibald F. Glover, a civil engineer in the New York City public service department, and Julian J. Reiss of Lake Placid, N. Y.

Catholic Schools To Mark Holiday

Parochial schools in Washington will close Wednesday in observance of Columbus Day, it was announced yesterday by the Very Reverend Monsignor John Spence, director of education for the Archdiocese of Washington.

Parochial schools in nearby Maryland will also close for the holiday, but in Virginia the Catholic schools will remain open.

Parking Fees Discontinued At Armory

Quickly reversing itself in face of weekend protests, the District Armory Board yesterday voted to discontinue paid auto parking at the armory lot.

The board also decided to allocate $6000 to pave and light the area to provide free parking for about 700 cars under direct Armory supervision and with police protection. The board met in the office of Commissioner J. Russell Young.

The Washington Home Builders Association put up a howl Saturday when visitors to the Home Show at the armory were charged —without public notice—a 25-cent parking fee. Parking there had previously been free.

Though yesterday's board action appeared to have cleared the air, one question remained unsettled last night: what happens to the armory's parking concession contract with Federal Parking Services, Inc.

Arthur (Dutch) Bergman, armory manager, said the contract runs until next April but said he felt its termination "could be mutually worked out without any trouble."

Gas Firm Changes Rate-Fixing Plan

The Washington Gas Light Co. yesterday abandoned its "scientific" method of rate-fixing to make sure Uncle Sam shares with individual District consumers the burden of the proposed rate boost.

Science gave way to "practicality," by the company's own admission as hearings resumed before the Public Utilities Commission on the firm's petition for a 7 percent rate increase to provide a $900,000 hike in operating revenues.

The rate schedule originally proposed two weeks ago by the gas company would mean that small users would pay 10.24 percent of the increase, big apartment owners only 2.34 percent, and the Federal Government's bills would be smaller by 1.04 percent.

Yesterday, on PUC instructions, the company submitted a rate schedule based on $600,000 more revenue or a 4.92 percent rate hike. This one to the company's dismay, showed that Uncle Sam would receive an even smaller monthly bill than if the 7 percent increase were authorized.

To wipe out the Government's preferential treatment, the company presented another rate schedule, based upon "more practical considerations," which make the Federal Government bear 3.11 percent of the full increase requested.

Howard B. Noyes, a company vice president, commented on the rejiggered schedule, stating that "rate-making is not an exact science. In fact, it should be described as an art."

The hearing will continue at 10 a. m. today when the attorney for the District Gas Consumers and Independent Dealers, is expected to introduce the fifty-fifth exhibit of the 12-day proceeding purporting to show that the company's proposed rate schedules are "discriminatory" to the different classes of consumers.

Realty Man Wins

Libel Award Of $30,000 Is Upheld

The Supreme Court yesterday upheld a District Court jury's $30,000 libel award to a Arlington real estate man against a broker.

The court refused to review the jury award to Thomas E. Edwards, 6005 Washington blvd., Arlington, who had charged he was libeled during a 1945 election campaign by N. C. Hines, 426 Investment Building, Washington.

The judgment was based on letters mailed by Hines. Edwards won $15,000 compensatory and $15,000 punitive damages. The Court of Appeals upheld the verdict.

In two other cases involving District real estate the Supreme Court also refused to intervene.

One case involved a 1907 covenant against construction of apartment houses on a Connecticut ave. nw. plot, between Northhampton and Oliver sts. The Saint Lo Construction Co. has sought to have the covenant set aside to build a $3,000,000 apartment.

The apartment project was prevented by an injunction secured in District Court in 1947 by Lawrence Koenigsberger, the District's one-man Board of Tax Appeals, who lives at 3749 McKinley st. nw. He and his wife brought the suit as private individuals. Yesterday's action means the injunction against the apartment will continue indefinitely.

The second real estate case involved a 30-foot building restriction line at 11th and Lamont sts. nw. The high court refused to intervene, with the result that part of a shopping center under construction there by Burman Properties, Inc., will have to be torn down. The lower courts had sided with neighboring property owners who sought to restrain the firm from building within 30 feet of the inside walk on Lamont st.

White House Bill Sent to Senate

The House yesterday approved and sent to the Senate a bill to let the White House rebuilding commission dispose of the materials removed from the historic building during its remodeling.

In another move, the President sent to Congress a request for a $50,000 appropriation for the work of the commission. It would boost to $100,000 the amount available for the commission's work during the current fiscal year.

Man Sentenced For Failure to Appear in Court

James S. Kidwell, 38, of 927 6th st. nw., was sentenced yesterday to pay $10 or serve a day in jail for failing to appear in Municipal Court Friday when summoned as complaining witness in an assault case.

Sentence was imposed by Judge Thomas D. Quinn after Kidwell said that he didn't think his appearance was necessary, since he had told police he wasn't going to prosecute his alleged assailant, George J. Vakas, 31, of 639 Maryland ave. sw.

Vakas did appear in court, demanded a jury trial, and was held under $300 bond for trial November 30.

Dr. Steenson Is Moderator Of Presbytery

The Rev. Dr. Isaac Steenson, pastor of Clarendon Presbyterian Church, Arlington, Va., yesterday was unanimously elected moderator of the Presbytery of Washington City.

Dr. Steenson will succeed James Sherrier, Washington attorney, whose term as moderator will end in December. Sherrier was the first layman to hold the post within recorded history of the body.

Election of Dr. Steenson, who has been pastor of the Virginia church for 20 years, was at the monthly meeting of Presbytery at District Heights Presbyterian Church, District Heights, Md.

In another action the Presbytery placed in the hands of the Rev. Howard F. Gebhart a call to become pastor of Arlington Presbyterian Church. The church has been without a pastor since last spring when the Rev. Walter F. Wolf resigned to accept a pastorate in Cincinnati.

The new pastor of Arlington church will be installed at a service at 8 p. m. Friday at Arlington Methodist Church, Glebe rd. and South 8th st., Arlington.

Presbyterian churches in this area or members of the churches have made arrangements to sponsor 88 displaced persons, the Rev. James Lundquist, pastor of Lewinsville, Va., Presbyterian Church reported. Of these, 42 are already settled, and the remainder are coming to the United States soon, he said.

At the evening session of the Presbytery, the District Heights church was dedicated by officials of Presbytery, led by the Rev. Robert S. Chamberlain, the pastor.

First services of the church were held in 1944 in District Heights School, and the present building was completed in 1947. Furnishing of the church was completed during the past summer.

Restaurateur Held In Sale of Indecent Pictures to Pupils

A 31-year-old lunchroom owner, who police said sold indecent literature and pictures to school children within a block of Gordon Junior High and Roosevelt High School, was arrested yesterday by vice squad detectives.

The restaurateur was identified as Roy H. Bell, 31, who owns and operates the Bell's Luncheonette, 4424 Georgia ave. nw. He was arrested after a 15-year-old high school student to whom he sold indecent literature last week, reported him to police.

He was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence on charges of keeping and possessing indecent literature and transporting same in interstate commerce. He was held under $2500 bond, pending a hearing [illegible]

George B. Parker Dead at 63; Scripps Howard's Chief Editor

George B. Parker, 63, a Pulitzer Prize winner for distinguished editorial writing, and for the past 22 years editor in chief of the Scripps Howard Newspapers, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital.

A newspaperman for 40 years, Mr. Parker became ill Wednesday night at his home, 1840 24th st. nw., and entered the hospital the next day, suffering an internal hemorrhage.

His last editorial, written in longhand on yellow paper, as its thousands of predecessors, urged the Congress "to take off the muzzle, remove the blinders, and let the people know" about the unification controversy. It appeared Friday.

Oklahoma U. Graduate

Mr. Parker was born in Ithaca, Mich., where his father was deacon of the First Baptist Church, and where he received the nicknames "Deac" and "Deacon," by which he was known to his friends.

The first 18 years of his life were spent on a Michigan farm and in Michigan public schools. He launched his distinguished newspaper career at the age of 22, after graduating from the University of Oklahoma in 1908.

His first reporting was done for the Scripps-Howard Oklahoma News. After a brief trick with its rival, the Daily Oklahoman, Mr. Parker rejoined the News in 1910 and stayed with the Scripps-Howard chain until his death.

In 10 years with the Oklahoma News, he served successively as reporter, city editor, managing editor and editor, in addition to writing a daily column "The Referee." In this column he once described the theft of a tire from his car, and wrote that he had refrained from notifying police because "I didn't want to lose the other four tires."

Brought Governor's Ouster

His vigorous editorials led to the impeachment of an Oklahoma Governor, who was a member of the Ku Klux Klan. The Governor had been attacked by Parker for declaring martial law and giving fear of the KKK as his reason. It was developed subsequently that the Governor was himself a Klansman.

At a national political convention in San Francisco in 1920, Mr. Parker met the late Robert P. Scripps and formed a personal friendship which lasted until Scripps died. After the latter's death, Mr. Parker served as a trustee of the E. W. Scripps trust. Under the terms of the E. W. Scripps will, he relinquished that responsibility to Charles Scripps when the latter reached the stipulated age of succession.

... internal hemorrhage ends life

In 1920, Mr. Parker became editor of the Cleveland Press, and two years later was named editor in chief of the southwestern group of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, with headquarters in Houston, Tex. In 1924, Mr. Parker became general editorial executive of the Scripps-Howard newspapers and in 1927, their editor in chief.

Averaged Editorial a Day

In this job, Mr. Parker was primarily concerned with broad lines of policy, although he averaged an editorial a day until recent years.

He was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for distinguished editorials which appeared in the Scripps-Howard newspapers in 1936.

He was a member of the National Press Club, the Overseas Writers Club, the Lotos Club of New York City and Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Delta and Kappa Alpha fraternities. His wife, Adelaide Loomis Parker, whom he married in 1912, died last June.

Mr. Parker is survived by one son, George B. Parker, jr., and a daughter, Miss Mary Parker, both of Washington. They were at their father's bedside when death came.

World Chief Of Salvation Army Here

Back in 1909, when 22-year-old John J. Allan married his boyhood sweetheart in New York City, 1500 guests attended the wedding.

It wasn't exactly a champagne affair, for the 1500 guests were drunks, derelicts, down-and-outs—in short, bums.

They arrived in wagons, buses, horse cars, and many afoot. The scene was a Salvation Army hall.

Allan had invited them because he liked bums.

The bridegroom of 1909, then a young officer in the Salvation Army, is now Commissioner Allan, chief of staff of the far-flung organization. He directs the huge staff in the 97 countries and colonies where the Army conducts its religious and social service activities.

He still likes bums.

More specifically, and in his own words, "It's the personal dealings with down-and-outs, gamblers, and drunkards that I enjoy. I like to take hold of them, talk with them, pray with them."

Here From London

Here from his London headquarters for conferences with Government and Salvation Army officials, Commissioner Allan took time out yesterday to talk about the army's activities and to reminisce.

Tonight, at a 7 o'clock dinner in his honor at the Mayflower Hotel, Commissioner Allan will tell what the army is doing in war-stricken countries of Europe and Asia.

Now 62, he holds the rank of colonel in the United States Army Reserve, after service as chaplain in two wars. Before he leaves tonight for conferences in New York, Chicago and Canada, he plans to see Gen. George C. Marshall, with whom he served on Gen. John J. Pershing's staff.

The first American-born leader that the Salvation Army ever has had, Commissioner Allan joined the Army naturally. His English parents were both sent to this country as members of the organization.

"They sent them to America as missionaries, I guess," Allan said, with a smile.

200 Educators Discuss Youth Program Here

Two hundred of the Nation's leading educators representing 32 States yesterday began a four-day conference to discuss methods of advancing educational programs to meet the needs of all high school age youth.

The conference, at Federal Security Agency, Office of Education, was called by the National Commission on Life Adjustment Education for Youth.

Dr. J. Dan Hull, assistant director of the Office of Education's division of secondary education, in opening the conference said all boys and girls should be retained in school at least part-time until they finish high school or until they are 18 years old.

At present only one-half of the Nation's boys and girls graduate from high school.

Schools, he said, are failing to provide education programs under which every child can be taught.

Services Ask Unified U. S. School Aid

The Army, Navy and Air Force presented a united front yesterday before a House Labor and Education Subcommittee and called for a single program of aiding communities overburdened with school enrollments resulting from Federal activities.

Spokesmen for the three branches of the service testified that the Government is doing an "inadequate job" in helping communities provide schooling for children in areas where there are large Government installations.

The Federal Government has swallowed up taxable land while attracting large numbers of families to communities, it was said.

"Not a Military Function"

The services now individually administer programs of assistance. At some installations the services conduct their own schools and in other localities pay a portion of the tuition charged parents. A number of communities are receiving no Federal aid at all.

Testifying before the committee, the three service spokesmen said that the task of educating children is not a proper function of the military and voiced approval of a bill that would turn over the job to the United States Office of Education.

Lieut. Col. Harry Eckoff, chief of information and education in the office of the Deputy Chief of Staff of the Air Force, cited the plight of Midwest City, Okla. Since establishment of Tinker Field the school population in Midwest City has grown from 104 to a current enrollment of 3207. The city, which must provide schooling for the children, can collect tuition for only 17 who actually live on the base.

Arlington Farms Cited

Eckoff said that parents living in nearby Arlington Farms help pay the tuition charged by Arlington County. The service pays $100 a year and the parents $22.

John B. Plott of the office of the fiscal director of the Navy said that 19,603 Navy children are living on tax-exempt property. More than 15 thousand are enrolled in public schools.

The Army currently is paying an average of $80 a pupil for 14,000 dependents of Army personnel.

To Hear School Officials

Today the committee will hear from representatives of the Interior and Agriculture Departments. Later in the week school officials will testify.

Committee Chairman Cleveland M. Bailey (D., W. Va.) said that although the District is not included in the bill he expects to hear witnesses on the school problem raised in Washington by the expansion of the Federal Government.

Ex-Embassy Clerk Treason Trial Today

Herbert Burgman, former clerk at the American embassy in Berlin, will go on trial in District Court today on charges of treason.

Burgman is accused of broadcasting Nazi propaganda during the war over a radio station called DEBUNK. A native of Hokah, Minn., he was an American soldier in World War I, afterwards remained in Germany and worked for the embassy. He refused to be repatriated during World War II, it is charged.

W. L. Austin Dies; Retired Census Chief

William Lane Austin, 78, retired director of the Census Bureau, died yesterday at Kings Daughters Hospital in Greenville, Miss.

He retired in 1941, and since 1943 had lived with his sister, Mrs. Woods Eastland, mother of Senator James O. Eastland (D., Miss), at her home in Doddsville, Miss.

Mr. Austin

His retirement came after 40 years of service with the Census Bureau, encompassing 5 of the 16 decennial censuses taken since the bureau was established in 1790.

Born in Lee County, Miss., he was educated at the Harperville School in Scott County and later was graduated from the University of Mississippi.

He was placed in charge of the census of plantations in 1910, and rose through the posts of chief clerk, chief statistician, head of the census of agriculture twice, and finally assistant director of the bureau in 1933. He became director the same year.

He was a charter member of the Francis Asbury Methodist Church here.

His wife died in Washington in 1939.

Funeral services will be held at the home of Senator Eastland in Doddsville today. Interment will be in Forest, Scott County, Miss.

Miss Roseman Funeral Rites Set Today

Funeral services for Miss Justine Johns Roseman, 80, one of the few women in Federal Government service shortly after the turn of the century, will take place today at 11 a. m. at the Hines funeral chapel, 2901 14th st. nw.

Miss Roseman

Miss Roseman entered service of the Census Bureau here in 1933, as a secretary, and retired in 1933 as a division head. Miss Roseman had had some Government service before that. She became a secretary in the Minnesota State Capitol in 1889, after a period as a school teacher near her home in Cape May, N. J. She remained in the Minnesota job until a member of Congress obtained an appointment for her in Washington in 1903.

In recent years, she lived at 1342 Gallatin st. nw. She had been ill for several months and recently underwent an operation. She died Saturday.

Only survivors are two cousins, Mrs. Justine Almy of Oakland, Calif., and Mrs. Jessie Nichols of Oakland, Calif.

Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery where she purchased a lot in 1907 upon death of her mother, who lived with her up to that time.

E. Brooke Lee, Mrs. Nina Poole Are Married

E. Brooke Lee, Montgomery County Democratic leader, married Mrs. Nina G. Poole yesterday afternoon at Christ Congregational Church, Silver Spring.

Lee, vice president of the Maryland-National Park and Planning Commission, was divorced September 29 by his former wife, Mrs. Thelma Llewellyn Lee, who charged abandonment.

The new Mrs. Lee, a leading figure in civic and professional life in Silver Spring, was divorced from Robert M. Poole, Washington banker, about 18 months ago. She is the manager of the Piney Branch Apartments in Silver Spring, owned by Lee.

The application for marriage gave Lee's age as 57 and Mrs. Lee's as 40.

Mrs. Lee is a former president of the Silver Spring Business and Professional Women's Club and of the Silver Spring Woman's Democratic Club, and also held office in the United Democratic Women's Clubs of Maryland and the Maryland Women's Council.

The Lees will live at 8402 Manchester rd., Silver Spring.

W. E. J. Brown Rites Today; Retired Groceryman, 87

Funeral services for William J. E. Brown, 87-year-old retired groceryman, who died Sunday, will be held at 2 p. m. today at Birch's funeral home, 3034 M st. nw. Burial will be in Cedar Hill cemetery.

Mr. Brown

Mr. Brown died at Homeopathic Hospital after an illness of more than two years.

He was born in Baltimore and moved with his family to Washington when he was 12 years old. After public schooling here he entered the retail grocery business. For many years he was associated with John A. Magruder, now Magruder, Inc., when the first store was operated at Connecticut ave. and K st. nw. He retired 15 years ago.

Mr. Brown was a member of the Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw., and Harmony Lodge No. 17, FAAM.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary L. Brown, of 3051 Idaho ave. nw., with whom he celebrated his golden wedding anniversary two years ago, and a son, Louis A. Brown, New Haven, Conn., former assistant city editor of The Washington Post.

Arlington Girl, 11, Latest Polio Case

An 11-year-old girl from the 1100 block of N. Stafford st., Arlington, was the county's seventeenth polio case this year and the 189th victim in the Washington area.

The case, reported yesterday, was diagnosed October 8 at Children's Hospital.

Hannegan's Funeral Held In St. Louis

St. Louis, Oct. 10 (U.P.).—Robert Hannegan, who helped steer President Truman into the White House, was buried here today.

The President asked Postmaster General Jesse Donaldson to represent him at funeral services for the 46-year-old former chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Hannegan, who later became Postmaster General himself, masterminded Mr. Truman's nomination for Vice President in 1944.

Hannegan died Thursday of a heart attack. He was buried in Calvary Cemetery after funeral services were held at St. Louis Cathedral.

Among dignitaries present were Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson of the United States Supreme Court, Associate Justice Tom Clark, Air Secretary W. Stupart Symington, William Boyle, Democratic National Committee chief.

Also attending were Chicago Mayor Martin Kennelly, Edwin W. Pauley, former Democratic national treasurer; Oscar Ewing, Social Security administrator; Movie Magnate George Skouras and the New York restaurateur, Toots Shor.

Without Painful Backache

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Gordon Gray's Stepfather Dies in N. C.

Benjamin Franklin Bernard, retired investment broker and stepfather of Army Secretary Gordon Gray, died at 3 p. m. yesterday at Winston-Salem, N. C.

Death, relatives here said, came at the Winston-Salem Baptist Hospital after an illness of about three months. The Secretary who is now vacationing at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., will fly to Winston-Salem today, Mrs. Gray said.

Mr. Bernard was born in Asheville, N. C., and worked as an investment broker in Winston-Salem until he retired from active business 10 years ago.

He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Eugene Hester and Mrs. Robert Jones of Asheville, and Miss Molly Bernard, Trion, N. C., and two brothers, William and Silas Bernard of Asheville.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at Winston-Salem.

Thief Gets $50 Radio, $400 in Falls Church

About $400 in cash and checks, plus a $50 radio, was stolen over the weekend from Liggon's paint and wallpaper store, 154 Hillwood ave., Falls Church, its owner reported yesterday.

The thief jimmied a rear door to enter, according to Gray Liggon.

PHILLIPS MILK OF MAGNESIA

GENTLE EFFECTIVE LAXATIVE FOR CHILDREN - ADULTS

Along Our Street

with Aunt Penny

On my way home from the stores this afternoon, I stopped near the football field for a few minutes to watch the team practice. They're out almost every afternoon these days. And little as I know about football, I could tell they had learned the secret of teamwork.

The rest of the way home, I thought how important teamwork is—in sports, in clubs, in business—and among neighbors, too. One place where it works wonders is on a telephone party line.

Teamwork on a party line is simply a matter of allowing some time between calls so that others have a chance to use the line . . . not interrupting when the line is in use, except to make an emergency call . . . answering the telephone promptly. When everyone on the line works together, treating his neighbor with courtesy and consideration, it means better telephone service all along the line.

Hiss Trial Off Again; Shift Plea Studied

New York, Oct. 10 (U.P.).—The second Alger Hiss perjury trial was postponed today until November 1 and a Federal judge took under advisement Hiss' motion to shift the trial to Vermont

Hiss, 44-year-old former high State Department official, is charged with lying when he told a grand jury he did not deliver Secret Government documents to former Communist Whittaker Chambers and never saw Chambers after January 1, 1937.

His first trial ended in a hung jury on July 8, with four jurors voting for acquittal and eight for a verdict of guilty.

Hiss contends that New Yorkers are so prejudiced against him it would be impossible to obtain a fair and impartial jury here.

Judge Vincent L. Leibell adjourned the opening of the new trial for three weeks after Claude B. Cross of Boston, Hiss' new attorney, said he needed two months to prepare his case.

The change of venue motion was argued before Judge Alfred C. Coxe because Leibell disqualified himself on the ground that a member of his family was employed by Time, Inc. Chambers, Hiss's principal accuser, formerly was a senior editor of Time Magazine.

Edward C. McLean, of defense counsel, said that in Rutland, Vt., where the Federal Court sits, the only two newspapers of general circulation carried brief and unbiased dispatches about the trial.

"You mean to say they don't read any other papers than the local ones in Vermont?' Judge Coxe asked. "I've just come from Vermont and you can get all the news there that you can get anywhere in the United States. The radios are working there also."

5 Killed on Derailed Train

Meade, Kans., Oct. 10 (AP).—A Chicago-bound Rock Island passenger train piled up in a washed-out roadbed—before dawn—today, killing five persons and putting 38 injured in hospitals.

The dead were identified as Junior Mitchell of Tucumcari, N. Mex.; Mrs. Clarence Moon, 57, Liberal, Kans.; Mrs. B. G. Frazier, about 60, Decatur, Ill.; Joe Robinson, 62, chef on the train, Los Angeles, and John Wade, Los Angeles.

Four cars and a Diesel unit of the California-to-Chicago train, the Imperial, left the rails. Two of the cars overturned and were partly submerged in a ditch.

A 2-year-old girl was missing. She is Crystal Lee Dutton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dutton of Port Huron, Mich.

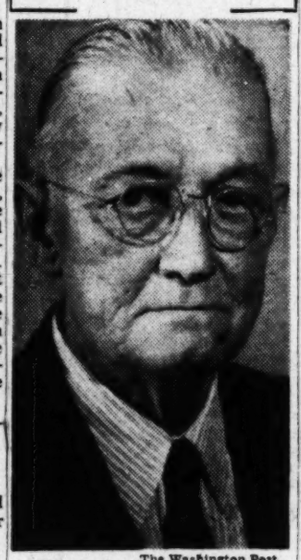
6th Winner Turns Up in Post Contest



The Washington Post
CHARLES W. HETTINGER
. . . among oldest Washington Post carriers

A sixth winner in The Washington Post contest to find the former carrier boys who delivered the paper the longest time back was discovered yesterday.

He is Charles W. Hettinger, 63, of 428 Pershing dr., Silver Spring, Md., who delivered papers in 1898 when "Washington was just a little country town."

Hettinger, who is custodian of vaults in the surface printing division of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, used to make $6 a month delivering papers in the days when you could buy two pounds of round steak for a quarter.

New Year's Day he used to deliver calendars printed by The Washington Post, and he recalls: "Folks gave us whatever they pleased to express appreciation for goodservice we gave them—and they must have liked my service because I bought a bike and roller skates with their tokens of gratitude."

The contest is now closed. Winners will be guests of The Washington Post at the Redskin-Eagles football game in Philadelphia October 23.

5 Believed Dead in Bomber Crash

Hill Air Force Base, Utah, Oct. 10 (AP).—An Air Force B-17 bomber crashed into Great Salt Lake this morning with five airmen aboard.

Two bodies were recovered tonight.

The third body was sighted. Rescue workers said there was no doubt all aboard the bomber had perished.

The plane had almost completed its cross-country navigational flight from Albuquerque, N. Mex., to its home base here. A rainstorm was sweeping across northern Utah at the time.

Hill Base authorities issued no confirmation that the wreckage was that of a missing B-17. However, persons reaching the crash scene in boats said they were positive the ship was one frequently used by Brig. Gen. William M. Morgan, commanding officer here, for his flights.

Video Queen Contestant Is Ruled Out

Television Queen Contest judges ruled yesterday that age comes before beauty, when "beauty" isn't old enough, and "age" is beautiful.

"Beauty is pretty Gracie Johnson of Route 2, Silver Spring, until last night one of the six finalists in the contest sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington. The judges disqualified Gracie when her father told them she was only 17. Contest rules specified 18 as the minimum age.

"Age" is pretty Evelyn Lear, 23-year-old mother of two and wife of a United States Public Health Service doctor, of 516 N. Kenmore st., Arlington. She was nosed out in the semifinals Saturday night.

Brannan Farm Plan Lauded by Agriculture Aide

Chicago, Oct. 10 (AP).—Secretary Brannan's farm price support program was boosted today as a means of getting the Government out of a huge and costly egg business.

Knox T. Hutchinson, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, spoke before the National Poultry, Butter and Egg Association.

Hutchinson said that under the Brannan plan "American consumers will benefit by having access to the entire production of eggs, with the advantage of lower prices when the egg supply is larger than consumers want.

"We must not forget that under the present method of support, the American public does not get to eat the eggs bought by the Government."

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl Is Disheartened by Her Urbane Parents' Droll Patronage of Her Love for Farm Life; They Champion Her Younger Sister's Interests

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I was thin and rundown when I was 13, and my parents sent me to an aunt's farm for the good food and outdoor life. I had a wonderful time and after that I spent every summer there until this year, when I took a job with a wonderful future, I think.

My boss has promised me a few days' vacation this fall, after my first six months are up, and my immediate thought was to spend that time with my aunt, since I didn't get to the farm this summer. But when I announced my plan to the family, their reaction was a climax to all the teasing I've taken ever since I started enjoying farm life.

On the farm I pitch in and work as no city person ever has, and on weekends there is usually a dance or festival or get-together which I enjoy very much. But when I try to explain the life to my parents, they usually look at each other and smile. And this last time, mother said, "I guess my girl will always be a hillbilly."

Girl Feels Like Misfit in Family

MY PARENTS are fairly young and their interests include bridge parties, dances, opera, musical shows, golf, motor trips, weekend jaunts to other cities, etc., and I am well aware that they can't understand my love of farm life; but until now they had never openly made fun of my taste. It is so disheartening, when they champion every phase that my younger sister Ellen goes through.

When she got opera-happy (over a certain singer) they took her to concerts and operas and bragged of her interest. And now that she is forever reading sociology and phychiatry and foisting her learning on us, they practically call her a "brain." She tells me her mind is on a higher level than mine, and she never fails to get in little digs about my summers. The other night she kept a friend of mine entertained all evening, telling him about my "quaint" friends and activities in the country.

Although I feel secure in my home and happy in my job, and am not ashamed of my simple tastes, I sometimes feel like a misfit in the family. And I wonder if I were to read a few "thinking" books, swoon over Pinza or Crooks, and stand up to older persons in discussing the fate of the world (as Ellen does), would I be any more likable? Please advise. C. Y.

Case of Parents Spoiling 'Baby'

DEAR C. Y.: In your long letter here cut in half, you say that Ellen goes into gales of laughter as your parents exchange smiles, when you try to tell what you do at the farm. Also, that Ellen sits by the hour to discuss and debate with your parents' friends on different subjects—a parade of "brain" that you think bad taste.

Enough said, it seems to me, to indicate that Ellen is the household pet and obnoxiously spoiled as compared to the passive tolerance shown you, with the result that she automatically puts herself on a footing with her parents in relation to you and society. Also it seems she both implies and promulgates the idea that you are a sort of goon and fifth wheel in the family line-up; and smugly feels that on the score of affinity she and her parents are three of a kind, three-in-one against you, an oddity who stands alone.

You, too, sense the outlander role into which you are cast (figuratively) by your parents' droll side glances when you earnestly bid for emotional support of your interests,—and naturally there is pain, humiliation and dismay in being thus shut out and laughed off by one's nearest—and dearest (supposedly).

However, as between your type and Ellen's, I'll take yours as the best foundation for mature personality. You are sensitive, sincere and integrated in the matter of taste, whereas Ellen is tending to be a callous, ambitious show-off, more conscious of herself and the impression she hopes to make, than of the subject matter of her alleged interests. She is developing a prima donna complex, straining to keep you from getting a crumb of favorable attention from an audience that knows you both,—and your parents ought to wake up and dissolve that trend. Help a Child—and Yourself, Too

CREAM the butter and add the sugar, mix well and toss in your favorite ingredients to make the prettiest, tastiest birthday cake you know how. And it's not for your husband or your brother or young cousin or your aunt.

This is the week to bake a cake for a party to be held at Children's Hospital next Saturday. The cakes will be collected at WINX in a contest conducted by Jerry Strong, who is celebrating his birthday this weekend, but every last entry will be sent to the hospital as soon as the judging is over Saturday afternoon. The station will provide lemonade, favors and movies to go with the cake.

There will be a television set as first prize for the best cake, and radios for runners-up. Judges will include Washington Post Food Editor Lucia Brown, General Foods Home Economist Eugenia Hatcher and Barbara Holmes of the Times-Herald.

Texture, lightness and appearance all count, and so does taste!

Cakes should be brought to the station at 8th and I sts. nw. Friday (before 9 p. m.) or Saturday morning before 1 p. m.

Parents' Duty Is to Insist on Care in Play

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

What do parents do when playmates injure their children? There is little doubt that as soon as children go out to play in groups—or even with one companion—certain play practices may lead to injury.

Parents have the deepest obligation to teach their children carefulness in play. This means that from the very beginning of their play experiences, they must know that they cannot wield sticks or throw stones or other hard and possibly lethal objects.

The mother must make a real issue of this and when she finds playmates so engaged, or her own chick so armed, she must break up the play instantly with full explanations.

Children who chronically play too roughly should be ostracized from the group. There is no more telling penalty, for children want to be liked and want to play and if their ways are disagreeable, they will alter them.

It must be taken for granted by parents that in any group, in ordinary play and with no malicious intent, a child is liable to be hurt. He may fall from a swing that was pushed unexpectedly; or fall on the hard cement, or against a woody bush. Some child may inflict injury in inept handling of tools or playthings.

But, when an injury is inflicted with malice and intent to hurt, then parents of the erring child are responsible for the wound suffered by the injured one. They should be not only morally but financially responsible, for they have failed to teach their children proper play manners and have not guarded other children from their uncontrollable tempers. If they are made responsible they will take their obligations more seriously.

Necessary Supplies

Have you a few extra fuses and several extra electric light bulbs prepared against that inevitable time when a fuse will blow and a bulb wear out. They are important supplies that should be on hand in every home.

Wash Fruits Before Eating

Fruit should be washed before eating not only because of the handling before they are purchased. The constant fight against insects that the grower must put up means a continual use of powder, gas and poisonous liquids. The insect will not take up all of these chemicals and it is up to the buyer to be certain she does her part by carefully washing the fruits and vegetables before using.

NAUSEA

If you suffer discomfort from morning nausea, or when traveling by air, sea or on land—try Mothersills

Used for over a third of a century as a valuable aid in preventing and relieving all forms of nausea. A trial will prove its effectiveness and reliability. At druggists.

West Lives Up to Its Traditions In Virginia City

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

WORKING for the Library of Congress sounds rather highbrow, doesn't it? Well, such is not always the case. Take, for instance, Duncan Emrich, Chief of the Folklore Section, and his wife, Marion, who also toils amidst those millions of tomes.

Mr. Emrich's specialty is the Wild West in general, Nevada and Virginia City in particular. The printable results of his often hilarious research have recently been published in a book titled "It's an Old Wild West Custom" and, in addition, he's captured a Guggenheim Scholarship (its flossy title "Guide to the Systematic Collection, Analysis, and Cataloguing of the Folklore of Western States") which enables him to continue having fun in his out-of-library moments.

This autumn the Emrichs combined vacationing with Guggenheim, in their adopted habitat, Virginia City, a once roaring mining town built over 600 miles of Comstock lode tunnelling.

The town now skates along with 700 inhabitants, no less than seven of them outstanding authors, bolstered by 18 flourishing saloons where drinking and gambling are judiciouly combined in true Wild West tradition. The saloons, famous in Eair, Flood and Mackay boom days, have such dreamy names as the "Bucket of Blood," "Crystal," "Sawdust Trail," "Delta" and the "Bonanza Inn."

THE BONANZA INN was once the King Mansion, owned by Homer S. King, who came to Virginia City four years after the Comstock Lode was discovered, as representative of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s banking department. It's been revived and done over by Jinny and Halvor Smedsrud, who run the most luxurious, gastronomically speaking, restaurant in what was once the Wild West.

Mrs. S., who once lived in Washington when she was married to Swiss tennis star Charlie Aechlemann, does most of the cooking, serves whom and when she wants for $2 at noon and $4 evenings. She's a "Cordon Bleu" of no mean repute, and a not unusual menu goes as follows: "Les scargots de Bourgogne, Hors d'oeuvres Varies, Saute de Boeuf Bonanza, Creme Anglaise, Mousse au Chocolat" with appropriate wines.

Mr. S. works in the kitchen, too, and liquor is served from Nevada's smallest bar—a 13 inch slot in the wall. All this elegance in a town of 700 has been encouraged not only by the delicately palated authors, and more discriminating tourists, but by that old maestro of the taste buds, Lucius Beebe.

Mr. Beebe, who once dished out gastronomic doings for Gotham's Herald-Tribune, now parks his famous private car "The Gold Coast" in nearby Carson City, and has bought the old Piper house in Virginia City. The Gold Coast, kept in readiness to move, has recently been made even more luxurious by the addition of silver plate whipped up by Cartier from silver actually mined in the Comstock lode. Mr. Beebe and his photographer associate, Charles Clegg, have just finished a handsome new book on the w. w. called "The U. S. West, Story of Wells Fargo." To keep in picture, Lucius wears a broad-brimmed black felt hat always affected by Wells-Fargo boys in the days when men were men.

ON SEPTEMBER 17, a convenient Saturday and therefore payday, Virginia City celebrated Author's Day, each of the local authors autographing their books in a separate saloon—then, when it was no longer possible to hold pen, moving 6 inches or so to the cosily adjacent bar.

DUNCAN EMRICH, chief of the folklore section of the Library of Congress, a burro named Pretty Peachie Pie and a few friends are pictured at a recent wild and wooly Authors' Day shindig at the Delta Saloon in Virginia City, Nev. They are celebrating the introduction of Mr. Emrich's newest book, "It's an Old Wild West Custom." With the author and the burro are Zoray Andrus (extreme left), a Virginia City artist, and Mrs. Roger Butterfield, wife of the Life magazine staff writer

The whole bright idea was thought up by Roger Butterfield, Life's superficially staid staff writer who has also authored a best seller called "The American Past." Other scribes included Walter Tillbury Clark also best-seller with "The Track of the Cat;" Beebe & Clegg, whose book had to be flown in at immense expense predating Eastern publication; Irene Bruce, a poetess whose newest effort is "Crag and Sand" and Marion Emrich who John Hancocked her "The Child's Book of Folklore" in the Sazarac saloon right under the nude painting of Julia Bulette, Virginia City's oldtime fanciest lady. (Miss or Mrs. Bulette, incidentally, in recognition of her Virginia City philanthropies, was made an honorary member of the Virginia City Engine Company No. 1—the highest local, even State-wide honor possible.)

Some 350 books were sold in a remarkably short time, a record, indeed, when one considers Nevada is said to have only three book stores!

The literary goings-on were preceded by a magnificent luncheon at the Bonanza Inn, followed by feasting at the various saloons. As a result of these highbrow activities, three saloons were unable to open the following day.

AUTHOR'S DAY was made even more enjoyable by the presence of two specially selected members of the press, one sent from the San Francisco Chronicle, the other a wire-service laddie. Imagine what happened when Virginia City's literati discovered their names were, respectively, Basil Woon and Adam Oom!

Everyone was so pleased that a burro, won in a wildcat poker game, was introduced into the saloon area to make up a delirious triangle (burro's name was Pretty Peachie Pie).

Other features of Virginia City's enviable social season were parties at the fairly nearby, newly built ranch house of Washington's Helen Marye Thomas; the fourth anniversary of the Sarazac saloon's new owners, to which some 2000 customers were bid to drinks on the house via penny postcard invitations; a Beebe gold-plated dinner for Gov. Vail Pittman, and the annual dinner of Virginia City's Business and Professional Women at the Bonanza Inn.

Heigh-ho for the Wild West and a Guggenheim Scholarship—or even a job at the Library of Congress!

Husband-Tested

BACON-POTATO SALAD

INGREDIENTS

2 slices bacon
¼ cup vinegar
1 teasp. grated onion
⅛ teasp. pepper
1 teasp. salt
2 teasp. sugar
1 cup Pet Milk
3 cups sliced, cooked potatoes
1 cup finely cut celery

DIRECTIONS

Cut bacon fine; cook until crisp. Remove pieces from skillet. Stir into fat the vinegar, onion, pepper, salt and sugar. Heat thoroughly; stir into milk. When well mixed, pour over mixture of the crisp bacon pieces, potatoes and celery. If desired, garnish with hard-cooked egg slices, edged with strips of pimiento. Makes 4 servings.

Pen Women to Hold 1950 Convention Here

By Genevieve Reynolds and Nicha Soure

WASHINGTON has been selected as the scene of the National League of American Pen Women's 1950 biennial convention. The Statler Hotel will be headquarters for the Nation-wide conclave, April 1-5, according to a decision reached yesterday at the organization's board meeting.

Board members, at the first meeting this year, also announced a contest for all those in the NLAPW. There will be prizes for artists, composers, poets, short story writers and journalists. Contest winners will be announced during the convention.

Preceding the NLAPW's business sessions, members gathered for breakfast at the Willard Hotel when Mrs. Richard Sappington Giese of Sewickley, Pa., was hostess. Mrs. Giese, national historian, has entertained the league's national officers and board members at similar affairs for the past eight years.

Millers Feted by Newspaperwomen

RESIDENTIAL SOCIETY, plus congressional representatives and newspaper officialdom turned out yesterday to meet Mr. and Mrs. Peter Miller at the American Newspaper Women's Club fete. Between 5 and 8 p. m. the Raleigh Hotel was jammed with folk eager to meet the new publisher of the Times-Herald and her husband.

Chic, intellectual Mrs. Miller wore a simple black dress with a close-fitting matching hat.

As she accepted a membership certificate into the American Newspaper Women's Club, Mrs. Miller remarked, "I'd rather have this than the keys to the city."

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, an associate member of the club was there wearing a becoming Paulette hat. The fetching gold velvet chapeaux with its peaked crown has an engaging veil attached to gold rings. When Eleanor Whitney wears the hat to a cocktail party the veil comes below chin length. But the minute she goes to the theater, she rolls the veil back. Then she's all set for the show.

Receiving with the Millers were Miss Grace McGerr, club president, and Mrs. Vylla Poe Wilson, club editor of the Times-Herald.

Seen here and there were the president of the Gridiron Club and Mrs. Richard Wilson; the Executive Editor of the Times-Herald and Mrs. Frank Waldrop; the President of the National Press Club and Mrs. John C. O'Brien; the Manager of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press and Mrs. William Beale, jr., and the Manager of the Washington Bureau of the United Press and Mrs. Lyle Wilson.

Glimpsed among the several hundred present were Senator and Mrs. Clinton Anderson, Hampson Gary, Representative and Mrs. Richard Bolling, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Floyd Parks, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Thomas W. Herren, Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mrs. Stanley Horbeck (just back from an extended motor trip out West), Mr. and Mrs. John J. Courtney, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris and Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Evans, jr.

After the Marshall Plan

DURING THE SUMMER of 1948, an American was stopped about three times in going from ECA headquarters in Paris to the American Embassy (a distance of two blocks) by black market operators who wanted to buy American dollars. Today this practice has disappeared due to the stabilization of the French franc.

This incident was pointed out by Alfred Friendly in a talk to members of the Vassar Club yesterday. Mr. Friendly, Washington Post writer and former director of ECA overseas information, spoke on "Europe since the Marshall Plan."

The first job of Marshall Plan aid was accomplished; that of preventing western Europe from falling into communism as a result of internal economic collapse, Mr. Friendly said.

"People in western Europe took new faith in themselves and democratic institutions," he continued, "in contrast to 1947 when they believed that democracy was a luxury they couldn't afford."

But, the speaker cautioned, this is not a permanent victory. The second and more difficult part of the job, according to Mr. Friendly, is to help Europe reorganize into new economic patterns to spell the end to trade barriers and monetary hindrances to the free flow of trade.

"Europe to come out of the crisis whole must become one big free market," he said. "Only by producing and selling for one big market can Europe accomplish improvements in production and in a higher standard of living."

Democratic Ideals

THE MEMORY and teachings of one man, the late Father William Joseph Kerby, a professor of sociology at Catholic University, is holding together a group of 400 people under the name of the Kerby Foundation.

The primary object of the Foundation is to arouse the interest of Americans in our democratic ideals and emphasize the importance and dignity of human beings, according to Fenton Moran, executive secretary of the Foundation.

Mr. Moran was the guest speaker following the business meeting of the Washington chapter of the Business and Professional Women's Club at the Young Woman's Christian Association yesterday.

Accent on Languages

DON'T BE SURPRISED to hear members of the Washington Club speaking either Spanish or French. For language classes are the club's innovation this fall. Spanish classes with Professor Ramon Ramos opened yesterday at the clubhouse and will be held each Monday, 2 to 4 p. m. French classes will get under way later this month. Mrs. Harold Hanning is in charge of the new language program.

How to Remove Baby's Formula Stains

Can you give a method for removing formula stains from an infant's clothes? Washing with bleach in a washing machine has been unsuccessful: A. M.

When formula stains have been washed into clothes, it is practically impossible to remove them. As a last resort you might try soaking them in household bleach or dye color remover.

The best defense against formula stains is to soak all infant clothes which may be so stained in cold water for 30 minutes before placing them in the wash water. This way the stains will be removed before the hot water and soap set them.

How can one deodorize shoes? I wore these shoes last winter and used foot power constantly, but that did not seem to help any. H. G. S.

Wipe the inside of the shoes with a cloth dampened in water to which a little vinegar has been added. Sprinkle deodorant powder into shoes and let stand in sun and fresh air until the interior is throughly dry. Brush out the powder. It may take several treatments to completely remove the odor.

How can one remove spots from furniture caused by alcohol? Also white spots on hardwood floors caused by some beverage containing alcohol? H. G. S.

Light alcohol stains on furniture or floors can sometimes be removed by wiping with scratch concealing polish. If this doesn't completely remove them, rub them with rottenstone or powdered pumice and oil. Mix the two ingredients and gently rub it into the stain, taking care to keep the paste on the stained area only. Rub with the grain. When the stain is gone, clean the wood with oil on a clean cloth. Alcohol stains which have completely penetrated the finish can only be removed by refinishing the entire surface.

My problem deals with corrosion of metal on (1) a metal atomizer in which hair lacquer was allowed to remain overlong and (2) corrosion of metal on the stem of a metal siphon which extended into a decanter of sherry wine. Can you give me any assistance in salvaging these two articles? P. M. T.

Usually when lacquer has been allowed to harden in sprayers of any sort it is impossible to remove it. However, you might soak the spray part of the atomizer in alcohol to soften the lacquer and then attempt to open the stem with a small wire.

I know of no way to remove the corrosion from the interior of the siphon stem unless it is possible to do it mechanically with a wire. Or the corrosion might be removed by a firm which repairs metal articles. To find such a firm look under "platers" in the yellow pages of the telephone book.

I hope these suggestions will give you a starting point, at least.

Britain's New Thimble Brigade Answers Call to the Colors

By Peggy Preston

"BONNIE PRINCE CHARLIE'S" favorite layette, in replica, seems due to steal the limelight at the exhibition of British handicrafts which takes place Thursday and Friday at the United Nations Club.

The copy of the royal layette will be shown along with other examples of fine needlecraft at the exhibit, presented by the British Women's Home Industries, Inc. It was made by wives of mine workers in a little English coast town who asked permission to honor their new prince, Elizabeth and Philip's son. Their work was finer in quality than all the other layettes submitted. So today, the little prince wears their sweaters, coats, pram legging sets, bonnets and panties.

The exhibit is of novel significance. It proves that even the old-fashioned thimble has answered the call to the economic colors in Britain. Skilled needlecraft, executed by the housewives of England and Scotland is speeding across the Atlantic to make a bid for precious export dollars. All articles on display can be ordered to individual measure, deliverable within a month. Prices are attractive, too. They reflect approximately a 25 percent reduction due to the pound's devaluation.

A wide variety of handicraft will be shown. There will be handknit cashmeres, angora and wool sweaters, beautifully wrought quilts, dolls with complete wardrobes, handmade rugs and needlepoint pieces.

In addition there will be a large collection of children's clothes, including cotton dresses and corduroy play clothes.

All of the articles are the work of thousands of expert knitters, weavers, embroiderers and quilters, now working in their homes throughout the British Isles to produce goods to aid the export drive.

The B. W. H. I. is an auxiliary of the wartime Women's Voluntary Services, which mobilized the unpaid skills of over a million women in civil defense, and in clothing, feeding and housing the nation's air raid victims.

Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador, is sponsor of the Washington exhibit. Mrs. George W. Oakes is chairman.

Harris & Ewing

"SUCH A PRETTY FROCK," remarks Mistress Diana Oakes, left, as she chats over a "cup of tea" with Jennifer Martin. Both the little girls, daughters of British residents in Washington, are wearing handmade dresses that will be exhibited October 13 and 14 at the British Women's Home Industries show at the United Nations Club

Early Detection of Skin Cancer Described by Dr. L. B. McCaleb

Ways to detect early suggestions of skin cancer was the subject of a talk given last night by Dr. Lawrence B. McCaleb, before members of the Washington Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association. The meeting, first for the group this season, took place at the Washington Hotel.

Dr. McCaleb, local dermatologist, pointed out that the beautician is often the first to notice a skin irregularity in a client. Moles, warts, small growths and discolorations frequently come to light during a facial or beauty treatment.

By urging persons with such conditions to seek medical advice, the cosmetician can do a great service in the fight against cancer, according to Dr. McCaleb.

A graduate of Georgetown University medical school, Dr. McCaleb has been a skin specialist since 1939. In addition to his private practice he does clinic work at Georgetown and Providence Hospitals. His appearance at last night's meeting was at the request of the District of Columbia division of the American Cancer Society, in cooperation with its year-round educational program.

Reducing Is Just Mother of Intention

By Ida Jean Kain

HAVING written this column for the best years of my life—they truly have been the best—I know for sure that if I can help women want to get down to healthy, normal weight, that's all there is to it.

Once a woman makes up her mind, nothing can stop her! She will not stall around asking her husband if he thinks she needs to reduce . . . or query her friends again on the subject . . . or be continually going on and off a diet. She has passed the uncertain stage . . . she has made up her mind.

Today's encouraging letter may help you to get started on the healthy road to normal weight—and to stay on it.

"In 1937 your 1200-calorie diet helped me reduce from 140 to 125 pounds, my normal weight, and a size 16 dress. Gradually, however, with a family to cook for, I became fat—that awful word.

"On and off I reduced, on and off I gained, but one night you wrote something in your column that jerked me up with a start: 'Just suppose this was your last chance to reduce, ever again.' Well, as I am now 41 years old, I made up my mind this was the time—now or never. This WAS my last chance!

"I weighed 173½ pounds for my height of 5 feet 1¼ inches—bust, 40 inches; waist, 35 inches; hips, 43 inches—in January of this year. Just think—only 26½ pounds short of 200! Well, I went to my doctor, had a physical check-up and got capsules from him to curb my appetite. I now weigh 145 pounds, have 20 more to go and am doing fine. I am on a 1000-calorie diet. Through your exercises, my measurements are: Bust, 36 inches; waist, 30 inches; hips, 39¼ inches. I wear a size 18 instead of a 42.

"Are my boys proud! Jimmie is 21 now and Dick is 14, and they are proud to dance with their mom, as is my Jim, sr. My hubby just took me on our third honeymoon—we've been married 24 years. We're planning our fourth honeymoon when I am a size 16 again.

"My girl friend, who also follows your column, and I get to talking and we always say, 'Did you read what Ida Jean says today?' So you see you are our friend, and we want you to know the good you do. Thank you sincerely."

A letter like that does me a lot of good, too. But more important, such a morale booster should help any overweight make up her mind once and for all to get down to normal weight, starting now.

One on the Aisle—

Bolger Conducts Community Sing

By Richard L. Coe

EAST SIDE, WEST SIDE: Ray Bolger, happy as a lark in the title role, tonight celebrates the first birthday of "Where's Charley?" at the St. James. . . . This musical version of Brandon Thomas' 57-year-old hit, "Charley's Aunt," was well received when it opened, but for some months past it's had standing room only, just like "South Pacific" across the street. . . . Apart from the well-tried shenanigans about Charley dressing up as his aunt from Brazil ("Where the nuts come from"), the most endearing moment of "Where's Charley?" comes at the opening of the second act. . . . This has Ray singing "Once in Love With Amy," lilting of tune and adaptable to the Bolger soft shoe. . . . He gets the house singing along with him, a rare Gotham achievement which first nighters won't recall. . . . One Saturday matinee a little girl in the first row began singing the melody along with Ray; he waved her to sing loud. . . . She did and soon the whole theater with them. . . . Now it's a top feature of the musical. . . . "Tour? I doubt it," says Ray, "the nut on this show is $27,500 a week and touring's expensive." . . . Ray's hit in "Look for the Silver Lining," the movie about Marilyn Miller, undoubtedly upped the take on "Charley" and certainly accounts for all those autograph-seekers at the stage door. . . . He and his copartner wife, Gwen Rickard, draw a sizable chunk each week, but to find a place too live they've been using Dorothy Thompson's apartment. . . . Now Dorothy's back in town and they're having to move. . . . Still, on $8000 a week . . .

FRANCES STARR, weary of no theater in Washington, has a new home at 10 Mitchell pl., right near such friends as Katherine Cornell and Margalo Gilmore . . . Miss Starr is now packing some 15 fabulous trunks to move from Washington's Kalorama rd. and soon will be ensconced to enjoy views of the East River and ponder several scripts that have come her way for the new season . . . Her Washington friends will miss the lovable Frances and her disarming wit, but ever since that Eugene Walter play which shall be nameless, New York's belonged to Miss Starr . . . Any night now you'll see her at Sardi's or that yummy Exchange on Madison ave. with Florence Reed, Virginia Hammond or Mary March.

PETER FERANDEZ, between television rehearsals (you rehearse 10 days for a half-hour show), agrees to come down to the Cunard pier with me to welcome some British friends, Magician Bob Harbin and his Dolly . . . Coming off the pier we run into Terry Rattigan, here for the opening of his two short plays tomorrow night . . . A funny coincidence, for Pete was in Washington this summer in Rattigan's "O Mistress Mine," with Libby Holman in the role Lynn Fontanne created . . . I introduce the boys and Terry asks, "How was Libby?" . . . "Ha-ha," says Fernandez, a youthful critic, and Terry laughs.

TERRY, who always looks as handsomely urbane as those characters he writes about, should surely have a hit in "The Browning Story." . . . The title's from the first and serious one of the two; the second is a rollicking farce about an aging theater couple determined to play "Romeo and Juliet." . . . London saw this as "Playbill," with Eric Portman and Mary Ellis . . . Maurice Evans and Edna Best have the parts at the Coronet and hope to break the jinx against short plays that seems to prevail here unless Gertrude Lawrence and Noel Coward are playing "Tonight at 8:30." . . . Terry's last in America, "The Winslow Boy," had its premiere at Washington's Unnatural National and the beamish one is sorry to miss the Capital this trip.

THE BROADHURST THEATER, on 44th st., bills names familiar to Washington, Walter and Jean Kerr and Dick Sykes . . . This is for Thursday night's opening of "Touch and Go," which Catholic University introduced as "Thank You, Just Looking," last spring . . . Now it's a George Abbott production, with Walter directing the show he and his wife wrote and with Dick Sykes as that musical "Hamlet." . . . Don't forget to send your good luck wires Thursday night.

GILBERT MILLER'S office in Rockefeller Center polishing up for the master's return from London this week . . . He's just been honored by France with the officer's cross of the Legion of Honor, in which he's been a knight 22 years . . . The award will be made officially by Consul General Ludovic Chancel when Miller gets back . . . After which he'll be taking up the cudgels for ANTA'S lease on Washington's Belasco.

BALLET HOLDS its own, with Roland Petit's "Ballets de Paris" taking over, for the Messrs. Shubert, their fabled Winter Garden . . . The big thing is a "Carmen" that sizzles in a theater used to sizzling . . . And via air from London has come the Sadler's Wells Ballet for its American debut at the Metropolitan Opera House, a run that will be featuring, among many, Moira Shearer and Robert Helpmann, stars of the movie, "Red Shoes." . . . The Gotham run ends November 6, with the two following days, Monday and Tuesday, at Constitution Hall . . . Dancing with the Britishers is Jacqueline Williams, who started studying when she was 8 with the Washington School of the Ballet and Lisa Gardiner . . . Miss Williams also was in one of the "Going Native" revues . . . Sadler's Wells seats now at the snow agency, in Campbell's, 1108 G st.

New Car Sales Rally Sharply In September

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington sales of new automobiles came back strongly in September after a sharp drop in the previous month.

Last month's registrations totaled 2854, according to the Washington Automotive Trade Association. This was a gain of 47 percent over the previous month and an increase of 32 percent over September, 1948.

The August letdown had been attributed to the new sales tax here and unusually heavy buying in July to beat the tax.

For the first nine months this year local auto sales reached a new postwar peak of 25,327. This compared with 21,746 in the same 1948 period and 19,372 in the like 1947 months.

Auto sales by months compare as follows for the past three years:

	1949.	1948.	1947.
January	2091	2346	1888
February	1829	1973	1425
March	2497	3151	2766
April	3332	2770	2463
May	2828	2339	2308
June	3500	1600	2210
July	2669	2220	2231
August	1931	2696	1928
September	2854	2202	2153

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Oct. 10 (AP).—A late rally in corn provided the only spark of life in the grain market today. The rest of the market ended lower after a dull session characterized by moderate but persistent selling pressure.

Corn turned upward following news reports of very high winds in Iowa, South Dakota and Minnesota, which crop experts said were damaging the yellow cereal. Even so, corn's rally was not very impressive. It appeared held back by belief tomorrow's Government crop report will show high supplies on farms.

Wheat ended 1½-¾ lower; corn was ⅛ lower to ¼ higher; oats were unchanged to ½ lower; rye was ⅛ lower to ¾ higher; soybeans were ¾-1¼ lower and lard was 5 to 10 cents a hundred pounds higher.

New York Cotton

New York, Oct. 10 (AP).—Cotton futures closed steady today, unchanged to 65 cents a bale higher after experiencing a moderate flurry of selling on a larger Government estimate for the 1949 cotton crop. The Department of Agriculture in its October report today raised its cotton production forecast approximately 500,000 bales to 15,446,000 bales of 500 pounds each. The trade had looked for an unchanged to a slightly lower figure, compared with the official September forecast of 14,943,000 bales.

Importing D. C. Wine Costs $50

A 25-year-old Falls Church resident was fined $50 and given a suspended 30-day jail sentence in Arlington County Court yesterday, on charges of illegal transportation of liquor across the State border.

The defendant, Casswell William Stallings, of RFD No. 1, Falls Church, pleaded guilty to charges of transporting 29 fifths of wine from Washington to Virginia.

He was the first person to be arrested in the county on the charge since start of a recent State drive against importation of cheaper beer and hard liquor from the District.

Under State law, a person is allowed to bring only one gallon of beer or liquor into the State on any one trip.

State Alcoholic Beverage Investigator M. K. Bryant said he arrested Stallings last Friday night, after stopping Stalling's car on Columbia Pike near Queen st., Arlington.

$30 Million to Korea

President Truman yesterday signed a $177,740,619 deficiency appropriation bill including 30 million dollars for economic aid to Korea.

Also included in the omnibus measure are 25 million dollars for grants to States for unemployment services and $12,500,000 for surplus property disposal.

The present Falls Church ordinance governing use of explosives will be revived, following the recent theft of 65 dynamite caps from an unguarded jeep, City Attorney La Rue Van Meter said yesterday.

Seventeen caps have been recovered so far from primary schooi children. One child suffered loss of two fingers when one of the caps exploded in his hand.

The present ordinance makes it "unlawful to set off or discharge any noisemaking fireworks and/or explosives' ' within city limits, without "satisfactory representation" to city officials that proper precautions will be taken.

Violation of the regulation is a misdemeanor, with a penalty of up to $100 fine or 30 days in jail.

Van Meter said the ordinance now in effect is "not very specific," and that his revised version, to be presented to the City Council Wednesday, will govern possession and storage, as well as use of the explosives.

Silver Spring Child Study Course Opens

More than 100 Montgomery County parents attended the opening yesterday of the fourth annual Child Study Workshop at the Woodside Methodist Church, Silver Spring. Sessions will continue today, Thursday and Friday.

The morning meeting was devoted to an interpretation of the program and organizing the rest of the work. After seminars conducted by five consultants, the group broke up into laboratory discussions in the afternoon.

The workshop was organized by parents seeking more information about their childrens' personality and habits. It has been furthered through cooperation with the county PTA and school authorities.

Britain Replaces Teeth Lost in Seasickness

Bury St. Edmunds, England, Oct. 10 (AP).—A man who lost his false teeth when he got seasick on a vacation voyage asked the National Health Service for new ones.

Today the West Suffolk executive council of the health service decided that under Britain's fee-less health plan, the man was entitled to a replacement.

Ceremony Set

Arlington Gets Hospital Wednesday

Arlington Hospital officials will sign papers agreeing to purchase the Federally built 115-bed hospital for $125,000, in a ceremony at 4 p. m. Wednesday on the hospital grounds.

County officials and representatives from numerous civic organizations, as well as the public, have been invited. At the time hospital trustees will turn over the necessary $25,000 down payment, John J. Anderson, hospital administrator, said.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

HONOLULU: The archologists may report the discovery of a new crater near the airport in Honolulu. But no earthquake caused it; that's just the soil I clutched when they tried to tear me away from the Hawaiian Island. For I had raced in an outrigger canoe from the reefs beyond Waikiki; flew to Maui and Kealakekua Bay; saw my first Kona nightingale at the very moment Homer Hayes, the game warden of Hawaii, drove down the mountainside to tell me that the Yankees had won the pennant; covered the Fern Forest whose jungle leaves were 40 feet high; took a sulphur bath at Volcano House; drove along the lava flows from Mauna Loa; swam in the blue water of Lanikai, and even took a bow in the House of Representatives.

The late Adolph Ochs once came to the islands and visited the offices of the Honolulu Advertiser. He saw the reporters and rewrite men in Aloha shirts—the only reporter wearing a tie was the one who had been selected to cover the courts that day—and admired the fragrant garden in the center of the building. Ochs turned to Ray Coll, jr., and said: "Young man, how much do you pay to work here?" For he, too, had tasted of the lotus, had heard the music and was enchanted by the people whose attitude toward newcomers is "You are welcome until you prove you are not."

Johnny Gomez, who manages Doris Duke's estate here, showed me how his surf-board should be ridden, and I have a movie of me standing on the crest of a wave off Waikiki. I also have a movie of me falling off.

The Family Scrapbook

By Ernest G. Osborne

Can Your Children Work?

When you and were young, our parents could have answered the question, "Can your children work?" with much more assurance than can we, as parents, today. A lot of things have happened in the last generation or so. It's much less likely that growing children will have work experiences than once it was in the past. I helped in a stationery store in the small Southern California town where I was raised. At 12 years of age my boy was anxious to work in the nearby grocery after school but laws didn't permit it. For all sorts of reasons it's hard for youngsters to have real work experiences today.

Some schools—both high schools and colleges—feel that work experiences are so important a part of education that they have made provisions for them. With the cooperation of the local merchants, manufacturers and professional workers, work experiences have been given junior and senior high school boys and girls under the supervision of the school. Our own twins are having splendid work experiences at Antioch College along with some 1300 or 1400 other young people. The work these college students do takes them all over the United States in every kind of occupation and profession.

As parents we should try to arrange things so that we can give an alternative answer to the question, "Can my child work?" In some instances we can make our own arrangements for work experience for our youngsters. In most cases we must rely upon the community through the school or other agencies providing such experiences. Our responsibility is to encourage them to move in this direction.

What's the Verdict?

BUSINESS PARTNER?

Q. X and Y were partners in the operation of a hardware business. Although the business was profitable, X had other interests, which used up most of his ready cash. He thereupon borrowed several thousand dollars from Z, pledging that Z would be repaid, with interest, out of X's share of the profits of the hardware partnership. With Y's consent, part of the deal was that Z could examine the books of the firm any time he wished. Later, before Z got back his money, business slumped, and the hardware store couldn't pay its bills. Creditors of the store claim that Z has become a partner, and call on him to help pay the store's debts. Is he liable?

A. Partnership is a business arrangement whose members usually are co-owners, who share losses and profits. A distinguishing feature of the arrangement is that each partner has as much authority as the other (though he may relinquish it for practical reasons). The private resources of any and all partners are subject to payment of partnership debts, if need be. In the case above, Z, the lender to X, had no control of or responsibility for the hardware business. The fact that he could look at the books implied nothing more than that he could see how secure his loan was. Payment of a loan out of profits doesn't make a creditor a partner. Z is not liable . . . . F. L. D.

Circulation Manager

The circulation manager . . . Has quite a task at hand . . . Including how to hurry each . . . Edition to the stand . . . And how to keep his drivers and . . . The newsboys on their toes . . . So there will be no papers left . . . When it is time to close . . . But that is only part of it . . . For he must find a way . . . To publicize and bring in more . . . Subscriptions every day . . . He must coordinate his work . . . With all the staff at large . . . Collect accounts and figure out . . . How much he ought to charge . . . He well deserves his salary . . . And share of happiness . . . Because he circulates the veins . . . That keep alive the press.

BARNABY

That contest to pick a haunted house for a broadcast certainly is catching on. Everybody in town is writing in—
Mrs. Shultz just read me her letter. She makes the Jackson place sound like it really is haunted—
It IS haunted, Mom. . .
Oh, dear.
Only Gus the Ghost won't act like a real ghost and unless my Fairy Godfather can cure him, I'm afraid it won't be much of a broadcast—
The sponsor won't like that at all—
John. Don't tease the child.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Blue Blades Almost as Sharp as Modern Scholars

Now that the World Series is over and there's no danger of getting anybody in trouble, I can write this item.

At several schools in this area pupils sneaked small portable radios into classrooms, turned the volume to just the right setting, and listened to the series broadcasts without being detected.

Which makes me wonder whether the Gillette people realized that all those little shavers were listening to the Nation's best known Barber.

Red told 'em to "look sharp," and apparently they did. Otherwise their teachers might have made them "smart."

DEVINE BLESSING

"In your sentence, 'All I can say is: Bless the fellow who sponsored that project,' the word 'bless' should not have been capitalized," protests W. M. Devine of 234 F st. nw.

"Lexicographers and grammarians agree without exception that the word following the colon in such cases is not capitalized."

I'll take your word for it, if you'll permit me one last comment: it's sure going to look wrong.

FILTHY LUCRE

Money talks, despite the fact
It's loaded down with germs.
Gladly would I answer—if
We were on speaking terms.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Your society section recently carried the sentence:

"William Clark of the Lewis and Clark expedition was her great-great grandfather and his brother, George, was her uncle."

Doesn't Uncle George also rate the "great-great" adjectives?

J. Welch
Frederick cts.
Arlington, Va.

Dear Mr. Welch:

The missing great-greats must be those "lost generations" we hear so much about. Bill.

PRO METCALFE

I knew it. The minute somebody dared to criticize the work of Poet James J. Metcalfe, his admirers have rushed forth to defend him.

Irving Fredenberg of 501 Peabody st. ne. is one who thinks that "Portraits" is a real professional job of rhyming.

"In fact," muses Irving, "Metcalfe and Mary Worth ought to get together. He's just the man who can get that greeting card business back on its feet again."

ADD DEFINITIONS

Mrs. R. H. Adams of 101 Fairhaven ave., Alexandria, Va., likes Anon's definition of children: "So expensive that only the poor can afford them."

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Nate Leiderman of 1508 41st st. se. wonders whether the automatic transmission in his car makes him a shiftless character.

OVERHEARD

To me, they both seemed to be about 4 years old, and as big as a minute. But the conversation went like this:

He: I'm bigger'n you are.
She: I'm older'n you are.
He: Yeah, but I'm bigger.
She: I'm older.
He: My mother's older'n your mother.
She: Yeah, but my mother's bigger'n your mother.

To Decommission Ship

The Navy is expected to announce soon decommissioning of the four-year-old 40-million-dollar cruiser, U.S.S. Fargo.

A Navy spokesman told a reporter yesterday that the Fargo is due to go into the "mothball" or inactive fleet, to be preserved for possible future use.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Navy Insurgency Nothing New

By Drew Pearson

It has been a long time since the United States Navy hung the son of the United States Secretary of War, John C. Spencer, "at the yard - arm of the brig Somers for insubordination and attempted mutiny," but there's always been a certain amount of insubordination in the Navy not unlike that flaring in the headlines today.

PEARSON

There was the case when the admirals, through their mouthpiece, the Navy League, called their Commander-in-Chief Herbert Hoover "abysmally ignorant." There was the case when the admirals, led by Hilary P. Jones, sabotaged Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson on 8-inch gun cruisers. And there was the bitter attack on Stimson's war record, carried on subrosa by the admirals.

There was also the leak of a secret naval document regarding dirigible bases by Admiral Joseph M Reeves, not unlike the leak by Captain Crommelin today. And there was the shameless way in which certain naval advisers to the Coolidge naval conference in 1927 conspired with William Baldwin Shearer, lobbyist for American steel manufacturers and shipbuilders, to defeat the policies of their commander-in-chief, Mr. Coolidge.

Looking back over the last three decades, the Navy has battled much more vigorously against its Republican Commanders-in-Chief than against the Democrats. This is partly because, under Franklin D. Roosevelt, a former Assistant Navy Secretary, there was almost nothing the Navy wanted that it could not get.

One reason the admirals are so irate today, of course, is that their inside drag with the White House is no more. Not only was Harry Truman an artillery captain during World War I, but his very close friend, Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, is interested in the Army, not the Navy.

The Admirals Still Leak

Reading a book written 17 years ago, I came across this paragraph:

"Leaks are among the admirals most effective means of propagandizing, when a White House decision has gone against them, when the State Department is carrying on a negotiation which the admirals oppose, when they fail to get their full appropriation, then the safest and best strategy is to leak.

"They do this to the press or to a discreet member of Congress. Both channels are effective. A furor is stirred up. The President or the State Department is pictured as stripping the country of its defense and baring its bosom to the enemy—and after all the furor has subsided, the admirals usually find themselves on top."

That statement, written by this columnist in 1932 in the book "More Merry - Go-Round," is equally true today. It is true regarding the leaks to Congressman Van Zandt, the Naval Reserve officer who so grossly libeled Secretary of Air Symington under the safety of congressional immunity.

Admirals' Day in Court

The public has largely forgotten it, but twice the Navy has been given complete and lengthy hearings by Congress, and each time Congress ruled against the Navy. Following which the admirals refused to accept the congressional decision.

In 1946-47 Congress held protracted hearings regarding unification of the armed forces. The Navy was vigorously opposed.

Again last winter further hearings were held on unification. Again Congress listened patiently to the admirals, but again Congress voted against them, tightened unification.

Cavalry and Battleships

Admirals Bogan, Radford and Denfeld now complain that morale in the Navy is low. That is true.

However, during the 1946-47 hearings, Congressmen proposed that naval officers have the right to transfer to the Air Forces or any branch of the Army with equal pay and rank, or with even greater pay and rank—if justified. This provision was inserted because it was foreseen that battleships and surface vessels, now easy targets for atomic bombs, would be put out of commission and there should be some place for naval officers to go.

The situation was considered similar to that in the Army when cavalry and horse-drawn artillery became outmoded.

Not much is said about it, and the report is still secret, but real trouble with the Navy today is the Bikini bomb test. When cruisers and battleships were found to have been radioactive months after Bikini, and finally had to be taken out to sea and sunk, you can understand why the Navy is getting out-of-date. Bikini vessels which came within range of the atomic fumes couldn't even be saved for scrap iron. That's the key to the admiral's woes.

63 INCHES LONG 6.98 Pair

It's the most exciting window news since the first window was dreamed up! Curtains that go from wash-bowl to window in 7 minutes flat! They're made of solid glass melted down . . . fine-spun into gossamer threads . . . woven into exquisite marquisette. Curtains you just wash, rinse, hang damp-dry. They need no starching, stretching, ironing. Won't wrinkle, shrink, or sag. Can't burn. Rain won't harm them. Radiator heat won't damage them! They're mildew-proof, rot-proof, sun-fast, too! And that's not all! The Hecht Co.'s Fiberglas curtains are amazingly beautiful! "Cornized" for a soft "hand" and billowy drape. Tailored by "Queentex," one of the finest curtain mills in the country. We have them 84-in. wide to the pair, in shell, white, rose-beige. See them. And let Jane Pursch, in our Washington Store, 6th Floor, prove before your very eyes the magic of Fiberglas Curtains.
